BRITAIN SCRAPS 100 YEAR OLD FREE TRADE IDOL

Joins Protectionist Nations of World.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 4.—Five months ago Great Britain abandoned the gold standard, which for generations had been the ark of covenant for her finance. Today she jettisoned her free trade, which for 100 years has been a brazen idol before which she worshiped. From tonight on she is definitely joined to the world group of protectionist nations, although the beginning she has made is small—only a 10 per cent flat tariff, but it was made clear by Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain in a speech before the house of commons that it was only a beginning.

The next step is a tariff commission, which will study the whole subject and bring in a tariff with large, sharp teeth in it.

The scene in commons today was one of historical romance. Chancellor Chamberlain, who introduced the revolutionary changes, is the son of the late Joseph Chamberlain, the famous radical, who nearly 30 years ago went into the political wilderness because Great Britain turned down his proposals for protection which he, at that time, saw as necessary to save British industry.

Wales in Gallery.

In the gallery watching him today was the American widow of his father. In the opposite gallery were the prince of Wales and his brothers, the duke of York and Prince George. Every seat in the house was occupied. Members of parliament arrived as early as 6 a. m. to win a place for the great debate. The galleries were packed.

Prime Minister MacDonald was absent. He is in a nursing home after an operation on his left eye, but his place was taken by the president of the council, Stanley Baldwin.

Today's proceedings took the form of an introduction of the resolutions proposed by Chamberlain, imposing the tariffs and making them effective as of March 1. Later the complete bills will be introduced, debated, amended, and passed on. But the tariffs are in effect despite the fact that the vote on the resolutions will not be taken until Tuesday. This was arranged because of the great number of members wishing to speak, and in order to give two full days to the debate.

Chancellor Chamberlain began by reviewing the present financial situation.

Visions Trade Improving.

He said that there were distinct but patchy signs of improving trade, but that on the other hand there were many factors still against Great Britain, citing among them her dependence on foreign trade, the events in the Far East, the growth of trade restrictions all over the world, and the fact that the advantage gained by the depreciation of the pound sterling is being gradually whittled away as one country after another goes off the fish of British catching, raw cotton,

Chancellor Chamberlain then declared that the government fully realized that the state could not continue extracting such vast sums in taxation from the pockets of the people without ruining industry and that some other way must be found to restore trade and make exports and imports balance.

Reviewing the trade figures, he pointed out that the favorable trade balance of 1929 of 900,000,000 pounds had changed to an unfavorable balance of 113,000,000 pounds in 1931 and that imports were remaining practically stationary, while exports had decreased over 30 per cent.

(The value of the British pound yesterday was quoted at $3.46.)

Aid to Unemployment.

Discussing the remedy, Chamberlain said:

"We propose by a system of moderate protection, scientifically adjusted to the needs of industry and agriculture, to transfer to our own factories and our own fields the work which is now being done elsewhere, and thereby decrease unemployment. We also need it to use it for negotiations with foreign countries which have not hitherto paid much attention to our suggestions."

Announcing a 10 per cent ad valorem duty on all imports upon which no duties are existing, Chamberlain said there were certain exceptions. On the free list are wheat, grain, meat, including bacon and fresh fish of British catching, raw cotton and raw wool. Tea is on the free

THE HUMP THAT HOLDS HIM BACK

Judges Weigh Fate of Crowe and Six Aids

Chief Justice Harry Fisher of the Criminal court and his associates, Judges James J. Kelly and John Prystalski, yesterday afternoon started deliberations on a verdict in the case of Timothy J. Crowe and six other defendants charged with a conspiracy to graft public funds during Crowe's administration as head of the Chicago sanitary district.

After Prosecutor John E. Northup finished the final argument Judge Fisher said that it was not possible to state whether a decision could be given at once. He requested that counsel be present in his courtroom at 11 a. m. today. At that time, he said, the court will hand down a judgment if it is ready.

The judges then locked themselves in chambers and remained in conference for three hours, refusing even to permit any bailiffs to enter. At the end of this period they declined to state whether the verdict would be announced today.

"Bold Steal," Northup Says.

Mr. Northup in his last plea for conviction referred to the actions of Crowe and his associates in overcharging the district as "one of the boldest and rawest steals in history."

"Is there no limit to which any party, Democratic or Republican," he demanded, "can virtually loot the public treasury for its own purposes and then explain: 'We thought we were doing the right thing'?

"The hiss and hoot of Boss Tweed's 'What are you going to do about it?' pales into insignificance beside the 'Well, what can be done about it?' of these men."

The prosecutor urged that Chicago prove, before the opening of the World's Fair, that she is "regenerated" and that spoliation of taxpayers has ceased.

Plea for Defendants.

Attorney Albert Fink, representing the defendants, declared during the morning that no evidence had been offered during the nine weeks of testimony in the case to show that any of his clients were guilty of grafting.

Even the amount of waste charged against them was exaggerated, he declared. Instead of being $2,500,000, he argued, it was not above $1,464,000. That figure, he continued, was only one and six-tenths per cent of the money the sanitary district board had handled.

"Now, it is a recognized fact," the attorney asserted, "that public institutions spend 20 per cent more than private concerns. At that rate the wastage of the district should have been $18,400,000."

Columbus, O., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Stolen kisses were valued at 30 days each by Municipal Judge Harold Kime today. He sentenced Donald Mills, 26, taxicab driver, to serve 60 days in the workhouse for stealing two kisses from Miss Sally Moore, 16, a fare in his cab.

FAIR AND COLD TODAY, WEATHER MAN PREDICTS

Fair skies, with only moderately low temperatures, are expected to prevail in Chicago today, according to the official forecast issued last night. Tomorrow, it was indicated, will be cloudy and warmer.

The heaviest snowstorm of the winter swept into the city yesterday morning. The snow was only about four inches on the level in the city and six inches in the suburbs, but the high winds made drifts that in places were four or five feet deep.

Owing to the depleted state of the city treasury, only a little was done by municipal employés toward cleaning the blanket from the streets, Commissioner of Public Works Sprague dismissing 350 men after they had cleaned crossings for one eight hour shift. However, the surface lines and the Chicago Motor Coach company had crews at work and the streets were kept passable.

In other northern Illinois districts it reached six inches, and southwestern Michigan reported a blizzard which blocked highways and delayed trains for several hours.

Hangar and 12 Planes Burn; $175,000 Loss

Fire and a series of gasoline explosions destroyed the $75,000 hangar of the Continental Airways, Inc., 5032 63d street, at the Chicago airport, early this morning, and also destroyed twelve to fifteen ships stored inside. The total loss was estimated at $175,000.

The blaze broke out suddenly and from unknown causes. It was believed possible that crossed wires were responsible. The first inkling of the fire occurred when the tank of a small ship exploded.

Attendants at the new hangar of the American Airways, Inc., at 5034 West 63d street, almost adjoining, rushed outside to fight the flames, but saw that the fire had gained such headway that their efforts would be useless. A call for city apparatus was turned in, followed by 2-11 and 3-11 alarms.

Ten Explosions During Fire.

As the fire progressed tanks in the various ships burst, sending clouds of smoke belching upward. There were at least ten such explosions. Firemen concentrated their efforts at saving the American Airways' structure. For a while it was feared the brick walls of the burning hangar would collapse upon its neighboring building. This danger was averted when the walls collapsed inwardly.

Two Transport Planes Burn.

Among the planes known to have been destroyed were two Lockheed-Orien six passenger transport planes owned by the Continental Airways, valued at $34,000 each. Ten other ships, owned by private individuals and stored in the hangar, were burned. The loss of these ships was estimated at a minimum of $30,000.

The fire did not interfere with service on the airport. It did, however, tie up early morning traffic in 63d street.

ACTRESS LOSES GEMS IN HOLDUP, BUT SAVES CASH

A taxicab containing Miss Janet Reade, 26 years old, former Follies star, and her maid was forced to the curb in East Goethe street at Lake Shore drive early this morning by a bandit car. Four armed men alighted from the car and waved guns threateningly at Miss Reade. "Just be quiet," commanded one of the robbers. Miss Reade and her maid, Minnie Brown, followed directions. Philip Seligman, 5737 Kenmore avenue, the chauffeur, was forced to lie on the front floor of the cab.

Following orders, Miss Reade removed three rings, valued at $1,900, from her fingers. Neither the driver nor the maid was molested. The gunmen returned to their machine and drove away. Then Miss Reade arose and picked up a packet of bills amounting to $500. She had saved the money by sitting on it during the holdup.

ARMY ORDERED INTO ACTION AS NEW BATTLE RAGES IN FLAMING SHANGHAI

Cabinet in Tokio Rushes 11,000 Men to China.

TOKIO, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The Japanese government today ordered a full division of the army to Shanghai to relieve the 5,000 bluejackets who have been fighting the Chinese for a week.

This decision was in line with the government's rejection of the item of the peace proposals, made by the United States, Great Britain, and France, which called upon Japan and China to cease mobilization and preparations for further hostilities.

A full Japanese army division is composed of two brigades of infantry, a regiment of cavalry, a regiment of artillery, a battalion of engineers, and a battalion of the army service corps. The total strength is about 11,000 men. Hitherto all the fighting in Shanghai has been done by Japanese bluejackets.

Cabinet O. K.'s Recommendation.

In ordering the division to Shanghai the cabinet approved a recommendation submitted by Foreign Minister Kenkichi Yoshizawa, Gen. Araki, minister of war, and Admiral Osumi, minister of the navy.

The Japanese reply to the peace proposals submitted by the powers, in which two of the suggestions were rejected and three others were conditionally accepted, was handed to the ambassadors of the three nations by Foreign Minister Yoshizawa this evening.

In the reply the Japanese agreed to cease hostile acts in Shanghai if they received assurances that the Chinese would "immediately and completely cease their menacing and disturbing activities."

Refuse to Permit Mediation.

In addition to rejecting the powers' proposal that preparation for further hostilities cease, Japan refused to permit mediation by the powers in the conflict with China, especially in so far as that mediation might touch upon the status of Manchuria.

Japan agreed to cease military action in Shanghai if adequately assured the Chinese would do likewise, accepted negotiations for the mutual withdrawal of the warring forces, and approved the creation of a neutral zone in the Chapei battleground.

How far the Tokio reply left the door open for further negotiations was a question that evoked varying opinions in official and diplomatic circles.

Present Reply to Envoys.

Authoritative Japanese quarters appeared convinced that before diplomatic attempts to settle the Shanghai issues could bear fruit, a solution already would have been achieved through other agencies.

The Japanese reply was presented to the three ambassadors—W. Cameron Forbes for the United States, Count Demartel for France, and Sir Francis Lindley for Great Britain—after it had been approved by the cabinet, by Emperor Hirohito, and by Prince Saionji, the only "elder statesman" still living.

The following English translation of the Japanese reply was supplied by the foreign office:

"First, the Japanese forces at Shanghai will cease hostile acts if it is assured that the Chinese forces will immediately and completely cease their menacing and disturbing activities. If, on the contrary, the Chinese, including both the regular and nonuniformed forces, persist in such activities the Japanese government must preserve its freedom of action for its military forces.

"Second, in view of the unreliability of the Chinese in the past and the gravity of the present situation, the Japanese government finds it impossible to renounce mobilization or preparations for hostilities.

"Third, the Japanese government has no objection to its consul general and commander at Shanghai entering into negotiations for an agreement concerning separation of the respective forces, and, if necessary, the establishment of a neutral zone in the district of Chapei.

"Fourth, while it is to be presumed that the phrase, 'all pending questions between Japan and China,' includes the Manchurian question, the Japanese government regards this latter as entirely separate from the Shanghai affair, and, moreover, as covered by a resolution of the league of nations council on Dec. 10, 1931.

Rejects Fifth Proposal.

"Furthermore, it is a settled policy of the Japanese government not to accept assistance of neutral observers or participants in the settlement of questions concerning Manchuria. For these reasons the condition embodied

LATE BULLETINS FROM FAR EAST BATTLE FRONT

BULLETIN.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 5 (Friday.)—(AP)—Three Japanese aviators were killed today when their bombing plane was shot down within 100 yards of Chinese military headquarters, five miles northwest of Shanghai. Their bodies were burned in the wreckage of the plane. Chinese authorities said they brought the plane down with anti-aircraft guns. Reports that a Chinese airplane had been shot down as Chinese flyers drove off Japanese airmen attempting to bomb the Hungjao Chinese airdrome west of Shanghai lacked confirmation.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—An unconfirmed report that a second Japanese division was to be sent to Shanghai reached Washington late tonight.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 5 (Friday).—(AP)—Artillery shells from the battle of Chapei were reported to have fallen within residential areas patrolled by United States marines in the northwest part of Shanghai today. Marine headquarters said the shelling was endangering the inhabitants of those areas. They said they were unable to determine whether the shells were from Japanese or from Chinese guns.

NOT WELCOME TO MEXICO, STUDENTS TELL N. D. BAKER

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The Student Federation of the Federal District of Mexico last night passed a resolution declaring that Newton D. Baker, former United States secretary of war, who is visiting here, is an unwelcome guest.

The students' attack upon former President Wilson's cabinet member recalled that it was during Baker's tenure of the war secretaryship that Gen. Pershing made his expedition into Mexico, in 1916.

His visit, the students said, created ill will in Mexico, "where vivid memories of that great attack on our sovereignty still exists."

SHANGHAI, Feb. 5.—[Friday.]—Seven United States destroyers steamed into Shanghai harbor today to hear guns of China and Japan roaring in the biggest battle yet for the mastery of the devastated city.

Judging from the thunder of the guns the Japanese were using six inch projectiles in their effort to blast stubborn Chinese defenders out of the burning ruins of Chapei and strongholds along the Shanghai-Woosung front.

Under rolling masses of smoke from scores of fires in the northern area of the city, the Japanese pierced Chinese lines and drove their wedge ahead, only to be pushed back by a withering Chinese fire.

Heavy Losses on Both Sides.

The lines of the two forces appeared unchanged as the fighting continued with heavy losses on both sides.

The Japanese lost no time after day broke to launch anew their terrific attack. Machine gunners and artillery forces, already active ahead of the Japanese bombing planes, constantly sent screaming shells and rattling bullets through the air to burst and splatter in the Chapei battleground.

Chinese guns shot down a Japanese airplane over Chapei in the midst of the fighting. The plane burned when it fell. It was the first disaster for Japanese flyers in the battle thus far.

The plane, which had been bombing Chinese positions, apparently was struck either by a machine gun bullet or a shell from a small field gun, which the Chinese were using against the flyers.

Smoke Thickens Pall.

The smoke and pillars of dust raised by high explosives falling all yesterday and all night thickened the pall over the Chinese forces already heavy with low hanging storm clouds.

The American destroyers, arriving from Manila, began taking up positions in various parts of Shanghai harbor. They are the Smith Thompson, Whipple, Pope, Barker, Peary, John D. Edwards, and John D. Ford. The British cruiser Kent arrived shortly afterward, bringing Admiral Sir W. A. H. Kelly, commander of the British squadron in China. The Kent came from Hongkong with a battery of British artillery aboard.

The new artillery assault followed two major bombardments yesterday which left the Chinese holding fast to their holes in the ground.

Shells Explode One a Minute.

The heavy shelling started 40 minutes after midnight. Shells exploded at the rate of one a minute, rattling the doors and windows of houses three miles away.

After an hour the heavy guns ceased firing, but three inch pieces and machine guns were kept in action. At 3:15 a. m. quiet descended on the battlefield. Only the crack of a sniper's rifle here and there could be heard.

With the breaking of dawn, Japanese guns again bombarded Shanghai. Shells screamed through the air and burst in the Chapei battleground, where machine guns again had taken up their rat-tat-tat.

Fear Coup from Rear.

Reports circulating this morning said three Japanese cruisers were lying off Liuho, 35 miles northwest of Shanghai within the lower Yangtze. This, coupled with Tokio reports that a division of Japanese soldiers was on the way to China, led to a belief the Japanese were planning to land forces near Liuho, where they would have an open path to Shanghai.

In event of such a movement, Chinese along the Shanghai-Woosung railway would find the enemy at their rear. An excellent motor highway from Liuho to Shanghai would make an advance on Shanghai easy and rapid.

A wall of fire a mile long lighted the sky over Chapei. Smoke and fumes from the conflagration were swept down on the international settlement by a cold north wind. The Chinese looked for a final desperate push on the part of the Japanese to clear out the last stronghold in Chapei before many more hours.

The Chih college, a well known Chinese school in the Japanese occupied district of Hongkew, was destroyed by flames early today. Chinese said the Japanese entered the four story dormitory of the school and set fire to the furniture and then put the torch to the institution's other two buildings.

Fresh detachments of the United States marines, brought in on the cruiser Houston, took their places in the international settlement guard line. They found Shanghai a cold city in comparison with Manila and tropical uniforms were discarded for wools and long underwear.

The United States transport Chaumont arrived from Manila today with 1,200 members of the 31st infantry and about 100 additional marines. These new forces will bring the total United States strength here to almost 6,000 men. When all the United States naval vessels en route to Shanghai arrive, there will be a total of 17 American warships in the Whangpoo river.

Marines Check Refugees.

The American troops will be billeted in the heart of the business district within a giant amusement hall known as the "New World," where British troops were quartered during the crisis of 1927 in which Chinese Nationalist armies threatened to overun Shanghai.

The marines had a hard time keeping off thousands of Chinese refugees who stormed the gates to bridges over Soochow creek in a vain attempt to get into the international settlement. Only persons holding passes were admitted, for the settlement already was swarming with refugees estimated to total 1,000,000.

During one of the two engagements yesterday an artillery shell crossed the international settlement border and exploded in a group of Chinese buildings only a block from the main postoffice. The shell injured half a dozen Chinese and several houses were burned before the flames were conquered.

The Chinese still held the Woosung forts 16 miles down the Whangpoo despite a two day bombardment by Japanese ships of war, which resumed the attack today.

Shells Wreck Cable Line.

Shells blew out the Commercial cable head at Woosung, leaving the Great Northern cable and the radio as the only means of communication with the outside world. The Japanese authorities apologized for this communication break and offered to post a guard over a repair crew.

No movement of vessels through the narrows at the mouth of the Whangpoo was allowed during the night under new regulations closing the channel between 7 p. m. and 8 a. m. Martial law was proclaimed in the town of Woosung.

The Woosung forts were subjected to their hardest shelling between 11 a. m. and noon yesterday. An eyewitness reported that Japanese destroyers approached close to them.

Sees Destroyer Struck.

"When I arrived," this observer said, "one of the destroyers had apparently been hit and was beached. But it got off later and steamed down the river. Four Japanese airplanes then roared over the forts."

The first engagement between the Japanese and Chinese in Shanghai yesterday lasted four hours. At its conclusion the Japanese said they had "gained only a little." They expressed the hope that a later attack, backed by artillery and the air force, would flatten out the last vestige of the resistance in Chapei and permit a rapid advance.

But when the second onslaught was laid down the Chinese succeeded in beating off the attackers despite the downpour of shells and the streams of bullets from numerous machine guns.

Neutral Area Protests.

The international settlement municipal council asked United States Consul Edwin S. Cunningham, as the senior consular official in Shanghai, to protest to the Japanese authorities, declaring the Japanese naval forces were unjustly interfering with the civil administration of the northern and eastern portions of the settlement.

Residents have been frightened and the public services have been disrupted by the Japanese landing parties, the council said, charging police had been deprived of their firearms, and firemen obstructed and assaulted in the performance of their duty.

Japanese naval officials denied reports that Admiral Shiosawa, who has been ordered by the Tokio government to relinquish command of the attacking forces here, had committed suicide.

Bring in Food Supplies.

The danger of a shortage of food supplies was alleviated here when barriers on the western borders of the international settlement were opened to allow large quantities of vegetables and meats to come in from Chinese sources.

Slaughter house employés declined to work while Japanese airplanes were flying overhead, but relief crews carried on.

Rice supplies were considered adequate for the natives. Settlement authorities arranged to obtain large quantities from river points, where shipments were held up by simultaneous outbreaks of hostilities.

Gen. Chen Min Chu, Chinese Nationalist minister of communications, yesterday declared that "not a single inch of territory will be yielded to the Japanese by the 19th Chinese army as long as a single man is left to fight."

Ready to Sacrifice Lives.

The former commander of the 19th said every soldier in the army was determined to offer his life for his country and was willing to make the sacrifice as the price of national existence.

"China is willing to accept any proposal which is just and which conforms with international law," he said. "We are willing to seek peace through diplomatic channels, if the powers of the world realize who is guilty of destroying world peace."

Nanking Calms Down.

NANKING, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Nanking, which was evacuated by British and American women and children yesterday following a bombardment by Japanese warships, was returning to normal today.

Some of the refugees came back to the city. Merchants reported that stocks of rice were large and that more foodstuffs were expected.

Japanese Fortify Concession.

HANKOW, China, Feb. 5 [Friday]. —(AP)—Japanese in Hankow, fearing an attack by the Chinese, worked feverishly to fortify their concession today. Barbed wire barricades and sandbag fortifications were thrown up. No Japanese ventured outside the concession.

Italian Ships Sail for Shanghai.

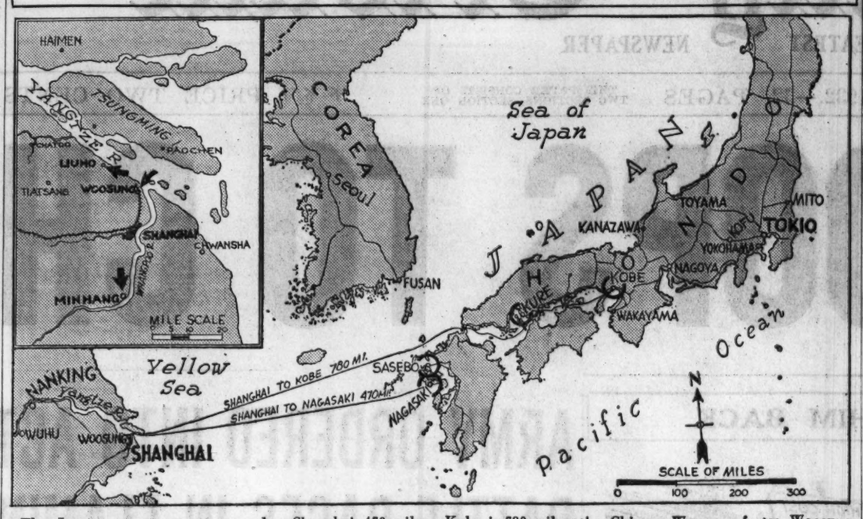
JAPAN'S STRATEGY IN DRIVE TO CAPTURE SHANGHAI



The Japanese government yesterday ordered a division of 11,000 troops to Shanghai. These will be the first land forces to take part in the offensive against Shanghai.

The point in Japan from where these troops will embark is a military secret. The port of Nagasaki is closest to Shanghai, 470 miles. Kobe is 780 miles away. Other possible ports of embarkation are the naval bases of Sasebo and Kure.

The map inset shows the probable Japanese tactics after the troops are landed. They are expected to disembark at three points—Liuho, north of the Chinese Woosung forts; Woosung, which Japanese warships are now shelling, and Minhang, south of Shanghai. The Japanese would thus be in a position to advance on the city from north and south and attack the Chinese lines from the rear.

HOOVER PONDERS NEXT MOVE TO END WAR IN EAST

Failure of Peace Efforts Worries Washington.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—Faced by failure of its peace efforts in the Shanghai crisis, President Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson conferred late today regarding the next step to be taken by this government.

Earlier in the day new protests against the Japanese use of the international settlement as a base for military operations against Chinese forces were delivered to the Japanese foreign office at Tokio. Counter peace suggestions may be dispatched to Tokio within the next few days, it was indicated.

Crush Peace Hopes.

Arrival of the Japanese reply to the American-British peace suggestions crushed the hopes of state department officials for immediate peace. One high administration leader summarized the general administration view late today with the comment that the Hoover government was "very disappointed" that Japan could not accept the proposals for ending hostilities and settling the Manchurian-Shanghai controversy.

The latest reports reaching Washington tonight led high navy and army officials to predict that the landing of Japanese reinforcements in Shanghai late today marked the beginning of a new phase of the Japanese offensive in China which would result in the occupation of Hankow and other Yangtze river ports. One of the keenest observers of Japanese tactics predicted the Japanese planned to take over all of Manchuria and join the Shanghai forces with those now operating in the Manchurian sector.

Military opinion is that the Japanese military commander will squeeze the Chinese troops out by attacking Chapei from two sides.

Japanese to Guard Repairs.

A message from Edwin S. Cunningham, American consul general at Shanghai, regarding the destruction of the American owned Commercial Pacific cable and the Eastern Extension cable stated that Japanese officials had expressed willingness to protect repair men working on the cables on condition the Woosung forts were in the control of Japanese marines.

Following the receipt of the Japanese reply to the American-British peace proposals and the receipt of the Cunningham and other dispatches from Shanghai, Secretary of State Stimson called in Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, and Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff of the army, for a long conference with state department officials on the general situation.

Later a state department spokesman said possible future developments in China were discussed.

Pending further study of the Japanese reply, state department officials declined any comment other than the communication was disappointing. It was made known, however, that in presenting the communication to Ambassador Forbes at Tokio, Japanese officials had expressed willingness to receive further peace suggestions. When a new peace move will be made was not announced.

Washington officials expressed gratification today over the action of Japanese officials in removing their troops from the American and British sectors in the international settlement and isolating them in the Hongkew district, a considerable distance from the largest concentration of American nationals and their property.

BRITONS OVERJOYED AS MELLON IS CHOSEN AS ENVOY TO LONDON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 4.—A cry of joy arose today from the British press and officials over the appointment of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Mellon as ambassador to Great Britain to succeed Charles Dawes. The Pilgrims club is polishing up its old loving cup, the English Speaking Union is getting cooks to work for a welcome banquet, and financiers and politicians are figuring out new arguments in favor of war debt cancellation.

British officials are convinced that the reason for Mellon's appointment is because President Hoover favors cancellation of the war debts and is sending over an avowed cancellationist to negotiate a settlement. Everywhere Mellon's recent speech in favor of scaling down the debt is quoted and the conclusion is drawn that if he said so much in the United States he is open to persuasion to go the whole way once he arrives in England.

The fact that the ancient University of Cambridge conferred a rare honorary degree on him last summer also is recalled.

in paragraph 5 of the powers' note is not acceptable to the Japanese government."

Use of the western section of the Chinese eastern railway in Manchuria for Japanese troop movements from Tsitsihar to Harbin was discussed by Alexander Troyanovsky, soviet ambassador to Japan, and the Japanese foreign minister.

It was understood the Russian ambassador pointed out that a further agreement would have to be completed before the Japanese might utilize the road. Russia already has conditionally agreed to the use of the Changchun-Harbin spur for Japanese military purposes.

The foreign office did not consider these new representations by Russia to be a protest. The ambassador, it was said, acted without specific instructions from Moscow and his visit to the foreign minister was entirely friendly.

BOTH SIDES NAB NEWSPAPER MAN IN BATTLE ZONE

SHANGHAI, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Benson Currie, British newspaperman, returned to the international settlement tonight after being successively a captive of each side in the Sino-Japanese conflict.

Entering Chapei in an attempt to rescue the mother of a Chinese friend, Currie was arrested by the Chinese and detained one day. On his release he was promptly rearrested by the Japanese as he was making his way out and was held another day. He has resumed his duties with the volunteer corps and is guarding the settlement border.

Currie went into the battle area on Sunday carrying a British union jack as his only protection. He had previously brought back his wife and two children from one of the most dangerous sectors on the front.

Moline, Ill., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—The first case of leprosy ever to be reported in Moline was reported today. Mrs. Josie Finkel, 64, was found to be in the advanced stages and has been isolated.

SIXTH TREATY CRUISER FOUND FAULTY; HAS CRASHED STERN POST

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Repairs and improvements to the 10,000 ton "treaty" cruiser Salt Lake City, which was commissioned as the first of her type more than two years ago, are being completed at the Brooklyn navy yard at a cost of about $200,000, it was learned today. The cost of welding a cracked stern post, which was discovered when the ship was placed in drydock, is included in the repair bill.

Discovery of the defective stern post —the huge casting which supports the rudder—brings to six the number of "treaty" cruisers which have been found to have some fault. Only two of the eight vessels of this type now in commission—the Pensacola, which is now south with the fleet at Guantanamo, Cuba, and the Houston, now at Shanghai, China, as flagship of the Asiatic fleet—have escaped this fault, although all of the defective ships have been repaired or the stern castings have been replaced either at the expense of the government or of the builders.

Other repairs or improvements undertaken which are expected to increase the fighting power and general effectiveness of the Salt Lake City include the installation of anti-rolling tanks to dampen the excessive jerky roll of the cruiser, the rebricking of oilers, the installation of metal plates around the fireroom blower ducts on the main deck, the installation of a movie shack on the main deck, and a change in the design of the bridge.

NORWEGIAN ARMY CHIEF ESCAPES DAGGER ATTACK

OSLO, Feb. 4.—(AP)—An attack last Tuesday on Maj. Quisling, Norwegian minister of defense, in which one or more of his assailants first tried to stab the minister, then threw pepper in his face and knocked him unconscious, was disclosed in a police statement tonight. He was not seriously hurt and was able to return to work the next day. A reward of $900 has been offered for information leading to the arrest of the assailants.

When the minister went to his office to fetch some documents, the police statement said, he was suddenly set upon by one or more unidentified persons.

"On entering his private office which was in darkness, an attempt was made to stab the minister in the back with a knife," the police said. "He succeeded in evading the knife, but received a violent blow on the head and at the same time pepper was thrown in his face."

CHINESE DEVISE PLAN TO COMBAT JAPANESE ARMY

Withdrawal to Interior May Be Strategy.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 4.—Although Chinese troops, due to their numerical superiority and greater familiarity with and adaptability to the present type of fighting, which consists of street to street, alley to alley, and house to house clashes, have been successful in repelling the Japanese forces attempting to capture Shanghai, the question that is uppermost in the minds of Shanghai residents as well as of the allied military units, is what is likely to happen when the Japanese bring a division of their regular troops in accordance with plans announced today in Tokio.

I discussed the question with the Chinese military leaders today at their Chenju headquarters near Shanghai. The Chinese believe the Japanese plan to land troops at three points adjacent to the city—first at the village of Liuho, on the banks of the Yangtze river north of Woosung; second, at Woosung, and third, up the river from Woosung at the village of Minhang, which is south of Shanghai on the bank of the Whangpoo. It is believed this is the reason for the Japanese bombardment of the Chinese forts at Woosung, where the Chinese garrison has managed so far to hold out.

Chinese May Move to Interior.

The Chinese plans have not been disclosed, but in event the Japanese land a superior force with better equipment and try to outflank the Chinese positions, a Chinese withdrawal to the interior is considered inevitable. The Japanese, however, will undoubtedly still experience difficulties, since the Shanghai hinterland is low and flat and a criss-crossed network of canals makes military movements hazardous and slow, and will enable the Chinese to follow a bandit and guerilla program similar to that used in Manchuria.

Foreign military commanders, who will in the next few days have a force of 12,000 or 15,000 men available within the international settlement here, are unable to explain the mystery of the Japanese military activities, which have settled down to daily airplane bombings and an interchange of artillery and machine gunnings, with minor forays in armored cars into the Chinese lines.

Drive Fails to Materialize.

It has daily been forecast that the Japanese are ready to make a determined drive to clear the Chapei area of Chinese troops but no advance has as yet developed, thus enabling the Chinese to mass more and more troops about Shanghai and environs.

The situation has reached a point where the Japanese, observers declare, due to the political conditions in Japan, cannot afford to permit the present deadlock to continue indefinitely since the Chinese attitude and confidence are growing stronger.

Instead of intimidating the Chinese government and forcing its compliance with the Japanese demands in Manchuria and the Japanese demand that the boycott be lifted, Japanese activities at Shanghai have had the opposite effect, causing a further intensification of anti-Japanese activities throughout the country. Furthermore, the withdrawal of the Chinese government to Honanfu, in the interior, has created a baffling situation from the Japanese military standpoint.

Says China Can Stand Conflict.

Gen. Wu Teh-chen, mayor of the Shanghai Chinese city, who is an experienced military commander and was educated in Japan and Honolulu, said today that China is better able to stand the strain of a long drawn out conflict than Japan, since China is 90 per cent agricultural and can manage to live in some way while Japan's industrialism is largely dependent on Chinese trade and cannot stand the strain indefinitely.

The more troops Japan sends to China, the quicker the end will come, the mayor said, unless Japan can obtain financial backing from the United States and Europe.

Japanese shells today put out of business the American Commercial Pacific cable, the British Eastern extension of the Japanese line connecting Shanghai and Nagasaki, and the Chinese line connecting with Chefoo. This left only one submarine cable, the Danish Great Northern, working.

The Japanese bombardment raised a furore of excitement and indignation among neutrals. More than thirty shells or fragments fell among the oil storage tanks of the American Texaco company, while one solid shell passed entirely through the oil tank belonging to the British Asiatic Petroleum company.

Other shells dropped on the campus of the American Baptist college on the banks of the Whangpoo river a few miles outside Shanghai. As a result the American and other foreign consulates lodged strong protests with the Japanese authorities.

Denies Japs Had Permission.

A high American military commander, stationed at Shanghai for some time, today emphatically repudiated Japanese claims that the neutral commanders here sanctioned the Japanese action in establishing military lines in the native city of Chapei.

The American officer explained what steps the neutral commanders took to defend the international settlement. Several nations took part in the conference, but the leading part was taken by the British, American and Japanese commanders because of the Japanese interests.

When the conference opened, the American commander explained in most definite terms his instructions from Washington. They were to the effect that the American forces are here exclusively for the protection of lives and properties of American citizens.

Troops Around Settlement.

The American commander explained that his instructions were later amended to the effect that in the event of a serious attack upon the borders of the international settlement endangering American lives, that American marines would be used to defend a section of the settlement's borders.

Upon this basis the American commander agreed to stand responsible for the patrolling and guarding of a section of the border, the so-called American section, which separates the settlement from the Chinese controlled Chapei area and is between three and a half and four miles long.

American marines are now patrolling this border exclusively. Where bridges or roads cross the border connecting the Chinese territory, marines have the assistance of the local British police or the Chinese police under municipal control.

WASHINGTON GUNMAN AMUCK; SHOOTS TWO GIRLS, THEN A MAN

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—A gunman riding in a large black sedan spread terror throughout the northwestern section of Washington tonight, shooting down two high school girls and a federal inspector. The girls were not dangerously wounded, but the man's condition is grave. Police expressed the opinion that the gunman, not yet captured, is a maniac.

The two girls were shot with slugs resembling machine gun bullets while they were walking in Takoma park. The man was shot by the same man in front of his home at 3433 Mount Pleasant street.

The two girls are Miss Helen Andreus, 18, of 5811 Sixth street Northwest, and Miss Doris Beall, 16, of 1411 G street Southeast. Miss Andreus was struck twice, both slugs landing in her left arm, fracturing the bone and finding final lodgment in her pocketbook. Miss Beall was wounded in the left leg.

Gordon T. Backus, 51, of the forestry section of the department of agriculture, was more seriously injured. Three bullets struck him in the back.

Witnesses told police that the car moved slowly from the curbing as a stream of bullets showered the sidewalk where the girls were walking. Twenty minutes later the same car, a sedan with Maryland license plates, sped past the corner of Mount Pleasant and Newton streets, where Backus was walking en route home from a bakery. One bullet struck him under the heart and surgeons tonight were performing an emergency operation.

REDS HOIST FLAG ATOP TOWER OF GENEVA CHURCH

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

GENEVA, Feb. 4.—After a large red flag had flown for two days from the tower of St. Peter's cathedral here, the chief of police received a telephone call asking if the state council of Geneva had hoisted the banner.

The chief rushed to the cathedral but was unable to bring the red flag down. A fire brigade also failed to remove the banner as a whole, but various efforts tore it to bits.

VINSON TO PRESS EARLY ACTION ON WARSHIP BILL

Moved by Situation in Far East.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Chairman Carl Vinson [Dem., Ga.], of the house naval affairs committee will call his committee into session next week to consider reporting out the Vinson one half billion dollar warship authorization bill, he disclosed today.

The serious situation in China, with the receipt of scores of messages from adequate navy people urging that the United States embark at once upon a new warship building program to offset the advances registered by Japan as a naval power, prompted the Georgia Democrat to put the question of reporting out his measure to the house for action up to the committee.

Chairman Vinson announced several weeks ago he would force a naval authorization bill to a vote in the house. Later house Democratic leaders and President Hoover frowned on the proposal to authorize new warships and the bill was sidetracked.

Pressure is understood to have been applied to members of congress, particularly those on the naval affairs committee, for definite action because of the far eastern situation. Only two days ago a delegation of 400 women called in person to demand that Mr. Vinson bring his bill to the floor at an early date. Mr. Vinson told them that he was entirely willing and anxious to take this action but was blocked by decision of the party organization.

The Vinson bill would authorize construction of 120 ships, including aircraft carriers, six inch gun cruisers, submarines and destroyers. The construction would be spread over a period of ten years, with a proviso that vessels not begun during that time could be laid down at a later date. Definite provision is made in the bill for year to year construction through a paragraph directing the secretary of the navy to submit estimates for each year's construction.

CLAIMS 115 YEARS; DEAD.

Robert Bell, 512 East 35th street, a Negro, who said he was 115 years old, died yesterday while police were taking him to the county hospital. He drove a horse and wagon to Chicago from Vicksburg, Miss., in 1925. Bell was a servant of confederate officers during the civil war.

FLEET FLAGSHIP FINDS NO ACTION FOURTH DAY OUT

Study Relative Forces of Sham Battle.

ABOARD U. S. S. CALIFORNIA, Feb. 4.—(AP)—There is little of war, even of make believe war, to be seen from the bridge of Admiral Richard Leigh's flagship, the battleship California, on this fourth day of the 1932 maneuvers. The passage of the Blue fleet is still uneventful, as it carries the expeditionary force of marines and soldiers to retake the Hawaiian islands, where the enemy, known as "Black," is entrenched.

"In this period of calm we are all giving further study to the relative forces engaged in this year's grand joint army and navy exercise," said Capt. C. M. Austin, assistant chief of staff of the U. S. navy.

Foe Has Land Forces.

Officials who composed the problem for the make believe war gave Black all the army troops normally stationed in the islands, augmented by the local reserves. To them is added the submarines, mine layers, and mine sweepers of the navy, which usually are stationed at Pearl Harbor. Stationary and mobile artillery of all calibers and more than 100 planes also are given the Black forces.

With the equipment and personnel numbering between 15,000 and 20,000 men, the Black commander, Maj. Gen. Briant H. Wells, is called on to maintain his control of the islands. Rear Admiral George T. Pettengill commands the naval units of the Black forces.

Asserts "Black" is Inferior.

"Given so inferior a naval force, Black has no means of checking our advance on the islands," Capt. Austin said.

"Therein lies the first essential, and the most important one, to ultimate victory in a war on or over the ocean, namely, control of the sea. Given an open sea for us and a closed one for Black, sooner or later we win. If more troops, planes, ships and supplies are wanted, we can call for them and they can come. Black can not look to his homeland for succor as long as this condition prevails."

Black Fleet Ready to Fight.

HONOLULU, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The Black fleet, composed of mine craft and submarines at Pearl harbor, bustled today with apparent preparations for putting to sea to intercept the Blue fleet steaming from the mainland to "capture" Hawaii.

Several mine craft berthed in a dock near the battleship Pennsylvania, which arrived at the naval base yesterday. Wharves were crowded with trucks bearing sailors, marines, and soldiers.

It was believed the Black forces would be prepared to put landing parties on other islands if the Blue attackers land there. The "attack" may start any time after 5 a. m., Saturday.

COST TO FEED YANK FORCES IN SHANGHAI IS $60,000 FOR 3 WEEKS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—(AP)—It will cost the government $60,000 to feed the army, navy and marine forces in Shanghai for three weeks. Rear Admiral Joseph J. Cheatham, paymaster general of the navy, took only 26 hours to communicate with Admiral Montgomery M. Taylor, commander in chief of the Asiatic fleet and buy food for 6,000 men.

A three weeks' supply will be loaded on the President Taft, sailing from Seattle Feb. 6 and will be used by the American contingent after Feb. 23.

Mt. Vernon Will Have P.O. for One Day Only—Feb. 22

The postoffice department is setting up facilities to secure cancellation on bi-centennial stamps to aid the Washington bi-centennial and to give stamp collectors, opportunity to secure a rare specimen.

JAPANESE SEIZE HARBIN; CHASE FLEEING CHINESE

HARBIN, Manchuria, Feb. 5.—[Friday.]—(AP)—Japanese troops entered Harbin, second largest city in Manchuria, today after smashing through Chinese forces. The headquarters of Ting Chao, the Chinese leader, were deserted. It was believed he and his higher officers already had left the city.

Japanese and Chinese artillery made Harbin a battleground during the night in a stiff duel that ceased shortly after midnight, indicating the Chinese retreat had begun.

Several Japanese shells exploded near the headquarters building of the Chinese Eastern railway in the "old town" of Harbin. Soviet Russian officials of the railroad held an emergency meeting to consider the situation.

See Plot to Involve Russia.

The Chinese had placed two field guns in an open area immediately in front of the railroad's headquarters and replied to the Japanese attack. Japanese authorities said they believe the Chinese placed the guns there to embroil Japan with soviet Russia.

A Japanese column, commanded by Gen. Jiro Tamon, conqueror of Tsitsihar and Kowpangtze in previous Manchurian campaigns of the present conflict with China, began entering Harbin early in the morning. Japanese forces pursued and airplanes bombed the Chinese troops who fled to the northwest.

American, European, and Japanese residents of Harbin were believed safe.

Chinese Resist Attack.

Gen. Hasebe's brigade, forming the Japanese advance force, bivouacked outside the city last night, waiting until daybreak before entering. The artillery, however, continued hostilities far into the night.

The Chinese offered stubborn resistance, but after Japanese airplanes bombed the Chinese positions Ting Chao's men, except for one small unit, broke and fled toward the frozen Sungari river. The retreating Chinese are reported to have looted the Fuchiatun Chinese quarter and burned buildings.

Japanese End Conquest.

Japan's occupation of Harbin means that the last important city in Manchuria has passed into her hands and that a military adventure that began last September has at last reached a successful completion.

Harbin is the most valuable city in central Manchuria and its 220,000 population is second only to that of Mukden. It is the headquarters of the Sino-Russian Chinese Eastern railway and the shipping center for a rich wheat and soy bean region. It is the hub of the so-called Russian "zone of influence."

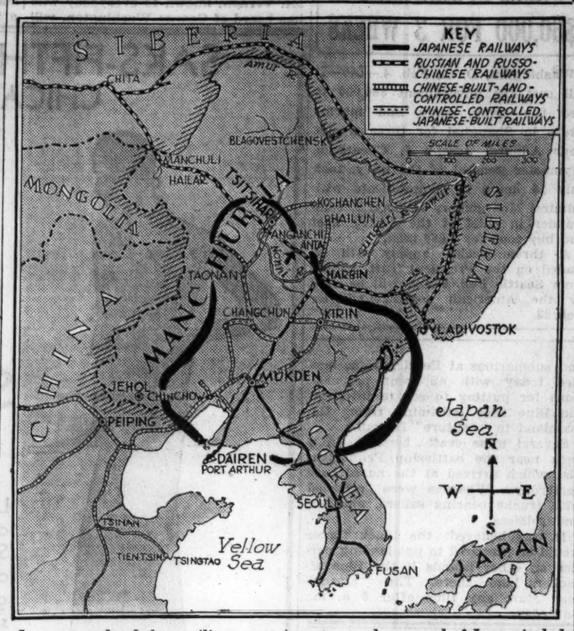
A week ago acting Foreign Commissar Karakhan in Moscow informed the Japanese ambassador that Russia might be forced to protest if Japanese troops entered the city. Previously Russia warned Japan against using the Chinese-Eastern railway for transporting her troops, but later waived her objections.

Chinese Advance on Tsitsihar.

CHANGCHUN, Manchuria, Feb. 5.—[Friday.]—(AP)—Chinese troops were reported today to be advancing toward Tsitsihar, hoping to take advantage of the departure of part of the Japanese garrison there to aid in the conflict at Harbin.

Two Chinese infantry regiments stationed at Koshan, northeast of Tsitsihar, which was captured by Japanese last autumn, began the advance, dispatches said, in which Chinese cavalry units joined.

JAPANESE ARMY CAPTURES HARBIN



Japan completed her military conquest of Manchuria today when her army captured Harbin, far north of the former Japanese "zone of influence."

Nearly all the railways in Manchuria are now under control of Japan, including a portion of the Chinese Eastern railway, in which Russia and China each own a half interest. Heavy circle indicates territory now held by Japanese.

ASK LAW TO END WHOOPEE TRIPS OF ALIEN LINERS

Seek to Save Tourist "Wet" Traffic.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—An attempt to counteract the attractions of wet foreign flag steamships by prohibitive law was begun today when Senator White [Rep., Me.] and Representative Davis [Dem., Tenn.], chairman of the house merchant marine committee, introduced bills designed to prohibit the joy ride "cruises to nowhere" which have proved too popular for the comfort of American ship owners.

The measures culminate a series of protests by American ship operators, who have seen the tourist trade go to foreign vessels with open bars instead of following the prohibition flag of American ships.

Use Tempting Ads.

Cruises from New York to Halifax or Bermuda or Cuba and back again—cruises advertised in moistly romantic phrases — and Caribbean cruises, for which some foreign lines have employed their largest and most sumptuous vessels, have cut into the tourist revenue of American lines.

One bill would enable the shipping board to classify as a "fighting ship" any foreign vessel used in a particular trade so as to pr cure "unwarranted and excessive competition with American ships." Such "fighting ships" would thereupon be refused customs clearance.

The other bill would bring foreign vessels making round trip cruises within the scope of the coastwise shipping laws, which now preserve the coastal trade for American vessels.

Shows Growth of "Cruises."

"From Nov. 18, 1931, to Jan. 14, 1932," said Senator White and Mr. Davis, in introducing their bills, "28 cruises were made, and 64 additional cruises are scheduled between Jan. 20 and April 22, 1932. In the winter season of 1930-'31 there were 51 such cruises, and during the summer of 1931 56 cruises, many to 'nowhere.' As evidence of the extremes to which these foreign lines are going, they have succeeded in getting the Cuban congress to pass a bill reducing the tonnage dues on cruise ships arriving at Cuban ports between Nov. 15 and May 31 by 50 to 75 per cent on ships."

Woman Sues Hospital and Doctor for $200,000

Mrs. Agatha Janusz, 28 years old, 2516 North 74th avenue, Elmwood Park, yesterday filed the praecipe of a $200,000 damage suit against the Keystone hospital and Dr. Lewis Kent Eastman, owner and chief surgeon, as co-defendants. Mrs. Janusz's attorney, T. C. Toudor, said that he would charge malpractice. He said that Mrs. Janusz's left arm had become paralyzed after an operation for a fracture suffered in an automobile accident in February, 1930.

CHARGE OF BOOTLEG PRESCRIPTIONS CALLED INSULT TO MEDICINE

"An insult to the medical profession," was the way Dr. John R. Harger, president of the Chicago Medical society, yesterday described Dr. Arthur Dean Bevan's statement to a subcommittee of the United States senate that 90 per cent of the doctors' prescriptions for liquor are bootleg prescriptions.

Dr. Bevan's assertion was not based on fact, Dr. Harger declared, and added:

"Any political group which would stoop to such methods in securing prohibition legislation is vicious and un-American.

"Assuming that Dr. Bevan has been correctly quoted, his conclusions are gathered from his association with a limited group who know nothing of conditions among the medical profession in general. Authentic statistics on liquor prescriptions are not available and his opinions are based on erroneous generalities.

"That liquor plays an important part in the treatment of the sick seems proved by the experience and study of hundreds of scientific medical men throughout the world. At the same time no class of men or women anywhere appreciate more the effects of promiscuous use of alcohol than the medical profession. That a large percentage of the profession should in any way contribute to the evasion of the law or the illegal consumption of liquor is preposterous."

DISAPPEARANCE OF TWO STUDENTS FRETS HARVARD

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Harvard university authorities today expressed the gravest concern over the disappearance of two business school students who have been missing from their rooms since Sunday.

Floyd J. Stewart, 23, of 605 6th street, Garden City, Kas., and Nathaniel E. Jones, 23, of Billerica, left their rooms without change of clothing, apparently without intention to remaining away over night.

Friends of the two students, however, were inclined tonight to the theory that they may have decided to go to some winter resort, Montreal or Lake Placid, as both were interested in winter sports, although not themselves participants. Both were good students and their absence from classes since Saturday would not materially have affected their standing, it was said.

HEAD OF JAPAN'S NAVY JUSTIFIES SHANGHAI ACTION

Says Chinese Aggression Caused the "War."

The following explanation of Japan's position in the present Sino-Japanese conflict was written by Admiral Mineo Osumi, minister of the navy, who is in general charge over

First and foremost, we have done the activities of the Japanese bluejackets and warships at Shanghai.

BY ADMIRAL MINEO OSUMI.
[Navy Minister of Japan.]
[Copyright; 1932: By the Associated Press.]

TOKIO, Feb. 4.—We think we owe the world an explanation of our activities at Shanghai in view of the misunderstandings and to avoid the result of misinformation concerning the present conditions there.

nothing that was not justified by the strict need of protection for our nationals from the persecution of the Chinese soldiers and our actions have been entirely defensive and passive.

The trouble started on Jan. 28. A Chinese force suddenly attacked us while we were, in pursuance of the previous agreement of the foreign garrison commanders, proceeding to the stations allotted to us to guard. There was no alternative for us but to fire in return.

"Had Nothing to Gain."

It is not common sense to believe that our handful of bluejackets would assume an offensive against a force tenfold larger. When the conflict began we had 2,000 against 30,000 Chinese. We had every disadvantage to suffer and nothing to gain by starting hostilities. We took the final action only because we were driven to the last extremity by the behavior of the Chinese soldiery.

The charge that Japan used the international settlement as a basis for attack also is unfounded. Our force took up stations to protect Japanese residents according to the previous agreement with the military authorities of the other powers and the Chinese happened to launch their attack against this section. We were compelled to defend the point whither the attack was directed as an act of self-defense, pure and simple.

"Criticism Unduly Harsh."

Criticisms of the Japanese air bombing have been unnecessarily harsh. They could only arise from ignorance of the actual situation. That was the only choice left for our small force, facing overwhelming odds. Moreover, before the beginning of the bombing, we scouted carefully, identifying the points where the enemy was massing in close formation, and then gave full warning, allowing ample time for them to heed.

We dropped bombs on their armored trains or points where they were operating artillery against us. All sorts of rumors afloat abroad are calculated to breed ill feeling against Japan. For example, there is talk of increasing friction between Japanese and American sailors, or of the Japanese navy's lack of the coöperative spirit.

As far as we know there is absolutely no foundation for these stories. We honestly endeavored to coöperate with the foreign garrisons, as far as the local circumstances and the requirements of self-defense permitted.

Deplores Misunderstandings.

Our public in Japan also ought to dispel the notion that the Americans and British are unfriendly to us. They were very active in their efforts to restore order and stabilize the situation. They have been offering their good offices to save Shanghai from curt warfare. They have never tried deliberately to interfere to our disadvantage.

Such misunderstandings should be dispelled immediately. I hope the foreign public will make allowances for the fact that in inevitable hurry and confusion such as that at Shanghai sometimes reports are cabled which, although honestly meant, do grave injustice to one party. Most of the charges against the Japanese navy at Shanghai appear to have resulted from such circumstances.

The world can trust the traditions and discipline of the Japanese navy.

Ruins of Lost Plane, 8 Dead, Found in California Hills

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—The seared and crumpled wreckage of the trimotored Century-Pacific airliner, which vanished a week ago between Bakersfield and this city with three women and five men abroad, was found today atop the snow laden coast range four miles northwest of Lebec, the broken and charred bodies of its cargo of humans huddled in a gruesome mass in the remnants of the cabin.

Discovery of the wreckage was made shortly after 2 p. m. by Paul Appodace, a rider from the Tejon ranch, on the north side of Johnson's canyon. The scene of the tragedy is approximately 65 miles northwest of Los Angeles and 39 miles southeast of Bakersfield, where the ill fated flight started last Friday afternoon.

The small canyon in which the ship crashed is situated in the upper reaches of the Tehachapi range about three miles from Old Fort Tejon.

Appodace, an Indian, familiar with every corner of the section, was led to the scene by three shepherd dogs.

Seven of the bodies were massed together in the nose of the cabin, while the eighth, apparently having fallen free of the plane in its earthward plunge, lay a few feet from the wreckage and was not so badly burned.

Occupants of the ill fated ship were Chief Deputy Sheriff Frank Dewar of Los Angeles county, 48; Spencer B. Swan, 71, former New York building contractor, Pomona, Cal.; Marie Combs, 18, Hollywood theater usherette; Mrs. F. H. Fickelson, 20, wife of a San Diego business man; Miss Nita McGrath, 32, Berkeley business woman, formerly of Seattle; J. H. Polhemus, 55, San Francisco importer; W. H. Smith, 40, retired army officer, San Francisco, and the pilot, J. V. Sandbloom, 42, Glendale, Cal., who had 4,400 hours in the air to his credit.

The three 250 horse power engines were embedded in the ground. Two of them despite the impact were intact. The position of the plane indicated it crashed after an almost vertical dive into the canyon.

While the slope was covered with several feet of snow, the spot where the plane struck was bare. The ship apparently stayed right side up after it hit.

Indications were that none of the occupants had an opportunity to even open a cabin door or attempt to leap.

The fact that fire followed, according to veteran airmen shows that Sandbloom had no warning of impending disaster and was fighting the descent with the controls when the crash came.

Physical evidence indicates that Sandbloom was flying "blind" in a raging blizzard and, faced with slight hope of continuing south, had attempted to turn back to Bakersfield when death struck. The ship crashed into the north wall of the canyon.

JOBLESS HELP UP TO STATES, RITCHIE HOLDS

Federal Aid Last Resort, Governor Declares.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, Democratic candidate for President, declared in an address tonight that enlightened governmental leadership was the only means of providing relief for unemployment distress.

The Maryland governor declared that until all local means of relief were exhausted the federal government should keep its hands off.

"I, for one, do not believe it has been shown yet that the resources of the local communities and of the states to meet their respective responsibilities have been exhausted," he declared.

Help If Required.

"No state in which the local resources have not been exhausted has any right to ask for unemployment relief from the federal government. Any state in which such resources have been exhausted has every right to ask such relief, and in such case the only question is what form the relief shall take.

"The real question, however, is one of fact, and I have heard of no effort the government has yet made to ascertain from duly constituted authorities the exact conditions in each state the efforts which have been made to meet the situation.

Cites Taxation Burden.

"It is that kind of alert and understanding leadership which it seems to me should be exerted by the government in the present emergency, before we embark on any huge appropriation for federal unemployment relief, with the burden of taxation that would inevitably place on the taxpayers of the country and in the face of the conceded failure of our long established national policy which would be involved."

Gov. Ritchie attacked the proposal for cancellation of war debts due America on the ground such debts are outstanding in liberty bond issues and are part of the national budget, which, if not paid by the debtor nations, must be paid by the American people.

Attacks Tariff Laws.

The executive reiterated his attack on the present tariff laws as having destroyed much of the United States' trade abroad, and forced American manufacturers to foreign shores. He assailed the federal farm board as having failed in its mission to aid the farmer, and for what he termed its entrance into private business through trading its surplus wheat for Brazilian coffee.

He also attacked the centralization of power in the federal government and its failure to coördinate transportation agencies under a spirit of "live and let live."

MAXIE EISEN'S BROTHER HELD AS STORE BURGLAR

Jack Eisen, 1257 Macedonia street, brother of Maxie Eisen, czar of the fish peddlers' association, was being held by Albany Park police last night on a burglary charge. Police were looking for a second man thought to have been wounded by policemen when the two were surprised burglarizing the shoe store of P. Bloom, 3642 Lawrence avenue.

Eisen was captured by Policeman John O'Malley. Policeman Andrew Schnell said he fired at the second man at close range when he jumped into an automobile to escape. Eisen's mother, Mrs. Celia Eisen, 65 years old, was questioned by Capt. Joseph Goldberg after police found $4,000 worth of stolen property in her home. She was released when she protested that she did not know the property had been concealed there.

STEALS CHICKENS FROM MOTHER, EX-PASTOR SAYS

Columbus, Ind., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Earl W. Stitt, 43, a former pastor living near here, confessed today that he is a member of a gang of chicken thieves, according to J. W. Foust, Bartholomew county sheriff. The former pastor admitted being involved in 24 thefts in which he stole 476 chickens, the sheriff said. Stitt, his son, John Leo Stitt, and Frank Kelley, 63, a farmer of Bartholomew county are held.

The former minister named Kelley as his accomplice.

Stitt, according to the confession, stole chickens from his own mother, Mrs. Eliza Stitt. He said he needed the money and intended to reimburse the owners as soon as he could.

FUGITIVES RETURN TO STRICKEN CUBAN CITY

Wreckage on San Francisco street in Santiago after earthquake of Feb. 3. Latest reports place the death toll at only nine and the number of injured at approximately 1,000. The property damage was estimated at between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000. [Associated Press Photo: Sent by phone.]

PLACE SANTIAGO QUAKE DEAD AT 9; MANY RETURNING

Martial Law Rules the Stricken City.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Cuba, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—This stricken city began to return to life late today as thousands of residents who had fled to the surrounding hills last night to sleep in the open, fearful of a repetition of Wednesday's earthquake, returned in little groups to their homes. The official death toll remained at nine, while it was estimated that more than a thousand persons had been treated for injuries.

HARRY F. GUGGENHEIM. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

United States Ambassador Guggenheim flew here from Havana today and informed the state department in Washington that a large part of the business district must be evacuated and demolished. He estimated the total damage at between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000. He informed authorities that food and medicine were on the way on naval vessels.

Martial Law in City.

Business remained paralyzed and martial law ruled the city. The streets are being cleared and no further catastrophies are anticipated. The electric light lines and water mains generally are intact. Residents of the city are staying in the open to evade the possible collapse of damaged buildings.

Searchers are sifting piles of wreckage for possible bodies of additional earthquake victims. No looting has been reported and orders have been issued to the militia to shoot looters on sight. Organization of relief for the hundreds of homeless and injured is well under way, with no acute shortages of food or medicine in sight.

No Serious Disorders.

Five hundred prisoners in the jail who had become restive through fear were transferred to Havana when troops arrived. There have been no serious disorders of any kind.

President Machado has been in constant telephone communication with local officials. He informed them that the house of representatives in special session at Havana passed a bill today giving Santiago credit of $1,000,000 for relief. Field kitchens will be set up to feed refugees at government expense.

An official statement declared that 80 per cent of the homes have been injured, and must be repaired or rebuilt

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—President Hoover and Huey Long, the new Louisiana senator, met for the first time this morning when Senator Long was presented to the President by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ernest Lee Jahncke, who is from New Orleans.

When Senator Long emerged from the President's office he was asked what he thought of the President.

"What kind of an impression did he make on you?" he was asked.

"Considering the miserable party he represents," replied Senator Long, "he is about as good as any of them."

LATEST DRY LAW CLUB DENOUNCED BY REP. R. A. HORR

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—If the latest piece of prohibition legislation fathered by Senator Wesley L. Jones [Rep., Wash.] "weren't so asinine, it would be appalling," declared Representative Ralph A. Horr of Seattle, the senator's fellow townsman, today.

Senator Jones, author of the notorious "Five and Ten law," recently introduced a resolution seeking to prohibit military or naval operation, construction, or residence in states without concurrent prohibition enforcement laws.

"Dry fanaticism would even destroy the army and navy in an attempt to force its view on the American people," said Representative Horr, who was elected to congress as a wet in 1930 and who is expected to oppose Senator Jones for the senatorship this fall.

"This is nothing more," he declared, "than the old dry cudgel waving over the heads of the American voters. The well known dry weapons of terrifying, intimidation, browbeating, and coercion are again being used."

Enjoins Brookfield School from Barring 2 Children

Judge William J. Lindsay issued a temporary injunction yesterday in the Superior court restraining school authorities of Brookfield from barring the two children of Arthur Lavac, a mechanic, from classes because they refused to present a physician's certificate of health when they returned after an absence. Lavac's bill stated that his trouble with the school authorities started when he refused to have his children vaccinated. The matter will come up again next Wednesday for hearing on a permanent order.

PUT BUSINESS IN GOVERNMENT IS GOV. MEIER'S PLEA

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Application of business principles to government and immediate action by the federal reconstruction finance corporation were advocated today by Gov. Julius L. Meier of Oregon at a luncheon at the Banker's club. Gov. Meier was the guest of Rabbi Jonah B. Wise of central synagogue, a former resident of that state, a number of leaders of civic, philanthropic, and financial interests were present at the luncheon.

Gov. Meier emphasized the fact that such aims in government were not necessarily a reform movement, but rather one that would urge the outstanding industrial, financial and professional leaders of a community to come forward for the benefit of all its members.

After pointing out that $4,750,000, had been saved for the taxpayers of Oregon during his first year in office, Gov. Meier explained that the cost of government in any locality can be reduced by the establishment of central control of bonded indebtedness and expenditures.

SENATE TO VOTE ON WAY TO SPEND $375,000,000 RELIEF

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—(AP)—The senate decided today to vote on whether the federal government will contribute $375,000,000 to care for the nation's unemployed.

The La Follette-Costigan bill gained the senate floor, however, in the face of strong possibility that it would be transformed into a Democratic proposal to provide $375,000,000 for road construction and a similar amount for loans to states.

The road fund would be used for giving jobs to unemployed and matching by states would not be required.

The senate agreed to take up the measure after two days of debate by Senators La Follette [Rep., Wis.], and Costigan [Dem., Colo.], the authors. They have recited the evidence they gathered in hearings and surveys and contend federal help is absolutely necessary to meet the emergency.

An amendment penalizing states which failed to repay sums loaned under the Democratic substitute was proposed in an amendment today by Senator Tydings [Dem., Md.].

EX-JUDGE OLSON BACKS MOVE TO RUN BRUNDAGE

lls Time Ripe for Chicago Governor.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Former Judge Harry Olson, who ice was a Deneen candidate for mayor with support of the Brundage camp and 24 years was chief justice of the Municipal court, was among the first yesterday to come out in support of the movement to run Edward J. Brundage, former attorney general, as a Chicago candidate for governor in the Republican primaries.

HARRY OLSON.

He declared himself in agreement with the theory that with three downstate candidates splitting the downstate vote—Omer N. Custer of Galesburg, Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom, and Len Small—the situation is almost made to order for a Chicago candidate who can command some organization support, provided an adequate campaign fund can be raised.

Calls Taxes Big Issue.

"Taxation is the great issue that affects every purse," said Judge Olson. "The people are getting wide awake to the orgy of tax spending and the burden placed on their backs.

"Mr. Brundage is overdue for governor. He ought to have been elected governor before. He is a man of ripe experience in affairs of government, of unsullied reputation, and he represents what is good in politics.

"I hope it will be possible for him to run, for Chicago and Cook county face a crisis in this coming primary election. The way things are now headed there is a possibility, unless an urgent fight is made, that politically Chicago may slip back to where it was a few years ago, and all the battling and reconstructive work may be lost.

"It has already been pointed out that an out and out Chicago candidates, with the support of groups who have been against the old régime, would have a fine chance of winning, for the downstate vote will be split by three downstate candidates. The time is ripe for the battle cry, 'A Chicago man for governor,' and Brundage fills the bill."

Deneen Leaders Busy.

The Deneen group was still busy on its county slate last night and had not reached the question of state candidates. Party laymen were urging that all factional differences between the two old groups be dropped and that the Deneen men indorse Brundage for governor, in case he should decide to become a candidate.

The Harding-Crowe-Brekke-et al entente met at the Morrison hotel to slate a candidate for the vacancy on the county board caused by the resignation of Mayor A. J. Cermak. Nobody seemed avid to take the place, especially with a 5 per cent assessment on salaries hanging over it, and a committee was appointed to drag out a candidate. Eden T. Brekke, west park commissioner, presided.

A one man revolt against the slate making was staged by Committeeman Harry Klatzco of the 46th ward. He got up and said it was a game of freeze out on the public.

Assails Slate Making Process.

"Slate making is out of tune with the spirit of the direct primary law," he said. "The principle of the law was to let the people have a chance to select their candidates. Slate making by a county committee, what is it but a foreclosure against the rights of the public? What right have a bunch of ward committeemen to step in and say 'these are the men you should nominate.' The people are sick and tired of being bossed around."

Democrats brought word back from Springfield that Michael L. Igoe, minority leader and national committeeman, says he will stick in the race for the governorship nomination. Business leaders of Logan Square and other northwest side sections yesterday sent to headquarters a boost for Clayton F. Smith, county recorder, for the governorship nomination, which is supposed to rest between Judge Henry Horner, Francis X. Busch and Mr. Smith.

Democratic petitions were out yesterday for Thomas J. O'Brien for congress in the 6th district, against Congressman James T. Igoe.

REPUBLICAN WOMEN HEAR MRS. GANN

WOMEN APPLAUD MRS. GANN AS SHE PRAISES HOOVER

Lauds Leadership at G. O. P. Luncheon.

Mrs. Dolly Gann, sister of the Vice President, yesterday took the rôle of a Hoover campaign orator at the luncheon which the Woman's National Republican club gave for her in the Congress hotel. She spoke before a throng of more than 600 women, that packed the gold room to its farthest recesses.

Flanked by prominent Republican women of the city and county; faced by hundreds more from the city, county and state, with additional scores bending over the balcony railing to listen, she urged a second term for Hoover and her appeal brought applause. Mrs. Gann was introduced by Mrs. Bertha Baur, state committeeman.

Hoover Greeting Brings Cheers.

Her first paragraph, in which she announced that she extended the personal greetings of Mr. Hoover, brought the room to its feet amid a storm of handclapping, and her next, in which she added the personal felicitations of Vice President Curtis, her brother, was the signal for even more enthusiasm. Periodically thereafter she was interrupted, as she read from the manuscript in her hand, by the demonstration of approval of her political colleagues as she delivered this defense of Republican policy, or that barb at the Democratic party.

No one sentiment expressed by the guest elicited quite such a gale of applause as her emphatic declaration that:

"Certainly the common sense of the people can be relied upon to reject the claim that President Hoover is responsible for the hard times that are harder anywhere else in the world than they are here."

"The Why of Democrats."

Just why there should be Democrats, she said, "remains in that realm of inscrutable mystery into which no mortal penetrates." But since they are coming to Chicago, they should be offered every courtesy, "to transact their futile but necessary business."

Which got the biggest laugh of the afternoon.

More important than any other issue in the coming campaign, Mrs. Gann asserted, is the one that Hoover should be returned to the White House. It should be the dominant issue because, she declared, no other man in the depression has done so great and such far reaching service in helping to combat the basis of the economic slump.

Meets All Present.

At the conclusion of the one address, Mrs. Gann asked that all the Republican women in the room come to the platform and be introduced to her. Each was presented by Mrs. Baur who was gay and chic in a spring ensemble of beige with a beige fox collar and a tiny brown turban. Mrs. Gann was in black satin with a white satin scarf and a black hat.

Among those attending were Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Mrs. Mabel Reinecke, Mrs. Edward J. Brundage, Mrs. Tiffany Blake, Mrs. Waller Borden, Mrs. Hubert Burnham, Mrs. Tracy C. Drake, Mrs. Erich Gerstenberg, Mrs. Ernest Graham, Mrs. Samuel Ettelson, Mrs. Loyal Davis, Mrs. William H. Cade, Mrs. Richard Barr of Joliet, Mrs. Oscar Carlstrom, Mrs. George E. Q. Johnson, Mrs. Murry Nelson, Mrs. Bessie Bragg Pierson, Mrs. John T. Mason of Aurora, Mrs. Bessie Ross, county recorder at Crown Point, Ind.; Mrs. John Cathcart of Danville, Mrs. J. H. Hill of Decatur, Mrs. W. S. Shenenfield of Clinton, Mrs. Paul Belch of Bloomington, Mrs. J. Shelton Smith of Lexington, and Mrs. Mary Silvis of Rock Island.

Mills to Succeed Mellon as Secretary of Treasury

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Undersecretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills of New York will succeed Andrew W. Mellon as secretary of the treasury. Announcement to this effect was made today at the White House, following Mr. Mellon's appointment as ambassador to Great Britain yesterday.

This cabinet change, the most important thus far during the Hoover administration, will eliminate the last survivor of the original Harding cabinet, which took office on March 4, 1921. It brings into the cabinet Mr. Mills, a younger man and a member of a wealthy family, who is known as one of the hardest working officials in Washington, and removes from the cabinet another wealthy man, who entered public life at the age of 66 and who, with advancing age, has permitted Mr. Mills to assume more and more of the burdens of the treasury department.

Await Mellon's Resignation.

Formal announcement of the appointment of Mr. Mills could not be made by the President in advance of the receipt of the resignation of Mr. Mellon as secretary, and this probably will not be tendered until the President sends his nomination for ambassador to the senate, and perhaps not until the senate confirms it. It is likely that Mr. Mills will be succeeded as undersecretary by Arthur Atwood Ballantine of New York, first assistant secretary.

Mr. Mellon will be confirmed by the senate without opposition, in the opinion of Republican and Democratic leaders who made a canvass of the situation. There will be a few votes against the confirmation of Mr. Mills, but this opposition will be very limited.

The three leading critics of Mr. Mellon in the senate, Senators James Couzens [Rep., Mich.] and Smith W. Brookhart [Rep., Ia.], and Senator Kenneth McKellar [Dem., Tenn.], informed party leaders that their hostility to some of Secretary Mellon's financial policies would not cause them to oppose confirmation of his nomination for ambassador.

Mills Confers with Senators.

Mr. Mills passed the morning among the senators. He conferred with the two party leaders, Senator James E. Watson [Rep., Ind.] and Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], and then talked with several other senators.

Senator Brookhart, one of the radical Republican group, who declared yesterday he would oppose the confirmation of Mr. Mills, seemed disposed today to go no further than to register a formal protest against Mr. Mills' appointment.

"I am opposed to the confirmation of Mr. Mills," Senator Brookhart said. "I expect to give the senate my reasons for opposing him."

Senator Brookhart, who had planned to organize an opposition to the confirmation of Mr. Mills, will not do so, but one or two other Republican radicals will vote against confirmation to uphold their views on legislation.

Predicts Confirmation.

"The senate will confirm Mr. Mellon as ambassador to Great Britain without opposition, and I expect to see Mr. Mills get an almost unanimous vote," said Senator Watson.

Senator Watson said that the sending of Mr. Mellon to London would not change the attitude of the Republicans in congress on extension of the moratorium or on the cancellation of intergovernmental debts. He expressed the opinion that, while Mr. Mellon was well qualified to express the administration's position on these matters, the government's policy would be decided by congress, and that Mr. Mellon's presence in London would not be of any advantage to those countries which are urging a further scaling down of the debts or extension of the moratorium.

Called "Presidential Pardon."

Representative Wright Patman [Dem., Tex.], sponsor of impeachment charges against Mr. Mellon, characterized the appointment of the retiring treasury head as ambassador to Great Britain as "a presidential pardon."

"The impeachment charges now become an academic question," he said. "His appointment is equal to a presidential pardon while the jury still has the case under advisement. This action practically dismisses the jury. You cannot impeach him if he leaves the office, but while he continues as secretary I intend to push my charges."

Parliament Howls Down New Austrian Government

VIENNA, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Cries from the gallery such as "we don't want your new government," "we want a new policy," and "we want work and bread," greeted the new Buresch cabinet in parliament today. Dr. Karl Buresch was forced to discontinue a recital of his program and it was only after the demonstrators had been thrown out that he could proceed.

Warrant Issued Charging Woman with Embezzlement

Municipal Judge James F. Fardy issued a warrant yesterday charging Mrs. Martha H. Miner, 7844 Clyde avenue, former cashier for the American Dental association, with embezzlement. Loyal T. Claridge, an official of the association, charged that a shortage of $6,741 had been discovered in her accounts.

CURLEY ASSERTS ROOSEVELT IS FOR DRY REFERENDUM

Al Smith Says He Hasn't Decided on Anything.

BY TOM PETTEY.

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—A national referendum on prohibition is favored by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, according to his intimate political friend, Mayor James M. Curley of Boston. Mayor Curley set forth Gov. Roosevelt's alleged position in a brief interview just before he sailed for a West Indies cruise. Gov. Roosevelt was in Lake Placid today.

Just about the same time this afternoon former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, whose silence has become the puzzle of more than one campaign headquarters, let it be known that he had not decided to announce his candidacy for the presidential nomination. The former governor expressed surprise when told his friends in Boston and Washington had received "definite assurance" that he would authorize the entry of his name in the approaching New England primaries.

"No decision has been made about anything," Mr. Smith told questioners.

Later in the evening at Mr. Smith's office in the Empire State building it was announced that Mr. Smith would make public a "political statement" at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. In most quarters it was taken for granted that the statement would be on Mr. Smith's attitude toward the presidential nomination.

Chats with Reporters.

Mayor Curley in his five minute chat with reporters predicted the nomination of Gov. Roosevelt at the Chicago convention, and said the governor had confided his dry referendum sentiment to him in a conversation last Friday.

"Perhaps I should not quote Gov. Roosevelt," said Mayor Curley, "but I am confident the governor's position on the Volstead act will be acceptable to the voters of the United States if the governor becomes the Democratic candidate.

"The people have had sufficient of the mistakes of Wall street and the mythical captains of industry. They are desirous of having some dependable progressive as candidate and in Roosevelt they feel they have one. We have not heard much of supermen in the last two years. They all seem to have died."

Sees Baker, Smith Out of Race.

Mayor Curley asserted Newton D. Baker virtually was eliminated as a Democratic prospect and said that "Al Smith is too intelligent a man to harbor illusions.

"There may be thirty politicians throughout Massachusetts who believe their own fortunes would be advanced if Smith were nominated, but I am sure if you were to question any hundred of the rank and file there you would find seventy of them for Roosevelt."

Mayor Curley said he believed repeal of the eighteenth amendment would be difficult at this time, but thought a popular referendum was generally desired.

In regard to former Gov. Smith's entering the New England primaries as a candidate for the presidential nomination, it is known that he had been giving serious consideration to such a move. Friends of Mr. Smith are confident he can win in New England and insist that Mayor Curley is seeking to ride into state leadership in Massachusetts on the Roosevelt boom.

The political opinion set forth by the Smith supporters here is that Mr. Smith will take the position that he cannot stop his friends fighting for him if they are determined to do so but that he does not care to make a personal effort in the states desiring to present his name.

SISTER WRONGED BY SLAIN YOUTH, ALLEN ADMITS

Police Reveal Story Told Night of Shooting.

Norristown, Pa., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—The statement that Francis A. Donaldson III. had betrayed 18 year old Rose Allen last August was, for the first time, introduced today into the trial of Edward H. B. Allen for the murder of his sister's sweetheart last Nov. 9.

The statement was part of Allen's own story of the killing and the family difficulties preceding it as told by him to the police immediately after he had shot Donaldson in the Allen apartment.

In this typewritten statement, read today from the witness stand, Allen asserted that he had not meant to kill Donaldson, although he had driven more than six miles to get the shotgun, that he did not "aim" the weapon when he confronted Donaldson, but that it "went off."

Police Captain Reads Story.

The Allen story was read to the jury by Ignatius L. Mullin, captain of detectives, after District Attorney Steward Nase and Defense Counsel William T. Connor had argued before Judge Harold G. Knight over the admission of the statement. Ruling in favor of its admissibility was regarded by Allen's attorney as advantageous.

Reading of this statement came as the climax of a court session which again brought to the stand the attractive, dark haired sister. Her stay on the stand was short. Connor earlier in the day had referred to a "hidden hand" inducing the girl to testify against her brother and intimated that funds for retention of her personal attorney, Elmer Schroeder, was coming from mysterious sources.

Miss Allen denied that she was obtaining assistance from any "mysterious sources" and declared that she was providing the money to pay her lawyer.

Tells of Threat Against Father.

The story of the Donaldson killing as told by Allen in his own words to the police and incorporated in the typewritten statement, with certain words added in long hand by Allen himself, is this:

"That Francis Donaldson had seduced his sister and had threatened his aged father, Horace; that the elder Allen was in ill health and could not cope with the situation; that the girl's mother, who died last year, always objected to a marriage between Rose and Donaldson.

"Mother always objected and neither father nor I wanted a marriage after what had happened. We didn't and neither did Mr. Donaldson. I did not want father to undergo the indignity he had to put up with. But we could not keep them apart."

The statement narrated the events of the night of Nov. 9 when Miss Allen left her apartment after a talk with her brother and father, met her sweetheart and his friend, Albert G. H. Lucas, and the latter two went to the Allen apartment.

Says Donaldson Struck Him.

Allen, in his statement, said he "had enough" of talk and ordered the two from the apartment. Donaldson, he said, struck out at him and he struck back. He rushed to the telephone to summon assistance in ejecting the visitors, and once again, while defenseless at the telephone, he was struck by Donaldson.

After that, Allen's statement told of his drive to the home of a friend to obtain a shotgun, and on his return, he said, he put shells in the gun absentmindedly and had no intention of shooting Donaldson, but that the gun went off.

The document shows the slayer admitted to the police he had threatend to his sister that he would "blow Donaldson's head off," as she testified yesterday, but he insisted he had said that only to scare her into keeping Donaldson away from the apartment.

Sister Ruined, Allen Alleges.

The Allen statement contained these questions and answers:

Q.—Isn't it a fact that you shot this man because he ruined your sister? A.—I didn't know, but he did ruin her, absolutely.

Q.—And the argument that night began all over again? A.—Absolutely.

Q.—Didn't your father once threaten Donaldson? A.—He didn't threaten him; he said he'd like to shoot him.

The commonwealth was moving to the close of its case as court adjourned with the district attorney beginning to place evidence on Allen's automobile trip to obtain the gun—a trip which the commonwealth contends indicates premeditation.

DISTINCT BRANCH FOR AIR CORPS IS SEEN BY FOULOIS

Merger of Army and Navy Units Predicted.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Consolidation of the army and navy air corps into a single unit similar to the present war and navy departments was predicted as an eventuality by Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of the army air corps, today in testimony before the house committee on expenditures.

Such a merger at the present time, he said, however, would be premature and could not be accomplished successfully until legislation is enacted to fix "definitely the rôles" of the army and navy air corps.

Would Creat Separate Branch.

Gen. Foulois offered this view during testimony before the committee which is conducting hearings on the bill of Representative Joseph W. Byrns [Dem., Tenn.] providing for a consolidation of the war and navy departments into a department of national defense. Under this plan, the air corps would become a separate naval forces and would be under an undersecretary of aviation.

Unlike his superior officer, Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, who had previously testified in direct opposition to the combination of the present departments, Gen. Foulois qualified his opposition to the proposal by stating that he "could not concur in a move toward a department of national defense until evidence was produced to show that the combination would result in economy."

His testimony also conflicted with that given by Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams, who had told the committee in a previous session that combination of the army and navy air corps was impossible because of the nature of the work done by each service.

Call It Impracticable Now.

The army air corps chief declared that "there is no mission which army or navy flyers can not perform interchangeably, provided they are trained." Secretary Adams contended that army flyers, because of their training, would be incompetent in a sea battle or in off coast defense over the water, while navy flyers would be equally impotent over land.

Gen. Foulois said he had "always been of the opinion that the time will come when the army and navy corps are merged into an entity, distinct from the war and navy departments." That move is impracticable at the present time, he said, however, because of the widely different laws governing each branch, such as retirement and promotion regulations. These, he said, would have to be definitely fixed before the merger could be successful.

AVIATION NOTES

Clear and cold weather forecast for this morning is expected to allow a majority of the air lines operating out of Chicago to resume full scheduled operations following several days of blizzard weather that has grounded airliners all over the nation, according to the Consolidated Air ticket office in the Palmer house.

A model air line, operating on frequent schedule between five major airports around Detroit, is to be employed during the National Aircraft show there April 2 to 10 to allow all persons attending the show to ride in new types of airliners, according to Charles S. [Casey] Jones, member of the board of control.

STUDENT NURSES IN HOSPITAL AT OAK PARK STRIKE

Thirty-five student nurses at the Oak Park hospital, angered because some of their privileges had been taken from them, went on a strike yesterday at 2 a. m. and were still out last night. Sister Beatrice, mother superior of the hospital, delivered an ultimatum to the effect that they must go back to work and accept the conditions by 2 p. m. today; otherwise all will be expelled.

According to the strikers, all of whom are first or second year students, the clamping down of their privileges was decreed by Sister Timothy, who became superintendent of nurses about two months ago. Prior to that time they were allowed to go out and remain absent from the hospital until 10 o'clock two nights a week and to have visitors on any of the other evenings until 10.

The new ruling was that the students were allowed to stay out only until 9:30 two nights a week and were not allowed to have visitors the other five nights. Six of the thirty-five strikers announced last night they had resigned and the other twenty-nine were still undecided what to do.

FRENCH AVIATORS LOST IN SAHARA; BEG FOR WATER

Use Radio, but Unable to Give Location.

ORAN, Algiers, Feb. 4.—[U. P.]—Three French aviators, lost in the heart of the Sahara desert, pleaded for water today, by radio, but were unable to tell military airplanes searching for them just where they were.

The three flyers, Jean Reginensi, Robert Lenier and Joseph Touge, were lost last Monday when a sandstorm forced their airplane down and obliterated the caravan trail they had been following through the shifting sands.

Messages Heard at Paris.

Working desperately, they managed to get their radio operating and into communication with Oran and Paris. Help was sent out at once, but no one knew where to look, since all the stricken flyers could say was that they were lost somewhere "near the heart of the desert."

Their water supply came to an end two days ago and today their thirst became intolerable. From the radio messages sent out at hourly intervals the authorities learned that their sufferings for water, even while they were communicating with Paris, had become so acute as to dull their judgment, for only Lenier stayed at his post to operate the radio.

Visions of Trees and Water.

In the distance, Reginensi and Touge saw waving palm trees, bright, shining pools of water, according to messages from Lenier, and they started out toward them to get water.

Authorities said they were afraid the two flyers had been led astray by a mirage, and redoubled their efforts to find them.

Meanwhile, an air patrol of five airplanes led by the famous desert soldier, Col. Vuillemin, combed the great sandy area.

Woman Flyer Arrives Safely.

ALGIERS, Feb. 4.—[U. P.]—Word was received here late today of the safe arrival at Niamey of Mlle. Maryse Hiltz, French aviatrix, who was believed to have been lost on her flight from Paris to Madagascar. She reported she had a difficult flight over the Sahara desert, but intends to continue her trip. Her next stop is Zinder, a walled city in the French Sahara, from where she plans to go on to Fort Lamy.

Electron to Put Traffic Lights in Your Auto

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—The multifarious ways recently devised by science to make the electron, smallest particle of matter, perform its modern miracles were described tonight before the American Institute of the City of New York. One of the new uses for the electronic tube, it was stated by Orestes Caldwell, former federal radio commissioner, will be the installation in each automobile of individual red and green traffic lights to be controlled from a central station.

LANDS ANTOGIRO ON CHITCHENITZA RUINS IN YUCATAN

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 4.—(AP)—The Autogiro Company of America announced here today it had received word that Capt. Lewis Yancey had made a successful landing in an autogiro on a terrace of the ruins of Chitchenitza, in Yucatan, Mexico.

Capt. Yancey, trans-Atlantic flyer, was greeted by Dr. Sylvanus G. Morley, who is directing the scientific work of the Carnegie Foundation there.

The use of planes, Dr. Morley said, will greatly facilitate the work of shortening the round trip from the base of operations, now made by train and wagon, from six hours to one hour and 55 minutes.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Without comment—which was taken as ominous assent—the Chicago poor relief bills were sent to third reading in the senate today. Tomorrow is the big showdown, and although predictions for the bills' success were made all admit the fight will be hot.

A number of the members of the "house of lords" are prepared to make war upon the $20,000,000 charity measures, but the persuasion apparent in the senate corridors today seemed to assure their eventual enactment as was had in the house late last night when the bills staged a memorable comeback and carried 106 to 23 after having seemingly reached an impasse.

Measures Are Advanced.

This morning in the senate, amidst an atmosphere of peace and quiet which was far removed from the wild scenes in the house last night, James J. Barbour [Rep., Evanston], a consistent advocate of poor relief, moved that the house bills be sent to third reading. Lieut. Gov. Sterling put the motion and a unanimity of agreement swept through the chamber, carried to a satisfactory volume by the votes of Chicago members.

Edward L. Ryerson Jr., president of the Emergency Relief fund of Cook county, and the other sponsors of the bills intended to prevent the closing of relief agencies in the city, watched the action from the galleries. They hope the same spirit which carried the bills to victory in the house last night will be apparent in the senate tomorrow.

In order that a full attendance may be had Mr. Sterling sent telegrams to a number of absentees asking for their presence. If the bills pass, they will reach Gov. Emmerson late tomorrow or Saturday. Inasmuch as he has been in repeated conferences with the fund leaders since they first came to Springfield with plans for poor aid, it is hoped that he will regard them as a necessity.

Official Thanks Expressed.

The official thanks of the commission was given the house today by Mr. Ryerson. He was grateful, he said, for the enactment of the bills to keep the poor in food, clothing and fuel for the remainder of the winter.

Other business of the senate today included the advancement to third reading of the bills to cut salaries of assemblymen, state elective officers and commonwealth department heads which were proposed by a joint senate and house committee. The legislators themselves would take a $500 cut, from $3,500 to $3,000, by the provisions of the measures, and the other officials scaled down about 11 per cent. A stiff battle on some of the cuts is expected when this mandate of the third special session is called for passage. Senator Harold C. Kessinger [Rep., Aurora] urged its advancement today.

Sanitary Bills Presented.

In the house bills presented by Elmer J. Schnackenberg [Rep., Chicago], and William Powers [Dem., Chicago], were advanced. They permit the sanitary district of Chicago to turn over to the federal government the Calumet-Sag canal for the benefit of the lakes-to-the-gulf waterway.

James P. Boyle [Dem., Chicago] supervised technical amendments to a bill governing budget making by the Chicago city council. Actually it would set back from April 15 to June 15, the date when the budget must be finally approved by the council. This measure would enable the administration to keep more than 3,000 city workers on the job—persons essential to the city service whose elimination is not contemplated in the economies advanced by Mayor Cermak.

Another bill advanced in the house today was the $4,000,000 "bonds-without-referendum" bill put forward by the west [Chicago] park board. Both branches of the legislature are resting on their arms until tomorrow.

ACTION ON 3 BILLS TO SLASH U. S. PAY PLEDGED IN SENATE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.] — A different strategy was brought into play in the senate today in dealing with the three bills sponsored by Senator William E. Borah, radical Republican of Idaho, to cut the pay of federal employés receiving $5,000 or more.

SENATOR W. E. BORAH. [Harris & Ewing.]

Three days ago chairmen of the senate committees ducked and dodged in an effort to avoid having the bills referred to their care.

But today as Senator Borah suggested that the bills be transferred from the appropriations to the committee on finance, Senator Porter H. Dale [Rep., Vt.] rose in protest.

Senator Dale was a member of the special committee headed by Senator Nye, North Dakota radical, whose peregrinations into various states and whose conferences in national park resorts cost the taxpayers more than $100,000.

Senator Dale announced that the civil service committee, of which he is chairman, ordinarily handled legislation affecting federal employés; he felt that the Borah bills should come his way.

Senator Borah reminded the senate that Senator Dale had publicly stated his opposition to any cuts in federal salaries; he would not object, however, if Senator Dale would promise that the bills would be reported out, favorably or unfavorably, in a reasonable time.

"It is true that I am personally opposed to the bills," said Senator Dale, "but it has never occurred to me that the personal views of a committeeman were concerned in the question of referring a bill. I will see that they receive immediate consideration and hope that they may be reported out tomorrow."

OFFICIALS LIST $6,732,436 PAID TO RELIEF FUND

A certified statement of the receipts and expenditures of the Joint Emergency Relief fund from Aug. 14, 1931, to Jan. 31, 1932, compiled by the accounting firm of Ernst & Ernst, was made public yesterday by the officers of the fund.

Receipts were $6,732,436.83, obtained as follows: Payments on installment subscriptions, $4,602,753.20; receipts from benefits division, $289,847.88; subscriptions paid in full, $1,692,369.41; from governor's commission, 1930-'31 campaign, $17,139.86; proceeds from bank loans, less interest paid, $129,895.84; interest received on bank deposits, $430.64.

Disbursements were $6,634,102.21, remitted to various social agencies as follows: Family relief, $6,186,495.28; shelter, $266,900.59; settlement and neighborhood organizations, $22,855.86; health agency, $45,791.63; children's home, $74,641.79; protective and miscellaneous, $37,417.06. The balance on deposit was $98,334.62.

Besides the receipts shown, there were collections of $248,400 by local suburban agencies, which, it was said, is being distributed directly by these agencies. It is estimated that social agencies sharing in the big fund have outstanding obligations of $3,000,000 contracted in January.

Firemen Officers' Ass'n Holds Its First Dinner

The first dinner of the Officers' association of the Chicago fire department was held last evening in the Hotel Sherman. Ald. John S. Clark, chaiman of the council finance committee, was toastmaster. Among the speakers were Ald. William Rowan, Joseph Gill, clerk of the Municipal court, and Lieut. Daniel Sullivan, president of the association. More than 400 officers of the department and their wives attended.

NEW YORK STATE BUSINESS HEADS FOR BUDGET CUT

Call for Further Slashes in Resolution.

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—A group of business men of large interests met today at the Bar association under the chairmanship of George W. Wickersham who told them "this meeting is the germ of a movement to rouse business men to exercise that influence on government for which their intelligence, training and achievements fit them, so that when reduction of public expenditures is proposed it may not be defeated by some organized body interested only in building up salaries and functions that are wholly unnecessary."

The proceedings were organized by Herwin K. Hart, lawyer, director of Associated Industries of New York State, Inc., official appointee to represent the employers on the industrial survey commission set up by the legislature in 1926, and now president of the New York State Economic Council, Inc., under whose auspices the meeting was called.

Salary Cuts Proposed.

The immediate purpose of the meeting was adoption of a resolution, introduced by Gen. James G. Harbord, chairman of the board of the Radio Corporation of America, calling for "the elimination of less necessary state activities, the reduction of personnel wherever possible, the reduction on a sliding scale of all salaries over a certain minimum amount, and the postponement of all capital expenditures which can reasonably be postponed."

In its original form, as proposed by Mr. Harbord, the only specific demand in the resolution was "that the amount of the state budget as recently presented by the governor to the legislature, $291,000,000 should be reduced by not less than $50,000,000."

Definite Sum Opposed.

Objection was made, however, by Jesse I. Straus, president of R. H. Macy & Co., to the possible political use which could be made of the resolution to embarrass Gov. Roosevelt if a definite reduction of $50,000,000 was demanded.

After considerable discussion, the resolution was amended by a vote of 17 to 14, to read: "That the state budget as recently presented by the governor to the legislature, namely, 291 million dollars, and as reduced by the proposal of the legislative leaders to approximately 270 million can and should be still further materially reduced."

J. LEONARD KOLP AND HIS $500 GO SEPARATE WAYS

J. Leonard Kolp, a farmer living near Walnut, Ill., came to town several days ago with shipments of cattle and hogs. For the hogs he received a check of $500.

About that time Mr. Kolp met three live stock men. They were playing pool, a game which was strange to Mr. Kolp. Mr. Kolp exhibited his $500 check.

"You're not known here," said one of the men. "You can't cash that check in Chicago."

Mr. Kolp laughed. "We'll bet you $3 to $2 you can't cash it in Chicago," the men challenged. Mr. Kolp accepted the wager.

The next day—yesterday—Mr. Kolp met the three men again. He took them to a bank where he cashed the check.

The three paid the $3 bet, then challenged Mr. Kolp to play pool for money. And thus was the farmer parted from his $500. Lieut. John McGinnis of the detective bureau learned of Mr. Kolp's adventure from a stockyards concern to which he had complained. Mr. Kolp, he was told, would appear during the evening and complain personally. But last night Lieut. McGinnis was still waiting.

Mr. Kolp was back on the farm.

Critics Call Maternity Bill Another Bureaucratic Move

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—The growing sentiment against the spread of federal bureaucracy found expression today before the senate commerce committee considering the latest bill to revive the Sheppard-Towner maternity act.

Mrs. James C. Gray of Boston, representing the Massachusetts department of the National Civic federation, declared such legislation "represents the peak of the bureaucratic movement in our bureaucracy ridden country."

She said that the children's bureau, which would supervise welfare work done under the bill, had a "socialistic and communistic background."

Dr. Holman Taylor of Fort Worth opposed the measure as an "approach to state medicine."

"Haste Instead of Safety."

Dr. G. W. Kosmak of New York said the bill provided for prenatal care for mothers rather than for care during labor when it was most needed. He described as one of the principal causes of the high maternal and infant death rate the modern demand for "rapid and painless labor" rather than for safety.

Dr. C. Benjamin Wright of Minneapolis also opposed the bill, and a communication from the National Catholic Welfare council in opposition to it was read into the record.

The bill now under consideration, which is sponsored by Senator Wesley L. Jones [Rep., Wash.] is a counterpart of that which failed of final approval at the last session due to a closing hour filibuster.

Provides Appropriation.

The measure seeks to set up a federal health coördinating board composed of the surgeon general of the public health service as chairman, the chief of the children's bureau, and the commissioner of education. An annual appropriation of $250,000 is authorized, out of which $5,000 is to go to each state. And a further appropriation, beginning at $750,000 for the fiscal year, 1932, and increasing to $3,000,000 annually subsequent to 1936, is to be allocated to the states in the proportion which the rural population of each state bears to the total rural population.

States are required to match the federal donation in order to receive it, and to accept the principles of the maternity bill by legislative act must set up a program of aid to mothers and children which shall meet approval of the federal board. State health agencies created under the act are required to report to the children's bureau, and the children's bureau may withdraw federal help if it is dissatisfied with the work being done.

LEADERS ASKED TO HEAR HOOVER ASSAIL HOARDING

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Invitations to a White House conference next Saturday, at which President Hoover is expected to survey the problem of the depression were sent today to representatives of thirty-nine business, labor, religious, and professional organizations.

The meeting, it was indicated, is to be a follow up to yesterday's plea by the President for the country to "put the hoarded dollars to work."

Gen. Charles G. Dawes, president of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, is expected to address the conference.

In his message to those who attend the President is expected to point out the necessity of building up a sufficient public confidence to persuade the owners of the $1,300,000,000 in hoarded wealth to restore it to circulation for their own and the country's benefit.

The directors of the new Reconstruction Finance corporation today went into session in an effort to promote the work of organization.

One of the first matters to come to Gen. Dawes' attention was a letter from Representative F. H. La Guardia [Rep., N. Y.] in which, commenting on the President's appeal to end hoarding, the congressman asked whether the corporation was ready to list sound banking institutions in which the hoarders might put their money.

"I fear," wrote Mr. La Guardia, "that with the thousands of bank failures and the losses sustained by hundreds of thousands of Americans in 'conservative investments' recommended by their own bankers, and with the many proclamations of prosperity and clarion calls of corner cutting, a great many might yet be somewhat timid and skeptical."

Also, he inquired, was the corporation "in a position to guarantee deposits in the 'sound banking institutions,' mentioned by the President?"

SCHOOL BUDGET TOTAL FOR 1932 IS $227,931,334

Complete Figures Compiled; Reduction 7.45%.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The complete figures of the school board budget, made available yesterday for the first time, show that the trustees contemplate expending $93,820,140 during 1932. In addition, they authorize the payment of $134,111,194 of unpaid liabilities of previous years. Therefore, the total appropriations aggregate $227,931,334.

How much of this sum will be available this year no trustee has predicted. The citizens' tax warrant sale committee, headed by D. F. Kelly, has warned the trustees they must slash still further if they hope to borrow money on tax anticipation warrants.

Reduction Set at 7.45 Per Cent.

This year's current budget of $93,820,140 is approximately 7.45 per cent lower than the 1931 budget. The city and the county governments have announced they will trim expenses about 14 per cent, although they have not done it.

By the standard accounts used by the board of education, the appropriations for 1932 and 1931 are compared in the following summary:

Last Wednesday the board served notice of its intention to cancel leases in two downtown office buildings because it desired to save money. The indicated saving disclosed in the budget is less than $1,500. It was also announced Wednesday that an additional $600,000 would be saved on the purchase of sites this year, which is not indicated in the budget.

The building budget, which the Kelly committee suggested could be reduced $8,000,000, is larger for 1932 than for 1931. The suggested saving of $1,000,000 in the operation of school plants is not disclosed by the budget figures.

LOUISVILLE POINTS TO ITS SOUND FINANCIAL CONDITION; CUTS TAXES

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Now Louisville steps forth to claim its share of the plaudits recently gained by Milwaukee for keeping its financial house in order. Louisville not only points with pride to its financial condition, but matches its $22.30 per thousand tax rate against Milwaukee's $25.96.

Recent dispatches from Milwaukee have said the Wisconsin metropolis is free of municipal deficits, all bills are paid, the city has $4,000,000 in the bank, and a debt amortization provided for.

Louisville has $5,634,218.12 in cash, United States securities, and city bonds for amortization of its bonded debt. During the last three years its tax rate has been reduced from $24 to the present $22.30.

Municipal income has been reduced by a decrease of $38,000,000 in two years of the total valuation of taxable property. The city has not borrowed money to offset this shrinkage, but has economized in its expenditures.

The National Municipal Review says Milwaukee's net bonded indebtedness is $44,963,400. Sinking fund records here show Louisville's bonded indebtedness is $26,042.51.

Milwaukee spends 18 cents out of every tax dollar to retire bonds and meet interest charges. About 14 cents of each tax dollar is used for these purposes in Louisville.

7,000 STUDENTS PROTEST CURBING H. S. ACTIVITIES

At a special student convocation yesterday the 7,000 boys and girls in Lindblom High school protested the recent elimination of all extra-curricular activities in the school. Athletics, dramatics, and publication of a year book and weekly newspaper were among the discontinued activities.

Principal Harry Keeler, who has watched the school grow from 700 at its opening in 1919 to the present 7,000 enrollment, defended his action on the ground of economy. "Although the enrollment has increased 1,100 since last year there has been virtually no increase in the number of teachers," he said. "To take care of this increased load with such an obvious teacher shortage we are forced to give every teacher a heavy schedule of 'basic' subjects."

BANDITS JUMP IN CAR; ROB WOMAN.

Mrs. Martha Wing, 7938 South Marshfield avenue, owner of the Chicago Ideal Health institute at 20 East Jackson boulevard, was robbed of $350 early yesterday by three bandits who jumped into her car at 69th street and Ashland avenue.

PLEADS AGAINST WAGE CUT FOR 94 JAIL GUARDS

Might Force Them to Take Bribes, Veteran Says.

Max Cohn, a veteran guard at the county jail, was an eloquent pleader before the county board yesterday in behalf of the 94 jail guards who now get $149 a month and are threatened with the 15 per cent reduction which other employés must bear. The board is preparing the 1932 budget.

Pointing out that the 15 per cent reduction would make the wages of the jail guards less than $30 a week, with no days off, Cohn declared there was a marked danger that the guards might succumb to bribery.

"We have little enough left now from our wages when we get through paying pension dues and buying tickets for political picnics and dances," Cohn said. "The court bailiffs get more money than we do, and they do not work anywhere near as hard and have Saturday afternoons, Sundays, and all holidays off.

Pleads Loyalty of Guards.

"If you want us to be loyal to you, you must be loyal to us. You can give us bread and you can take it away from us. We are loyal to our superiors, but our condition is the condition of slaves.

"Jail guards are human like everybody else and they can only stand so much. We leave our fate in your hands. If you must save money, slash the salaries of those who get $3,000 or more."

Although expressing sympathy with Cohn's plea, the commissioners remarked that millions must be cut from the budget and that cuts must be made everywhere. The question of slashing the guards' wages was left open.

The commissioners decided to appropriate $650,000 for the bureau of public welfare, the same sum as in 1931. Director Joseph L. Moss gave figures showing that the expenditures for January alone were $749,000 more than the entire yearly appropriation, and revealed that some 51,845 families were being cared for by the county.

Criticizes Relief Expense.

Commissioner Charles H. Weber criticized the extent of the county relief expenditures. He declared that the county in spending so much for charity was penalizing employés who have not been paid for three months and creditors who have furnished millions of dollars worth of supplies on credit without getting a cent in return.

"Getting charity from the county has become a habit with many people," he said. "It's the same habit that prompts wealthy persons—even millionaires—to come to me for baseball tickets so they won't have to buy them. Getting something for nothing is a great American custom and I believe many people accept charity from the county who could get along well without it."

The Circuit court judges are expected today to give a decision on how many jobs shall be permitted in county fee offices for 1932. The judges' delay in giving this decision has hampered the county board in its attempt to fix a budget, the commissioners say. Under the law, the budget must be ready for public scrutiny by Feb. 12. Further revision of the budget is permissible, however, after this date.

SZYMCZAK'S PAY ROLL ACTION IS CALLED UNFAIR BY MAYOR

Mayor Cermak yesterday termed the action of City Controller Szymczak in giving the employés in his own and the city treasurer's office preference in the matter of pay "unfair" to thousands of other city employés and school teachers.

During the day the controller said that hereafter he will send all pay rolls to Mayor Cermak for approval before giving out the checks. He paid his and the treasurer's employés Tuesday for the first half of January, although no other city workers have been paid past Jan. 1.

Mayor Cermak, who passed the day at home with a severe cold, said that in the future city funds will be husbanded in the hope of giving school teachers, who are farther behind in their pay than any other municipal employés, another two weeks' installment.

Lindy Observes Thirtieth Birthday at His Office

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was 30 years old today. Granting no birthday interview and with no plans for celebration as far as is known, he spent the day at his office. In the last year he has flown approximately 21,000 miles, including the orient voyage curtailed by the untimely death of his father-in-law, Senator Dwight W. Morrow, and the trans-Caribbean flight in the American Clipper.

THREE SEIZED IN LAKE COUNTY AS RACKETEERS

Charge Chicagoans Try to Usurp Unions.

State's Attorney A. V. Smith of Lake county signed complaints yesterday at Waukegan, charging conspiracy, against three men whom he charged were the agents of Chicago racketeers in an attempt to muscle into Lake county labor unions.

COL. A. V. SMITH.

The men, who were held in bonds of $20,000 each by Justice of the Peace Harold Tallett, are charged with having obtained the resignation of O. J. Burandt, 24 South Butrick street, Waukegan, business agent of the Lake county council of the Chauffeurs', Stablemen's and Helpers' union, by means of gunplay and threats against Burant's life.

They are Leonard Murphy, 34 years old, 3446 Church street, Niles Center; Charles Heintelman, 40 years old, 2017 North California avenue, and Clifford Snyder, 29 years old, 1109 Hazel avenue, Deerfield, business agent of the Highland Park local of Burandt's union.

Murphy, who bears the sobriquet of "Two Gun," Col. Smith said, is a former motorcycle policeman. Last summer he was arrested in Waukegan on the charge that he had threatened truck owners in an effort to force them to join a "protective association" from which he was to get an $80 a week salary. When the men whom he had threatened refused to prosecute, for fear of their lives, he was released on his promise to keep out of Lake county, Col. Smith said.

On Jan. 27, Burandt told the prosecutor, he was lured to the outskirts of Waukegan. There three men placed guns against his chest and forced him to sign a resignation as business agent of the chauffeurs' council. The resignation was mailed to Leon J. Howard, secretary of the council, on Tuesday, and Burandt received a warning over the telephone, he charged, that if he attempted to attend the meeting of the council that evening or tried to recall his resignation he would be killed.

This was reported to State's Attorney Smith and Sheriff Lester Tiffany. They assigned George Stried, chief investigator for the state's attorney, and two deputy sheriffs to watch Burandt's home. Two automobiles were seen driving past the home repeatedly, tooting their horns as they passed, and then making trips past the union hall. One of the cars was halted after a chase in the Waukegan business district and Murphy, Heintelman and Snyder were arrested.

Heintelman, who admitted that he had a Chicago police record, Col. Smith said, was identified by Burandt as one of the trio who forced him to sign the resignation.

Col. Smith said that he had received reports that other Waukegan union leaders had received threats.

it isn't only

you have to avoid

Many people think exposure to bad weather or being cooped up indoors is entirely to blame for common ills.

But they also come from germs which we catch from others. To protect ourselves against these germs we need good resistance.

A condition of low vitality, such as may result from overexposure, opens the way for them to attack us.

Begin now to build up your resistance!

The new vitamin concentrate of cod-liver oil—Squibb Adex Tablets—offers such an agreeable way to help you do this.

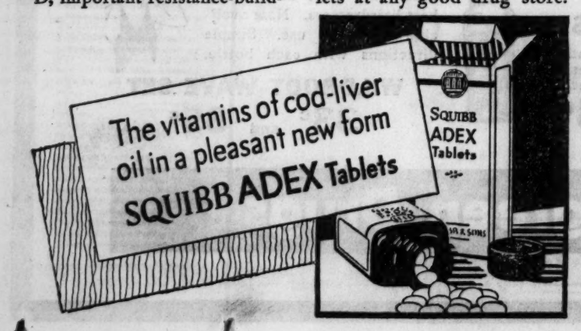
Each Adex Tablet contains as much Vitamin A and Vitamin D, important resistance-building factors, as one-half teaspoonful of Squibb Cod-Liver Oil.

The fame of cod-liver oil as a health-builder is due to its richness in these two factors. Vitamin A has been found to help maintain resistance against infections of the nose and throat. Vitamin D, the sunshine vitamin, tones the system.

And never before has it been so easy to get these valuable factors. Squibb Adex Tablets have none of the taste of cod-liver oil. They are small, sugar-coated, and easy to swallow.

Let them help keep you free from ills these next few weeks. Take them regularly every day.

Just ask for Squibb Adex Tablets at any good drug store.



"Choosey" People like the way they TASTE..

IT'S just what you'd expect. People who enjoy the good things of life... are constantly looking for something better to eat and drink... and smoke. Something that's out of the ordinary.

In cigarettes this better taste can come only from finer ingredients. Chesterfields are more satisfying to the cultivated palate... because there's never any attempt to skimp on Turkish leaf.

These more expensive... more richly flavored Turkish tobaccos are added with a generous hand... and 'choosey' people... everywhere... like the result.

In fact Chesterfield's new way of mingling tobacco flavors and aromas is really equivalent to creating an entirely new kind of tobacco... one that combines the best qualities of Turkish and fine Domestic leaf.

Perhaps you've noticed that the paper in Chesterfields is whiter... purer. Thousands of dollars were spent on research to perfect this paper. It burns without any taste or odor of its own. A detail, of course. But it adds immeasurably to your enjoyment.

Smoke Chesterfields whenever you like... They're mild and pure. They'll never tire you as an over-sweetened cigarette might easily do. Day in... day out... Chesterfields taste right. Light up and see for yourself. They satisfy!

LOOP PROPERTY ON TAX RECORDS AS DELINQUENT

Failure to Pay Levy Adds to Local Crisis.

One reason why the city, county, schools, and other local governments are hard pressed for cash and unable to borrow is because many persons have not paid their 1929 taxes. These were due last May 15.

Last December County Judge Jarecki declared the 1928 and 1929 taxes void because of the omission of personal property from the tax rolls. Indications are that the legislature may pass a bill by which any property owner who overpays either 1928 or 1929 taxes will be given credit for the excess amount on subsequent tax bills. It has therefore been urged that the property owners, by paying, will not make themselves liable to loss.

Names from Tax Records.

Below is a list of additional Cook county property owners who, according to the records, have not paid any part of the taxes listed. The names listed are those which appear on the tax records. Some of these are the names of the owners, some of agents, some of former owners.

In a previous list it was pointed out that the Marshall Field estate had paid a substantial part of all taxes due, except on one parcel. On this property the lessee is under contract to pay the taxes, and he has contested the taxes in court as unfair and inequitable. In the list below is the L. Z. Leiter estate, which also says that it has paid taxes on all property it owns except where the holder of the lease has agreed to pay.

In a previous list certain property was credited to the Bills Realty company, which that company asserts it does not own. It is apparent that the records do not show accurately tax obligations. Also in a previous list the Atlantic garage was erroneously listed with owing $5,365 in taxes. The garage has paid all of its taxes except $400, which it deems unfair and unreasonable.

Only Record Available.

But the collector's record is all that is available. It shows other properties as follows which have not paid 1929 taxes, or that part which the owner deems fair. The list is by the numbers of the volumes and items:

ASKS DIVORCE AS PAUPER; HAS $300,000 TRUST

Although Mrs. Thelma Braun, 4556 Sheridan road, is the beneficiary of a $300,000 trust, established for her and her children by her husband, she was permitted to file her divorce bill without court costs under the paupers' act by Judge Denis E. Sullivan yesterday in the Superior court. She charged Carl W. Braun, who inherited the real estate placed in the trust from his father, the late Jacob C. Braun, steel manufacturer, with desertion. He has managed the trust since he established it, and lately there has been no income available for herself and the children, she charged. She stated that she had to pawn a diamond ring recently to buy food.

MacDonald Has Restless Day, but Eye Is Healing

LONDON, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Prime Minister MacDonald had a restless day after an operation on his left eye for glaucoma last night, but his eye was healing normally. Although restricted in his activity at a nursing home, he kept in close touch with events in the far east and in the house of commons.

UNIONS DEMAND PAY IN WARNING TO CANAL BOARD

Trustees Vote to Use All Available Funds.

Leaders of the unions of the Chicago building trades council, in a letter to the sanitary district trustees yesterday, warned that they would not be responsible for any action that may be taken by union members in the district's employ if back salaries are not immediately forthcoming. So serious were the implications, in the opinion of Thomas J. Bowler, president of the district board, that he immediately appointed a committee of the entire board and the chief engineer, to confer with D. F. Kelly and the mayor's advisory committee.

The letter was read after the board had adopted a resolution to pay out its last available funds, $141,546, on its $139,000 pay roll for the first two weeks in January. The deficiency, it was ordered, should be carried by employés receiving the largest salaries.

Fund Raising Efforts Fail.

Discussing the letter from the unions, Trustee Ross A. Woodhull, chairman of the finance committee, said: "The board has tried, individually and collectively, to provide the necessary money. So far we have met with little success, but we must and will continue to try. We must not despair. The crisis demands that we keep our heads cool."

"Keeping the sanitary district in operation is infinitely more important," said President Bowler, "than operating the schools, policing the streets or even maintaining fire protection. The children might enjoy a three month vacation, but if the pumps were to be shut down for as much as three hours our sewers would be backing up, the lake would be polluted and we should be at the mercy of every conceivable epidemic of disease."

The letter, addressed to President Bowler and signed by the presidents or business managers of 12 unions, said in part:

"Up to the present writing we have been able partially to take care of our unemployed, but now we find our relief fund, as well as our general treasury, used up.

"As our relief fund depends for its financing upon the payment of an assessment by the working members each month, you will readily realize that men who are receiving no pay cannot make these payments. Therefore, unless these men are paid their back salaries at once, and the pay days restored to their former regularity, we are going to be confronted with the problem of seeing a great many working but penniless and creditless workers forming in the breadlines of the city.

"This is a very serious situation. A man who is unemployed may go to the breadline as a last resort, but we hate to think of what might happen if the men who are employed by the sanitary district are forced to soup kitchens because of payless pay days, knowing all the time that there is plenty of money in the United States to take care of these matters.

Call Attention to Loans.

"Instead, he sees where his government has loads of money to send to foreign lands to protect the interests of those already overburdened with money, while within the shores of his own country he sees his congress and federal administrative officers foster a $2,000,000,000 federal loan to pull the bankers out of the hole and put frozen assets in the hands of his government which in the end means that the working man will hold the bag."

In closing the letter urged the president of the board to get the funds for payment of back salaries before the men "decide, along with millions of others in like position, to take the matter into their own hands . . . If something is not done immediately we will not be responsible for the action of our men on the sanitary district job."

Except for the partial payment for the first two weeks in January voted yesterday, employés of the district have not been paid since Nov. 15. Arrangements were made at yesterday's meeting for the issuance of wage assignments for those who can use them for the establishment of further credit.

TWO HELD ON FRAUD CHARGE.

Judge Fardy yesterday held Manny Brown and Albert Horwitz, both of Rockford, to the grand jury on charges of operating a confidence game. Michael Bierut, 2124 Cortez street, charged they got $2,000 from him on the plea that it was to be posted as bail for two prisoners in the Rockford jail.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE DEMOCRATS SURRENDER THEIR ISSUE.

The Democrats in the senate have agreed upon an appropriation of three-quarters of a billion dollars under the guise of emergency relief. Half the money would be spent on the construction of roads without even the usual requirement that the states match the federal appropriations; and the other half would be distributed on the basis of population as loans to states whose governors appealed for outside help.

This scheme bears the official stamp of the Democratic party and accordingly it looks as if once again the Democrats have surrendered the issue upon which they might have carried the country. That issue is economy in government. The Democrats have been in a position to blame the Republicans for the enormous increase in the costs of government and to make that accusation stick. It was a Republican administration that spent vastly in excess of its income with the result that it has had to borrow time after time until now its credit is becoming exhausted. The Democrats have been in a position to say that the Republicans are therefore responsible for a situation comparable to that which drove Britain off the gold standard. Tax increases which can only serve to retard business recovery could also be charged to Republican leadership.

All the political advantage which might have gone to the Democrats had they grasped their opportunity is now in danger of being dissipated. A party which proposes a $750,000,000 treasury raid is in no position to accuse its rival of irresponsibility.

The manner in which the money is to be spent does even less credit to Democratic leadership. Half of it is to go for road building, but it is notorious that the nation today has more roads than it needs and, with few exceptions, the gasoline taxes collected by the states are at least sufficient to build all the roads for which there is any justified demand. The only place where road funds are really needed is in the cities, and congress is not providing any money for city streets.

The three-quarters of a billion will have to be borrowed and repaid. The interest on the debt and the repayment of it will come from the people who pay income taxes, who are, in overwhelming proportion, the people in the states where the greatest need for relief is found. These states can tax their own citizens for relief, if funds are needed, but the Democrats in the senate do not intend to let the states handle their own problems in their own way. They propose to tax New York to provide relief in New York and incidentally to build unnecessary roads in Montana.

The more successful the Democrats are in advancing this scheme in congress, the more heavily they will pay for it in the forthcoming national election.

GANG CRIME IN WILL COUNTY.

The gang robbery and rape committed in Will county can be cleaned up and the perpetrators punished if the law authorities of Will county act with thoroughness and prompt energy. The identity of these brutes can be established, for they were seen by several people and are undoubtedly known for bad character somewhere in the district, in the underworld of Joliet or elsewhere. Competent and thorough police investigation will bring results.

If results are not obtained the people of Will county will be justified in assuming that their protection is inadequate because it is controlled by political influences profitably allied with habitual criminality. They should observe what happens in this case and draw the proper conclusions. The atrocity committed with the mere robbery reveals the ruthlessness and depravity which in recent years have been shown by criminals and ought to rouse the public to a determined effort to weed out weak or corrupt officials and break the political powers which exchange services with the underworld.

THE JAPANESE AND OCCIDENTAL CONDITIONS.

Uneasiness regarding a situation seldom gets any relief from the knowledge that military logicians may be in power in one of the countries engaged in controversy. They may mistake logic for common sense. The kaiser's government did, notably with regard first to Great Britain and afterwards as to the United States.

It is frequently said that Japan timed its new Chinese adventure for the present because of conditions in occidental countries, just as the expulsion of Germany from China was undertaken at the opportune moment. It is assumed that the occidental countries are prostrated by their economic injuries and that furthermore there is considerable and growing hostility to the United States because of its persistence in the debts. The declaration which congress attached to the indorsement of the moratorium—that it was the last concession—was bitterly received in Europe. The apparent control of the United States by pacifists has been noted abroad.

It is to be hoped that these special considerations will not be so misinterpreted as to lead to a colossal blunder—to a mistake which would be a crime against the peace of the world. A military policy based upon the understanding that the United States is prostrated would be a great misfortune. It is an irony of the hard times that this country is so rich in gold and materials.

THE JURY CHECK ON GOVERNMENT.

A jury in a federal court in Detroit found a border patrolman guilty of an offense against an innocent citizen. The patrolman wounded a passenger on an excursion steamer. The patrol boat was chasing a rum runner and the agents in their firing disregarded the proximity of the steamer. The charge against the patrolman was felonious assault, but the federal judge instructed the jury that a verdict of guilty of assault and battery could be returned. That was done.

Until recently federal prohibition enforcers have been immune from punishment for acts wantonly committed upon citizens, but this is at least the second conviction. Even now the offenses are minimized and the punishment is soft, but juries show a disposition to hold the agents responsible in spite of the efforts of the department of justice to bring them off free by defending them in its own courts. This, of course, is the historic development of oppressive law. Government at first has its own way, using its legal machinery to do as it pleases. Gradually, where jury trial can be applied, the objections of the people will be registered through the independence of the jury and the government will be checked.

MOTOR MANNERS.

The example of the Lincoln park police in enforcing traffic regulations—respect for traffic signals, stopping at boulevard crossings, neglect of head and rear lights, etc.—ought to be imitated by other divisions of our police. All of these regulations are reasonable and strict obedience to them is in everybody's welfare. Unfortunately there are too many motorists who do not understand their own interest in obeying regulations, and the only way to make them respect the safety and convenience of others, to say nothing of themselves, is to penalize them for infractions. This is the duty of the police, neither an easy nor a pleasant duty, but necessary to the public safety and to private rights. Motoring in this vicinity is unnecessarily hazardous and disagreeable because of disregard for reasonable regulations and the failure of so many police to enforce them against inconsiderate and reckless driving. Strict enforcement does not require ill nature on the part of the traffic officer or the exaggeration of an occasional inadvertence, apologized for and corrected. It does call for strict attention and firm action. The Lincoln park police are following the right course and will presently bring about better conditions in their region. We are living in a civilized community and the exceptional persons who do not respect the common safety and the rights of others should be disciplined into proper conduct.

POPULARIZING KNOWLEDGE.

A writer in the Times of New York is struck by the superiority of the English popularizers of science. "Men like Prof. Shapley and William Beebe," he points out, "can hold their own with any European, but the English can muster a dozen first rate expositors of the technically difficult to one of ours. Nothing comparable with Eddington and Jeans on relativity and the quantum theory has yet appeared here, while Haldane and Huxley still stand alone in their ability to make biology a science of real life." He ascribes our lack to "a certain pedantic snobbishness," and we agree. One of the most brilliant and productive of American scientists, whom we shall not name, suffers a certain detraction among his fellows because he has written a most readable book. The scholarship and accuracy of the book is not impugned. His fault is that he has stooped to put his esoteric knowledge within reach of the unlearned.

This is a curious phenomenon in a democratic society. But it reminds us that our endowment of learning in America has, for some reason we have not analyzed, created a class which has developed the weaknesses of a privileged status and resents any conspicuous effort to share its wealth with the commonalty. One would gather in some quarters that writing well—that is, clearly, accurately, and understandably for readers uninstructed in the mysteries, but of general mental capacity—is inconsistent with the dignity of learning and proof of a light minded and even unscrupulous scholarship. No doubt a certain jealousy of popular favor accounts for this fallacy in some cases. But in the main the attitude toward popularization of knowledge is professional rather than individual, we believe, and both because of its effects and its implications it would be well for all concerned if it were corrected. The democratic man ought to have access to all knowledge available and usable by him for his enlightenment, and it seems to us especially unfitting that American scholarship, which is so largely supported by the zeal of the democratic individual for knowledge and self-improvement, should not respond more willingly to his aspiration and his need.

RUSSIA FINDS A NEW RUBBER SOURCE.

[Des Moines Register.]

Thomas A. Edison spent his last active days trying to make rubber from goldenrod, and a Mexican claims to have invented a way of making rubber from petroleum. But the Russians have found a new source of rubber which is even more promising.

Two and a half years ago a soviet employé near the Chinese border noticed the highlanders of a certain region chewing some kind of gum in the American manner. He found that this gum came from a plant, hitherto unknown to scientists, which grew on sunny slopes from 4,000 to 5,000 feet up. Examination showed that the root of this plant contained 40 per cent latex, yielding 95 per cent pure rubber by a process of extraction both simpler and cheaper than that used for the latex of Brazilian and Malayan rubber trees.

This plant, which can be grown in valleys, flowers twice a year and resists frost, though it demands hot sunshine. It has been found so valuable that the soviet government plans to complete this year a rubber factory with a daily capacity of sixty tons and to have 250,000 acres planted in the newly found "towsagis" by the autumn of next year.

Russia, in her future industrial development, stands to make large gains from the exploitation of this new rubber source—if it realizes on all its promises. And if it can be grown in this country, towsagis may also help to solve some of our rubber problems. At least, it might pay some enterprising American to get hold of a few plants and try to cultivate them here.

IT SNOWED; WE ADMIT IT.

Yes, it snowed in Chicago yesterday! Much as we love to boast of our marvelous climate, we must be honest. It snowed in Chicago! Strange as it may seem and humiliating as it may be to our citizens justly proud of the mild June climate that usually prevails here in the so-called winter months, we must admit that it snowed. But it was a beautiful snow, and being a most unusual happening we must further confess that we enjoyed it. The white fleecy snow, spread like a wonderful eiderdown blanket on the streets and vacant lots, transformed the city. It looked like the lovely pictures on our Christmas cards. People eagerly turned to the old pictures of winter in this part of the country years ago before the climate changed and were rejoiced to see that the picture that lay right before their eyes no matter which way they turned when they went outdoors was in no bit dissimilar to the famous old prints of Currier & Ives. There were the billowing drifts of white snow, the long glistening icicles hanging from the eaves and the soft white particles floating through the air looking for all the world like eiderdown picked from a million ducks. It snowed yesterday; we admit it. People went up to the long forgotten trunks in the attic and brought down sleds and ear muffs and woolen scarfs and boots and ice skates and other things musty with age and put them into use. And it was all such glorious fun. Tourists from Loz Onglaize accustomed to snow and the merry sports of winter took the leading part and showed Chicago people how to skate and slide on the sleds and put on the funny ear muffs and big boots and make snowballs and toss them merrily about.

Yes, it snowed; we admit it.

FOR SHOPPERS.

I paused at Life's counter.
I said, "I will take
A heart that is guaranteed
Never to break."
"We have none in stock now,"
The salesman said, smiling,
"But here is a heart
That you'll find most beguiling.
It's a rose colored number
With edges of blue.
It's gentle and loving,
And tender and true.
The unbreakable hearts
Are so dismal and tough
I don't think you'd want one—
They're not gay enough!"
So, alas! he persuaded me.
What a mistake
To buy any kind of
A heart that will break!
Oh, maidens with shopping to do
Pray take care!
Don't purchase a heart
That is not built for wear!

MARJORIE F. W.

WITH THE SHIFTING of Uncle Andy Mellon to the British ambassador job and the shifting of Mr. Mills to Uncle Andy's former desk, Washington waited breathlessly last night for some more amazing changes. Up to the time of going to press all was quiet along the Potomac, but a large crowd was eagerly watching the dome of the capitol to see if it was shifted over to take the place of the Washington monument, which, rumor had it, was to be shifted to the White House lawn.

"SPRING HATS MUST BE SILLY," announce fashion notes from New York. My dear, how in the world can they be any sillier than they've been? Quelle impossible!

THE GOVERNMENT'S called a conference of leaders at Washington to find a way of unloosing an estimated $1,300,000,000 of hoarded money in this country. We don't pretend to speak for anybody else, but we'll tell the government right now that the only way they can get us away from the slender little pile of money we've saved is to fasten a large log chain around our waist and hitch the other end of the chain to four strong railroad locomotives. Then start the engines and we'll be dragged away from our hoardings. No we won't, we'll have 'em safe in our left hand lower vest pocket in a pill box. Maybe the conference to work out a plan of getting the people to give up their hoardings had better decide that when they get around to us the only way to proceed will be to hit us over the bean with a lead pipe and then chloroform us. And even then they'll have to rap us on the knuckles with a stick before they get our three dollars and sixty-five cents that we've been hoarding.

THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT proudly announces it is going to invest $75,000,000,000 in its new second five year plan. Since they charge a dollar and fourteen cents a pound for butter and fifty dollars for a pair of shoes they ought to have more than seventy-five billion bucks on hand for their second five year plan.

WHITE SWANS.

Outside our window the few white clouds sail by on the deep night sky like swans silently swimming on dark water.

"Love is like the sky," you say.
"Great as the sky, and always above us."
And I say, "Love is like those clouds, strange, beautiful, silent,
the white white swans. . . ."

"UNITED STATES Sends New Notes to Japan."—Trib. This just means one thing: a grand new building on Pennsylvania avenue or down on the Mall with ten thousand clerks—"The U. S. Bureau for Writing Notes to Japan." Or probably it's there already, they've been writing Japan a lot of notes. And, anyhow, they start new bureaus so fast down in Washington that there's just no keeping up with them. R. H. L.

How to Keep Well By Dr. W. A. Evans

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual disease.

SOME PEOPLE CAN REDUCE.

DR. ROONEY'S views on the weight question are very disheartening to those who want magic remedies by which their weight can be set at a desired figure overnight. Many people send me letters by special delivery asking for magic diets. Some want replies by special delivery. Many say they are willing to give 18 days to making the change, and some put no time limit, but the tone of three-fourths of the letters indicates a sudden willingness to right conditions that have lasted a long time, but without indication of continuity of purpose.

It is not a difficult matter to reply to these letters with answers that will cause momentary happiness. Dr. Tanner, in his forty day fast, demonstrated that a person could go without food for that length of time, and by doing so could reduce to almost any weight desired.

The possibilities of increasing weight are not so great, but, at that, a man can eat a good deal of salt food, such as sauerkraut, for a day or so, drinking water or beer meanwhile, and end with a very heavy meal of bread, meat, and potatoes, and increase his weight a few pounds thereby.

But in answering such letters a reasonable consideration for truth makes it necessary to add that changes in weight produced by very temporary and artificial procedures, diets, or whatnot are only temporary.

Dr. Rooney's thesis is that a something within us determines the weight pattern and that diet is nothing more than a servant of that something. It may be a definite change in some ductless gland such as the thyroid, the pituitary, or the gonads. In that event the abnormality in weight goes by some such name as pathologic obesity. To change it treatment must be directed to the ductless gland which is at fault.

In another group of cases it is not so easily determined where the trouble lies. The pattern is fixed by something, but just what it is is not so easy to say.

But Dr. Rooney has encouragement for people in this group. By changing their habits permanently, not temporarily, they can change their weight patterns. They can lose weight or gain as they wish and they can hold the gains they make. To do so they must enlist not for 18 days or 90 days but for the duration of the war.

Those who have the patience and strength of purpose to adopt a proper plan and to follow it for the remainder of their years of vigor will get results. He offers no hope to the "fly by nighters," the people whose minds do not run beyond the magic carpet yearn.

HALITOSIS CAUSE.

Dr. H. C. S. writes: Your article on halitosis, taken from Dr. Hartzell's, was o. k. as far at it went, but it seems to me it did not go very far.

I have practiced dentistry 34 years and recognize a few odors when I see them, and quite a few when I don't. There are many causes for halitosis, even among nongarlic eating races. I will be brief and name what seem to me to be the three leading causes—ones which any dentist can detect blindfolded and within three feet of the patient:

1. Malconstructed bridgework, offering lodgment to débris of the mouth, with little or no chance for removal.

2. Pyorrhea, the odor of which names the disease the moment a patient exhales toward the dentist.

3. Badly decayed teeth, which offer a harbor for particles of food which soon become very offensive; and likewise very characteristic in odor.

The tests offered in your article, it seems to me, are very inconclusive and hardly fair. For instance, a test is recommended, the débris from the tongue and tooth surface being compared as to odor. When you realize the difference between the structures of the two bodies, you will see my point. The surfaces of the teeth, where the tests would be made, are smooth and subject to constant friction while the tongue is, in many mouths, quite the reverse, and has many fissures. Also, as you well know, stomach upsets often use the tongue as a depository. If Dr. Hartzell had pushed a wooden toothpick between his back teeth a few hours after eating, and taken a whiff of same, it might be instructive. This, by the way, may be tried by any one in doubt or, if preferred, the dental floss may be used.

There are many other causes of halitosis. I will name one other—salivary calculus, or tartar, which, if deposited in bulk and allowed to remain [which, alas, is often the case], is the seat of many odors, depending on the culinary and other habits of the individual.

The treatment of these causes is not the buncombe mouth wash, any more than cologne is a substitute for the bath, but the removal of the cause, which, fortunately, is possible.

I would be glad to have you check up on my statements and if I have not proved my case will at least attempt to do so in a more comprehensive way.

REPLY.

You have nothing on the dentist whose opinions you take issue with. He has enjoyed very large practice for more years than most men can claim. Of course, you are right. There are many causes of halitosis, and the remedy is to find the cause, and then remove it.

RAILROAD LABOR LAW.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Will you please explain the sixteen hour law pertaining to engineers and firemen on the railroads, especially the length of time they may work and how many minutes are allowed to change crews? J. C.

S. code provides: "It shall be unlawful of any common carrier, its officers or agents subject to this chapter, to require or permit any employé subject to this chapter to be or remain on duty for a longer period than sixteen consecutive hours, and whenever any such employé of such common carrier shall have been continuously on duty for sixteen hours he shall be relieved and not required or permitted again to go on duty until he has had at least ten consecutive hours off duty; and no such employé who has been on duty sixteen hours in the aggregate in any twenty-four hour period shall be required or permitted to continue or again go on duty without having had at least eight consecutive hours off duty."

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FOREST RANGERS.

Chicago, Jan. 25.—[Friend of the People.]—Could you give me information if there are any openings for government forest ranger? If so, would you please let me know where I can apply and what the qualifications are? W. K.

You are advised that examinations for the positions of forest rangers are held under the direct supervision of the central office of the civil service commission at Washington, D. C. Examinations are announced only as the needs of the service require. There is no examination pending at the present time and it is not possible to forecast just when the next examination will be scheduled. Application blanks are not distributed and will not be accepted until such time as an examination is opened. Full particulars regarding the necessary qualifications will be furnished in connection with the examination announcement when it is scheduled to be held. Persons who are interested in the examination for forest ranger should keep in touch with bulletins of civil service examinations which are posted in all first and second class postoffices. C. D. HERTZOG,

District Manager U. S. Civil Service Commission.

28 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 5, 1904.

PORT ARTHUR.—The Russian fleet under Admiral Stark, which put to sea at dawn on Feb. 3, returned here this afternoon. It was maneuvering, it is reported, against sixty Japanese warships off Wei-Hai-Wei.

ST. PETERSBURG.—The Russian response to the latest Japanese note was started to Tokio. From now on the matter of war or peace lies in the hands of the mikado's government. The Russian bear is feeling mighty like fighting and fully realizes that although Russia has made concessions they are far from what Japan wants. The feeling in higher circles continues to be that Russia has offered substantial concessions but that she cannot meet Japan's wishes regarding Manchuria or agree to Japanese fortifications in southern Corea. One thing is certain, Russia will not declare war nor will she initiate hostile action if the negotiations break down. She will remain quiescent until attacked.

TOKIO.—The general impression here is that all hope of peace is gone. The elder statesmen had a conference at which the emperor was present. The cabinet is in almost continuous session. Official reports confirmed the marked military activity in Manchuria. Russian troops are steadily moving in the direction of the Yalu. The Marquis Ito had an audience with the emperor at which the situation was discussed. This clearly indicates the seriousness of the situation.

FEBRUARY 5, 1916.

OTTAWA, Ont.—Fire of unknown origin tonight destroyed the plant of the Grant, Holden & Graham Co., Ltd., which has been engaged in manufacturing clothing and haversacks for the militia department. The loss on the building alone, a six story brick structure, is fixed at $20,000. The list of those who lost their lives in the fire which destroyed the Canadian parliament building was fixed at seven tonight.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Germany has balked at unconditional acceptance of the terms of the settlement in the Lusitania case which were embodied in the memorandum drafted last week by Ambassador von Bernstorff and approved by President Wilson. The objections of the German government to the memorandum of the proposed settlement were laid before Secretary of State Lansing by the ambassador in a cablegram from the Berlin foreign office, suggesting a modification of the phraseology. The issue has resolved itself down chiefly to the question of whether or not a reprisal is "illegal." Germany wishes to submit this question to arbitration, which the United States up to this time has refused.

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—George M. Reynolds, president of the Continental and Commercial National Bank of Chicago and a prominent figure in national finance, is seriously ill in the Alexandria hotel from the effects of bronchial asthma.

WAR NEWS.—Rome reports heavy losses were inflicted on the Austrians at Col di Lana during a night attack. The Vienna communications tell of heavy artillery actions and of a successful warship raid on the Italian east coast. On the eastern front both Petrograd and Vienna report air raids and bomb dropping, also minor land skirmishes.

FEBRUARY 5, 1902.

CHICAGO.—Chicago shivered and suffered in the grasp of the cold wave which kept the temperature near the zero point. With a bitter cold which carried suffering and all but claimed a number of victims, a high, biting wind swept the streets and cut like a knife. It was 8 below zero at 10 a. m.

CHICAGO.—John Alexander Dowie made a cash settlement with his brother-in-law, Samuel Stevenson, to avoid having Elmer Washburn, acting as receiver, take full charge of the Zion lace industries, on which hangs the future of Zion City and the Christian Catholic church. No one connected with the case was willing to say just how much it cost Dowie to save his industry, but the sum ranges between $175,000 and $185,000.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—Twelve firemen are believed to be buried in the ruins of the American Tent and Awning company's building on Chestnut street, between Third and Fourth streets. The building collapsed without warning during a fire which seemed to be under control. The outer walls crumbled at the bottom and walls, roof and floors crashed through to the cellar.

CHICAGO.—A reception for Bishop Muldoon of the Roman Catholic church was given in the hall of the Holy Name school by six courts of the Women's Catholic Order of Foresters and was attended by more than 1,000 persons. The program began with an address by the Rev. Father M. J. Fitzsimmons, pastor of Holy Name cathedral.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—After a brief discussion the senate passed a bill providing for a 25 per cent increase in the salaries of United States judges.

COUNTY HOSPITAL NURSES.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—Recently I was a patient at the county hospital, and, having seen what a nurse has to contend with, how they carried on without pay for 60 days, it amazes me that a group of political leeches can throw rocks at them and get away with it. When a group of nurses are leaving a shift they should at least look forward to a home with a peaceful background to recover their composure and improve their morale. The intelligent taxpayer would be delighted if they had a library, a music room, and a gymnasium.

These nurses are on the job all the year round without a press agent. They cheerfully minister to a continuous parade of well meaning, shiftless, and in many cases ungrateful people. Nurses are a better contribution to a community than a certain species of bloodsuckers who imagine they are public servants.

I hope that some day the hospital will get rid of the pay roll barnacles and be conducted by a group whose minds are as healthy as the departing patient.

DUMB, BUT OBSERVING.

POSTAL SERVICE.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—With so much talk of waste and extravagance on the part of the federal government, it is interesting to note that the postoffice department is apparently trying to cut expenses.

At my home in Rogers Park our morning delivery of mail was, up to about eight months ago, always made before 9 o'clock. Now if it comes before 11 we think we are being favored. Today the carrier arrived at 12:10 p. m. He was the third new man in ten days. Mail is being left on the floor in our hallway for tenants who have been gone for over a year. The mail carrier who served us for years has been shifted to a strange district. Collections at the boxes have been cut in half, and most of them are made by the men who deliver mail. The route on which I live is two miles from the postal station and nearly a mile from the street car, but the carriers have been forbidden to use automobiles in going from the station to their districts. This rule is not enforced against the men who deliver special delivery mail.

Deliveries have evidently been cut to one a day, for I mailed a letter addressed to myself at the Rogers Park station at 9:30 a. m. and did not receive it until 11:15 the next morning.

ANOTHER VIEW.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—This Sino-Japanese scrap is the best thing that could have happened. Imagine Japan and China on friendly terms and the powers of the world telling the Japs what not to do. The answer—Chinese millions officered by Japanese. Wow, what a scrap! But now Japan has made of China a very bitter enemy. And President Hoover, laughing up his sleeve and making a play for the west coast vote, is sending stern warnings to the Japs. From Hoover—a little navy man—believe it or not!

ACCUSTOMED TO ARMS.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—Our jails and penitentiaries contain thousands of persons who have demonstrated that they are efficient in the use of firearms and have no conscientious objections to killing human beings.

In the event of another war perhaps the government could use these convicts in the front line trenches.

Should they be killed the taxpayers will be relieved of a part of their burden, and if they are wounded it would not cost much more to keep them in government hospitals than in prisons as they are at present.

Why draft amateur, law abiding citizens to fight the wars, when we have so many professional gunmen available who could do it for us? D. M. C.

A WIFE WHO WORKS.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—I am the sole support of a small daughter; with the aid of a sister I support my mother and invalid father. For two years I have had a very agreeable business connection. In the same office is a young lady who has been married for ten years, during which time she and her husband have both had steady employment. Because of a condition in the office, one of us is forced to leave. She has been with the company for four years, so her two years' seniority means I'll be out of work—perhaps indefinitely.

I do not suppose this is an exception, but it is one of those instances where a married woman, not dependent upon her own salary, is actually taking the bread and butter from people who are really in need. MARY M. LINE.

THE PRICE OF GAS.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—Suppose the Commonwealth Edison company closed the major part of its generating plants in Chicago and brought us electricity from Niagara falls. Lower production cost, they would say. And suppose they told their customers they would have to pay more for their new electricity brought from Niagara because it had a higher British candle power unit. Lower production cost and higher consumer cost. Doesn't sound sensible, does it? Still the gas company is doing just this by charging us more for natural gas than they did for manufactured gas, under the disguise of British thermal units. If one complains, they write you a letter telling you that the cost of the new gas is slightly higher for the same reason that cream costs more than milk. It's richer. The cow must be fed, but the gas company has a lower production cost. WARD HAMMEL.

MAYBE.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—Having fought the last war to "make the world safe for democracy" and also to "end all wars," will the mothers of these United States be so gullible again and believe the propaganda fed us, and allow our sons to fare forth again to fight, or will they unite into a solid force and dare the politicians to do their worse?

And will you, an exponent of free speech, print this? ONE MOTHER.

RUTH JUDD SLEW IN JEALOUS RAGE, SPECIALIST SAYS

Declares Blond Slayer Is Staging a Show.

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 4.—Had Winnie Ruth Judd not had an intense love affair with J. J. Halloran, wealthy Phoenix "playboy," there would have been no "double trunk murder case," Dr. Joseph Catton, San Francisco psychiatrist, testified today that Mrs. Judd told him.

DR. JOSEPH CATTON [Acme Photo.]

After telling the jury of Mrs. Judd's description of an extra marital love life that continued nearly 10 months, Dr. Catton said:

"I asked her if there would have been any Ruth Judd case without Jack Halloran and she said no. I asked her then why she did not tell the complete story to me."

"She said 'I can't see where it is going to do me any good and it might harm others'."

Halloran Again Involved.

Dr. Cotton introduced a startling note in the trial when he turned to his questioning of Mrs. Judd regarding her use of alcohol.

"I asked her whether she drank and she said she was not a drinking woman. I asked her if she drank anything on the day of the crimes and she said no. I asked her if she drank anything at the house on that night and she said no. I asked her if any one else drank there that night and she said, 'the only one who drank was Jack,' and immediately clapped her hand over her mouth and refused to go further."

Dr. Catton charged that Mrs. Judd is sane, has every normal action and reaction, every normal emotion, and is merely "staging a show" in the courtroom for the benefit of the jury when she professes complete disinterest.

And as if involuntarily substantiating his testimony, Mrs. Judd laughed a moment later when the psychiatrist inadvertently pronounced the name of one of her attorneys, "Saverneck."

Dr. Catton stressed strongly what Mrs. Judd told him during his examination:

"I don't know what story I'll tell. If things don't go the way they are planned, I'll get up and tell everything. I'll even lie to the jury if its necessary."

Bares Intimate Love Life.

Mrs. Judd told me, Dr. Catton said, that her intimacy with Halloran began Christmas eve in 1930 and continued to within "10 or 14 days" of the dual trunk slaying on Oct. 16 last.

"She told me that while her life with her husband was satisfactory and all she expected," Dr. Catton testified, "This other love afair was wilder, more satisfying, and greater than anything she had ever known."

"She said she wanted a baby by this man, thought for a time she was going to have one—and was disappointed when she found she was wrong."

Dr. Catton was preceded to the stand by Lee FitzHigh, neighbor of Mrs. Judd, and Dr. J. D. Mauldin, county physician, who testified that in their opinion the defendant was sane.

Court recessed this afternoon until Saturday morning, Friday being Arbor day and a legal holiday in southern Arizona.

BANK REPORTS AMOUNT TAKEN BY EMBEZZLER

The Lake Shore Trust and Savings bank announced yesterday that the completion of an audit by independent auditors showed that the defalcations of D. G. Wieland, absconding assistant cashier of the bank, totaled $110,211. The loss is fully covered by insurance.

The audit covered cash and securities in all departments of the bank, including trust, safe keeping, collateral, savings, and other departments, and all accounts were found correct and all cash and securities intact, the auditors reported.

Wieland, who formerly lived at 5505 Winthrop avenue, fled Dec. 18 when the first of his embezzlements, a shortage of $1,300, was uncovered. A warrant for his arrest was obtained at that time, and police have been searching for him since.

He took the money by manipulation of several large commercial accounts, it is charged, and is reported to have lost most of it betting on horse races.

ATTACKED BY HER WATCHDOG, AGED WOMAN MAY DIE

Six months ago Robert Cremierex, 30 years old, bought a police dog to protect his grandmother, Mrs. Caroline Lloyd, 80 years old, while he was away from their home at 1248 Wrightwood avenue. When Cremierex arrived home yesterday noon, he found that the dog had attacked his grandmother.

Sheffield police took Mrs. Lloyd to the County hospital, unconscious and suffering from severe lacerations. Attendants at the hospital said last night that she had slight chance of recovery.

Cremierex, a fruit peddler, asked the police to kill the dog. The animal was locked up in a cell at the Sheffield police station to await execution at the dog pound.

SUSPECT JAILED IN MURDER OF BROOKLYN GIRL

Child, 5, Strangled; Body Found in Cellar.

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—A frantic neighborhood search for 5 year old Florence McDonnell of Brooklyn, missing since yesterday, ended in the finding of the girl's body just before noon today in a cellar in Ralph avenue, within 75 feet of her home. She had been strangled.

Shortly after midnight the police arrested Frederick Hicks, 51 year old Negro, and charged him with killing the child. Hicks, a moving van driver, was slightly acquainted with the McDonnell family, having done some work for Mr. McDonnell.

Hicks had been detained by the police since early in the afternoon after he admitted, the police said, that he had seen the slain girl yesterday afternoon. So far as the police could determine no one had been found who had seen her alive since that hour. Hicks, according to the police, although denying the killing, told conflicting stories and his arrest was ordered finally. He will be arraigned on a homicide charge today.

Neighborhood Aroused.

The Ralph avenue neighborhood, one of small stores and drab tenements inhabited by working folk and swarming with children, was in a state bordering on panic today for the killing of the McDonnell girl was only one of a number of outrages against children in the Bushwick section of Brooklyn in the last year. A year ago 7 year old Betty McDonnell, Florence's sister, was enticed into a cellar. Her screams brought her mother, however, and the man was frightened away before he could harm her.

Florence, a plump, rosy cheeked blue eyed girl, spirited and smiling, had just finished kindergarten at Public School 70. She attended Sunday school at the Roman Catholic church of the Holy Rosary near her home. Yesterday she went out to play. At 4 o'clock her sister Betty went out to find her.

"I can't find Flossie anywhere," she told her mother.

Mrs. McDonnell went out to hunt for her. None of the other children in the street could tell her anything. When Mr. McDonnell returned he joined in the search.

The searchers finally turned into Ralph avenue around the corner from the McDonnell flat. At the foot of a cellar they found Florence's body, lying in the dusty litter of the concrete floor. The girl was clothed in a suit of checkered red velvet and her fur trimmed green overcoat. A single strand of wire, such as is used for the lead-ins of radio aerials, was bound tightly around her neck.

Ask $80,000 of Hoot Gibson for Injury in Auto Crash

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Called from a motion picture location, Hoot Gibson, film actor, was ordered into court today as defendant in an $80,367 damage action brought by Byron Hobbis and his wife, Mrs. Mary Hobbis. They asserted they were injured in an accident with Gibson's automobile last Aug. 7 and accused Gibson of driving recklessly.

AIRMAIL PILOT, HURT IN MICHIGAN CRACKUP, IS DEAD OF INJURIES

Kalamazoo, Mich., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Francis H. Rust, 34, air mail pilot for Transamerican Airlines corporation, who crashed Monday night near Marcellius, Mich., when he ran into a snow squall while flying the mail to Chicago, died this morning in Bronson hospital. Rust lay near his wrecked plane for 17 hours, his leg broken and severely bruised, until he was found by a searching party. He suffered from shock and exposure. Both his hands were frozen. He had attempted to cover himself with the folds of his partly opened parachute. Rust's home was in Galveston, Tex.

WHISKY BRITISH, NOT GERMAN! SIX DISTILLERS SUE

BERLIN, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The claim that real whisky cannot be made anywhere outside the British Isles appeared in a Berlin court today. Six well known British distilleries have entered suit against a German firm to force it to refrain from calling its product "whisky."

The Britishers maintained that whisky was purely a British product which could not be made elsewhere. Because of its special character, they said, whisky is dependent on British climate and the name has been closely bound to Britain.

The German defendant distillery asserted its product was made from imported whisky and German malt.

BY WILLIAM IRVIN.

The big trouble with table manners today, or table etiquete rather, is that they are designed to keep you from enjoying your meal once it is set before you, as if one didn't have enough troubles already with vitamins, calories, and French menu cards. We're hemmed in all around with annoying little rules, customs and traditions which, were one to obey a fraction of them, would cause him to end up in a sulk. You don't have to go back very far, either, to find out where all this nonsense started.

About 1600 we find that somebody with nothing better to do got up a lot of rules about eating, known as a "Civilite." This was in England. According to these rules of order "one ought sometimes to look off the meat, which is before others"; "he must not lick his fingers or wipe them on the bread"; [how disgusting]; "do not try to eat soup with a fork," says the "Civilite," but gives no reasons. Still further on we find the "Civilite" decreed that when a lady drank at the table an attendant held a napkin under her chin, meaning, of course, that the lady couldn't very well drink and hold the napkin at the same time. [As a matter of fact you really can't see where you are spilling whatever it is you're quaffing when you drink like that, with your whole face in the cup.]

Queen Started Using a Fork.

It was along about this time that Queen Elizabeth took to using a fork, which was looked upon by her subjects as an affectation. [Queens have been beheaded for less than that, so you can see that Elizabeth was a brave and courageous sovereign, but alas, O queen, wouldst that thou could have forseen what thou was starting!] The idea finally caught on and now see where we are—with four or five salad, oyster, dessert, and meat forks, to say nothing of a flock of knives and spoons. To further complicate matters we establish a silly custom of placing everything on the table in exact juxtaposition to something else, particularly silverware.

You can easily see what a fix a guest can get himself into when he starts nervously tampering with this arrangement, shifting the lineup until he has all of the end pieces in the back field, with an assistant soup spoon calling signals.

A nervous diner is an inveterate tamperer [tamp, tamp, tamp the —] and you can't just coldly put a sign by his plate saying, "Please Do Not Touch," because he might take it too literally. If, on the other hand, such a sign were used, it would seem only fair to replace it at the proper time with one that said, "Soup's On."

But even this arrangement wouldn't be entirely satisfactory, for to compel a guest to sit staring at a neat array of knives, forks, and spoons drawn up in front of him with military preciseness without being able to adjust this or that piece just a teeny weeny bit, or to jump a deserving spoon up ahead of an oyster fork, might easily drive him to biting his finger nails or to talking under his breath.

Here's a Solution!

The only solution, as I see it, which would put the nervous diner entirely at his ease and on an equality with the other guests [the smug things] would be to make a game of the whole proceedings. It might be something like "fruit basket's upset," in which everybody, at a signal from the host or hostess, would dump all of his silverware in the middle of the table, and then count to ten slowly. At another signal the guests would retrieve the proper number of knives, forks, and spoons from the heap and rearrange them precisely as they were, the idea being to see who could do it first and correctly.

This would make everybody feel at home. Carrying the idea even further, certain penalties could be imposed on those guests who dilly-dallied about rearranging their silver, or who didn't replace it correctly. Any one who spent more than half an hour fussing with his lineup could be made to do without his dessert, and for every piece of silver that was out of place another part of the meal could be subtracted. [Those who had it all wrong might be sent into the kitchen to practice until they had mastered the idea.] There would always be some, of course, who would go home hungry, but wouldn't it be lots of fun?

Other irritating little tabus that we have allowed to creep into our eating are ones such as that breach of etiquette committed when you lean your knife or fork against your plate instead of placing them horizontally parallel on the plate when you have finished, and also the one that says you shouldn't push back your plate with a snort of contentment when you are through eating.

HAVE YOU A SAND BLASTED EGG IN YOUR HOME?

New Machine Rids Shell of Dirt and Stain.

BY EVERETT SWINGLE.

Have you a sand blasted egg in your home? You probably wouldn't know such an egg if you saw one, yet there is a sand blasting machine in Chicago used for artistic retouching of some of the eggs sold in this and nearby cities.

There are even members of the poultry and egg trading industry who are somewhat at a loss when asked just what the machine does to an egg.

Sand blasting is a means of ridding egg shells of stains and dirt, just as larger and somewhat differently constructed machines are used for cleaning the exteriors of the city's skyscrapers.

But eggshells are constructed far different from the stone and mortar of skyscrapers, and development of the machine was accompanied by obvious ingenuity. Several cases of 30 dozen eggs to a case are accommodated at one time on the moving belt of the apparatus.

How It Works.

The eggs roll slowly down under the blast of sand. The sand itself is exceedingly fine and is blown at a speed which will accomplish the work of cleaning and yet not injure the shell or the interior. Workers alongside the moving belt serve as inspectors while the eggs are again placed in containers for reshipping.

The quality of the yolk and white is in no way affected by this process, according to reports on tests. For, after all, the exterior of an egg is but little indication of what's inside. That quality was determined when the egg was laid and also by the proper or improper refrigeration between gathering in the nest and placing the egg on the table, experts tell us.

No estimate is available on the number of eggs treated in a year, but the users report that the machine is running only in those months when the high prices for fresh eggs put a premium on an egg that can pass the critical eyes and exacting tastes of those who know good eggs.

Chicago Has Egg Blaster.

Experiments have shown that the air driven sand will put such a natural gloss on an egg that has been in storage for several months that the shell looks like that of a new laid egg. As far as is known, however, the machine is not used for this purpose on storage eggs, but merely for taking off dirt and stains on fresh grades.

Although this process has been used for about a decade there are few of these machines. Chicago has one and so does New York. Another was recently set up for egg producers in Australia and three or four out in Washington, Oregon, and California.

THREE MEALS A DAY

From the Tribune Cook Book

BY MARY MEADE.

Friday justifies a fish story—Friday and the nearness of the Lenten season.

For the easiest possible fish dinner buy the breaded fish cutlets now available at the markets—though only at the large markets. Halibut steaks, for instance, are cut, trimmed, boned, breaded, and even fried. All you have to do is to reheat the fish in the oven and serve—probably with tartar sauce. The fish is so easy to buy—just purchase the number of pieces necessary for your family; so clean to carry home; so simple to serve. There are no left-overs, no disagreeable cleaning, no waste, no time spent on preparation. In addition to all these things in its favor, this fish is delightfully good and easy to eat.

Another fairly new fish product is the boneless perch. Here, too, there is no cleaning, no odor, no waste, no trouble. Just whole fillets of fresh, clean, firm fleshed perch. And without bones. That's the main point. The perch has not been cooked, though. You will have to first dip the pieces in flour or corn meal or cracker crumbs and then fry in butter until a golden brown. Perch, too, is fine served with tartar sauce. Or just drawn butter sauce will bring out the flavor.

TROUT LOUISIANE.

2 or 3 lbs. trout
2 inch slice of bread
½ cup milk
3 tbsp. butter
2 eggs
Salt, pepper, cayenne, pinch of thyme, etc.
1 tsp. chopped onion

Clean the fish well and boil until tender in water to which has been added salt, onion, a pinch of thyme, bay leaf, cloves, allspice, cayenne, and pepper. Chill it, skin, and remove the bones, and flake it. Take out the inside of the bread, discarding the crust, soak it, press dry, and combine with the fish. Then add the milk, salt, pepper, and cayenne. To the beaten eggs add the melted butter and add these also to the fish with the rest of the seasoning. Pour into the buttered molds and bake [the molds placed in a pan of water] in a hot oven [425 degrees F.] for 15 minutes. Serve with the following sauce:

SAUCE FOR TROUT LOUISIANE.

1 cup flour
½ cup butter
1½ cups milk
1 can mushrooms
Pepper and salt
Sherry flavoring

Sift the salt and pepper with the flour and add it gradually to the butter which has been melted. Add the milk, stirring constantly. Allow it to boil 2 minutes. Lastly add the mushrooms and flavoring, and as soon as mushrooms are heated through, serve.

Pot Roast Beef and Bacon Selling at New Low Prices

In its regular weekly report issued for the guidance of consumers, the committee on marketing information of the meat council of Chicago states:

"Pot roast of beef and bacon represent the most economical meat buys over the coming week-end. Bacon is an especially attractive buy now as it is selling in many cases from 1-3 to ½ lower than one year ago."

Household Hints

A pair of gloves is an invaluable part of the cleaning equipment if smooth, white, attractive hands are valued.

Before measuring molasses for recipes dip the cup or spoon in scalding water and the molasses will turn out more quickly.

Short stockings can cause almost as much trouble as short shoes. Buy them half an inch longer than the foot to allow for some shrinking and plenty of toe room.

Hang up the frequently-used kitchen utensils whenever possible. It is much easier to find a small utensil like an eggbeater when it hangs on the wall than when it lies on a shelf or in a drawer among other utensils.

MASSACHUSETTS REGARDED AS U. S. APPLE NURSERY

Massachusetts is the cradle of American horticulture, according to records in the division of horticulture at the Massachusetts State college. Studies conducted at various times by the college fruit specialists indicate that a total of 142 named varieties of apples have been developed in that state by fruit growers and breeders.

Of those the Baldwin apple probably is the most prominent today. This apple originated in Wilmington about the year 1740, so far as can be determined from old records, and today constitutes the principal variety in New England commercial orchards. Hubbardston is a variety which takes its name from the town in which it was originated approximately 100 years ago.

Benoni, mother, fall orange, roxbury russet, and Tolman sweet are other Massachusetts bred varieties that are still prominent today. In addition to the apples that originated in this state, the Massachusetts Horticultural society, nearly a century ago, imported several European varieties that are still prominent commercially in this country. These include Alexander, Duchess of Oldenburg and Tetofsky.

The oldest planted fruit tree in America is a pear tree between Danvers and Salem on the farm once owned by Gov. John Endicott. There is some evidence to indicate that the tree was brought over from England in 1630 by Gov. Winthrop.

EVERY WOMAN faces this question

"How do I look to other people?" If you have a lovely skin, attractive eyes, and plenty of enthusiasm, you need not worry.

So many women, though, risk their beauty by neglect of constipation. It often causes loss of pep, sallow skins, dull eyes, pimples.

Yet constipation can be overcome by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. This cereal provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B which tones the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also supplies iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Special cooking processes make it finer, more palatable. It is not habit-forming.

Surely this is safer than abusing the system with pills and drugs—so often habit-forming.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will correct most types of constipation. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

At all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

MEDICAL GROUP STUDIES CLAIMS MADE FOR FOODS

Products Must Pass Tests to Win Approval.

BY PAUL POTTER.

In the midst of a maze of "new discoveries," new secret processes, new lore on the vitamin or "health" values being claimed for many foods, who among those of us classed as potential consumers is capable of charting a clear course into the open?

DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN.

One logically determines that the physician is that person. But, it has developed in recent years, many physicians have been unable to determine which foods are truthfully offered and which are not. In the field of medicine, chemicals and drugs have been given a scientific rating. Now the medical profession has set out to accomplish the same service to the public and itself in the realm of foods.

For nearly two years the American Medical association at 535 North Dearborn street has been laying the groundwork for a sort of supreme court on food products. It is known as the committee on foods, of which Dr. Morris Fishbein is chairman.

Its accomplishments already in this pioneering enterprise are attracting attention of manufacturers, the advertising fraternity, physicians, and the public.

Fishbein Explains Work.

Dr. Fishbein explains that the committee's work is going beyond and supplementing the administration of the pure food laws, both state and federal. No product can expect approval of the association until it satisfies all such legislation. In addition, however, the product itself must meet the claims made for it before the public, on a basis of "truth in advertising" and the nutritional knowledge now recognized by science.

"Notwithstanding the lack of exact information on which to make definite claims for various natural as well as synthetic food products," states Dr. Fishbein, "both the medical profession and the public have been deluged with screaming announcements concerning the health giving qualities of such preparations. Foods are sold as health foods, as tonic foods, and as vitalizing foods."

Citing this situation as the immediate cause of creating the association's committee to establish fundamental standards in food promotion and use, Dr. Fishbein adds:

"The spring tonic of the past containing sulphur and molasses, the iron, quinine, and strychnine which has been for years the staple tonic of the dispensaries, and even such patent medicine tonics as depended primarily on old John Barleycorn for the impetus which they gave to a sluggish circulation and a lassitudinous mind have given way to the vitamin tonic and health food."

"All or Nothing."

The American people, this committee finds, are given to "all or nothing" policies in what they do for health. Told that orange juice is healthful and contains vitamin C as well as tending to overcome acidosis, "they are likely to drink so much orange juice as to upset the digestion and to make impossible the taking of additional necessary food substances."

Certain fundamentals have already been determined to the satisfaction of this group that is delving constantly into the claims and precise merits of foods offered the public or for prescribing by a physician.

One of these is that no special health claims for chocolate, cocoa or products consisting in considerable part of these are permissible for children. Products using these for flavoring must base their claims on qualities of the basic foods themselves.

Another finding of the committee is that all that savors and tastes of tomato juice may not be tomato juice such as you or your physician really expects to obtain. Canned or bottled tomato juice, to be acceptable to this committee, then, must possess substantially as much vitamin content as that of raw tomato juice, unless plainly labeled to the contrary.

Errors Are Cited.

"In most cases we have found that manufacturers of foods submitted to us have committed errors of carelessness in handling of advertising claims or actually believed their statements were true," declares Raymond Hertwig, secretary of the committee. "We work closely and in confidence with these people, avoiding adverse publicity except in isolated cases where the products are plainly misrepresented."

The only expense involved on the part of a manufacturer of a food in submitting it for consideration is that of obtaining a detailed laboratory report from an impartial source, together with submission of all claims made for the product, its precise content, how manufactured or processed, and the source of all ingredients.

This information is compiled in detail to form a permanent record for the association, and is later to be published as a guide to manufacturers, physicians, dietitians and writers of advertising on foods.

Carries Official Seal.

Having been approved, the food product is permitted to carry an official seal to that effect, and the approval may be capitalized upon by the manufacturer, so long as his claims and product remain within the association's requirements. More than 300 foods have been approved thus far and very few have become openly "rejected."

Perhaps the most unusual case this committee has handled is that of a product recently analyzed for its claims as a non-drug means of curing insomnia. These claims were refuted by the committee, although the product had not been submitted by its makers.

Potatoes Destined for Tin Jackets

COLOR IS IMPORTANT IN RAISING CROP OF VEGETABLES TO CAN

Truck farmers growing crops for canning factories are learning to discriminate against certain varieties which lack the desirable color in the can, according to the vegetable crops department of Cornell university. The latest study made on this subject is of red beets, the color of which should be deep purple rather than brick red, according to growers, canners and crop experts.

FARMERS IN U. S. SLASH POTATO ACREAGE 2 PCT.

Reports from farmers who grow the major portion of the commercial potato crop in the United States indicate that the acreage this year will be about two per cent below last year. The estimated area to be devoted to the crop this year is 3,328,000 acres, as compared with 3,382,000 acres in 1931.

EAT OATMEAL AND BE HUSKY, LIKE SCOTSMAN

It's a Dominant Dish on Breakfast Table.

BY BETTY BROWNING.

The Englishman and the Scotsman were having another of their disputes and this time it was on the merits of oats. The Englishman, vexed at his opponent's argumentativeness, finally blurted out, "You Scots may eat oats, but in England we feed them to asses." To which the Scotsman is said to have retorted, "And where will you find bigger asses than in England, and bigger men than in Scotland?"

Whether this tale be true or not only the friend who told it to me can say. At any rate, it serves to illustrate the wide difference of opinion that exists as to the fitness of oats as a food—with most parents on the side of the Scotsman, and most children taking the Englishman's viewpoint.

Oats Rich in Protein.

The weighty food encyclopedia at my elbow steers a middle course in the controversy, tactfully terming oats "a grain cultivated as food for men and horses." But no, in the next paragraph it steps in, a bit didactically withal, on the Scotsman's side and the parents': "Oats are rich in protein, containing more fat than other grains commonly eaten."

Such being the pronouncement, it may be presumed that for some time to come children still will be urged through the morning bowl of oatmeal to the tune of "Pease porridge hot, pease porridge cold." What does not the world owe that unknown genius who composed the ditty which has beguiled numberless generations of reluctant infants into consuming health giving oatmeal?

Many Ways to Serve It.

But even more credit is due those business men who got hold of oatmeal just a few years ago and made it the dominant dish on the American breakfast table. Not content with proclaiming its virtues in the highways and byways, they have suggested dozens of ways of serving it that improve it far more than the years of "Pease porridge hot" singing have ever done. He who has never tried oatmeal with bananas or other fruits as the advertisements suggest has missed one of art's greatest triumphs over nature.

Oatmeal got off to a bad start in this country as gruel for invalids, we are told. Breakfast food was the next step, and now bigger things seems to be in store for it. Like oatmeal or not, editorials are being written about it in these difficult times. The frugal Scotsman who waxes strong on a diet exclusively of oats and the hardier vegetables is being upheld as an example to Americans who wish to live economically yet wholesomely. And it is being pointed out that he does not live on breakfast food.

Which brings us back to the original characters in our story and to a conversation I once overheard on the relative merits of Scottish tea and English. This particular Scotsman, having waited his turn while the Englishman extolled buns and cake, strawberry preserves, Devonshire cream, and other appurtenances of an English tea, launched on a dissertation which established the fact that scones, most famous of English tea dishes, are originally Scotch and also originally of oatmeal.

Nor did he stop there. He went on to describe oatmeal wafers and oatmeal cookies served with tea, delicacies more delectable than scones or anything made of oatmeal that ever crossed the Scottish border. Before the session adjourned the old legend that the Scots live on oatmeal porridge was exploded and frugality established as compatible with epicureanism.

Following are these truly Scottish dainties, delicious and healthful, which will fit into the most modest menu without upsetting the budget.

Then came another revolutionary parliamentary innovation. Sir Herbert Samuel, home secretary, rose from the cabinet bench and spoke for four cabinet dissenters to the government program.

"The proposals will convert Britain definitely into a protectionist country like those of continental Europe," he said. "I want Britain to take a definite lead in the movement to lower tariffs—a movement which is springing up all over Europe and which rose out of the bitter experience in the hindering of international trade."

Leading Conservatives tonight demanded that Sir Herbert's resignation from the cabinet should be demanded.

A preferential tariff treatment for British dominions will be worked out at an imperial conference in Ottawa July 18. Meanwhile the dominions will be unaffected.

NOTES OF AUTO SHOW

The 32d national automobile show yesterday reported sales and attendance exceeding the 1931 and 1930 figures. Tomorrow night the exhibition in the Coliseum and the salon of custom built cars in the Drake hotel will close.

If the present volume of sales continues, executives believe it will mark a partial release of postponed replacements worthy of an optimistic forecast for 1932 automobile business. The volume of show sales is due in part to the fact that more new models were introduced at the show this year than ever before.

However, reduced prices and style and mechanical improvements may effect an upturn for the 4,000,000 who depend entirely or in part upon the automobile industry for a livelihood.

Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of General Motors corporation, in a dispatch yesterday from New York announced that the corporation is distributing $7,862,459 to 30,222 of its employés who invested in the company's savings and investment fund class of 1926. Fifty per cent more employés are sharing in the distribution this year than a year ago. The present settlement consists of $4,923,341 in cash and 129,905 shares of General Motors stock.

Five hundred attended the annual Dodge Brothers' dealer luncheon in the Drake hotel yesterday. The speakers were K. T. Keller, president; O. J. Paul, regional manager; and A. Van Der Zee, general sales manager.

L. P. Fisher, president of Cadillac, announced that the company in January had a total production of 2,139 units, the largest January output "for several years, excepting 1929."

OUSTED PASTOR EXONERATED BY CHURCH COUNCIL

A council of the Congregational church last night exonerated the Rev. Dr. Frank Dyer of charges which were used to deprive him of his ministerial standing in Los Angeles in June, 1928, and recommended that the Los Angeles Association of Congregational Ministers and Congregations reinstate him in the ministry. It was the latter body which ousted him.

It was charged against Dr. Dyer that he had brought disgrace on his church, the Wilshire Congregational of Los Angeles, by promoting a benefit boxing match with the coöperation of Jack Dempsey. Padded church membership rolls also were alleged.

The council meeting was held in the Ravenswood Congregational church and was attended by representatives of about 50 churches. The members, headed by Dr. Donald J. Cowling of Carleton college, Northfield, Minn., held that the evidence produced against Dr. Dyer was not sufficient to substantiate the charges or to justify ousting him from the ministry.

Rain Causes a Landslide in Downtown Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 5.—[Special.]—A minor landslide toppled the ridge of a 100 foot embankment into the central downtown area late last night, damaging the Patterson hotel, on Clay street, between Hill and Olive streets, in the section known as "Bunker Hill." The avalanche buried portions of an automobile park, toppling telephone poles and retaining walls into a lower level alley way. G. Walker, guest in the hotel, had a narrow escape from death as the hurtling débris crashed into his room. The landslide was caused by recent rains, which poured down for three days this week.

LOESCH FAVORS SECRET GROUP TO FIGHT KIDNAPERS

Interstate Organization Is Seen as Remedy.

Frank J. Loesch, 79 year old president of the Chicago Crime commission, yesterday advocated the establishment of an interstate secret organization to combat kidnapers. The prevalence of kidnaping for ransom, which Mr. Loesch termed "the most detestable of crimes and wholly foreign to American thoughts," has created a condition which he said must be met by business men as well as by public officials.

F. J. LOESCH. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mr. Loesch called attention to the recent kidnaping of Howard A. Woolverton of South Bend. In that crime, Mr. Loesch said, warning was given that anybody having a few dollars or thought to have means may be "next." The terror experienced by the victim and his family usually unnerves the one who would be interested in bringing the criminals to justice, Mr. Loesch said, with the result that prosecutions for kidnaping are rare.

How Plan Would Work.

In his opinion, the crime commission president asserted, the prevalence of kidnapings is due to the activities of a well organized gang operating in several states, with lesser gangs being responsible for some of the minor kidnapings.

"An interstate organization should be formed of citizens who would have the suppression of kidnapings and the arrest and prosecution of kidnapers as its single object," Mr. Loesch said.

"No one outside the membership need know who are the members. The head should be an experienced man publicly known, who would give his whole time to the work. All contact with paid employés must be through him alone. The outside employés should not be known to each other except where the work may require contact of two.

Predicts Certain Success.

"This organization must be as secret as the criminal organization tried to be, for without that the workings of the latter cannot be discovered. It is certain that the ransom money gotten by the kidnapers leaves traces which can be gotten on to or followed. The underworld talks."

"It will take time, silent work, money, and much patience, but the end will be the success of the law in wiping out the criminal organization."

The grand jury considered the subject of kidnaping yesterday in connection with its inquiry into the escape from the county jail of Cornelius Montague, who was held as one of the ransom kidnapers of Dr. Max Gecht and his wife. The jurors questioned Assistant Sheriff Frank Wright, who issued the pass which gave Montague his opportunity to walk out of the jail, his brother, Stanley, remaining behind to take his place.

DOCTOR HAS NO RIGHT TO TELL PATIENT HOW TO BREW, JUDGE HOLDS

Springfield, Mo., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—A physician has no authority to instruct his patients on how to make home brew, Judge Argus Cox of the Court of Appeals ruled here today.

John Baxter, Barry county farmer, who was sentenced to 45 days in jail for making home brew, appealed when the court refused to permit him to introduce testimony that a physician had prescribed home brew for his sick wife.

GEORGIA BANDITS CAPTURED AFTER BATTLING POSSE

Pair Beat Police Chief with His Own Gun.

Macon, Ga., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Two young bandits who kidnaped and robbed a Macon man and later abducted the chief of police of Barnesville, Ga., were captured in a swamp north of Milner this morning after they spread a trail of gunfire across middle Georgia.

Macon police who assisted in the capture said the men, who are from Atlanta, had high ambition but poor aim. They gave their names as J. M. Wilson and A. T. Wheelis, each about 20 years old.

J. P. Wheeler, Macon, shortly before midnight Wednesday was held up as he started to get into his car. The two men drove Wheeler to the city limits, relieved him of $47 in cash and a $225 watch, and drove toward Atlanta in his car, leaving him in the road.

Stolen Auto Found.

Meantime Macon police spread word of the stolen automobile, and the following morning Police Chief Scott Rievere of Barnesville located it parked on a side street there. Barnesville is about 40 miles from Macon.

Chief Rievere later arrested the men at a filling station and loaded them into an auto. Nearing downtown Barnesville, they produced pistols. Wilson seized the steering wheel while Wheelis grabbed the chief. As the struggle went on, Wilson drove out of town toward Atlanta, and an alarm was spread through the county. About 20 automobiles of armed men took after the kidnapers.

After a chase of three miles Wilson got control of Rievere's pistol, tapped the chief on the head with it, and threw his victim out of the car to the pavement.

Gun Battle Ensues.

A running gun battle between the two cars was in progress for several miles, a shot punctured the bandits' tire, and they abandoned the car.

Reinforcements came and the two were captured in a swamp after a further exchange of bullets, during which Wilson was wounded in the arm. The bandits were taken to the Barnesville jail, where Wheeler's watch was found on them.

LEAGUE OPENS DRIVE FOR FUNDS TO HIRE 5,000 POLL WATCHERS

Nine members of the executive committee of the Non-Partisan Voters' league gathered in County Judge Jarecki's chambers yesterday and began a campaign to raise $35,000 with which to employ 5,000 watchers at the polls during the April primary and the presidential election in November.

The aim of the league is to have a non-partisan watcher to report irregularities in every one of the 3,180 precincts under the control of the election commissioners. Elections in Berwyn, Chicago Heights, Cicero, and Evergreen Park as well as in Chicago are conducted by the commissioners. The watchers are to be former service men who will be instructed to report immediately any irregularities or any trouble.

Members of the league who attended the meeting included: President R. C. Butler, Secretary C. B. Hopkins, Mrs. Murry Nelson and Mrs. C. H. Parks, John D. Black, T. Q. Beesley, T. B. Crockett, and W. L. Furbeshaw.

VOTE TO INDICT GUARD AS KILLER OF BOY ATHLETE

A true bill charging murder was reported to have been voted by the grand jury late yesterday against Alex Roney, 46 years old, watchman at the Dr. Herzl community center at 1335 North California avenue, who shot and killed Louis Lakin, 18 years old, a Tuley High school athlete, on Jan. 17. At the inquest a coroner's jury recommended that Roney be held for manslaughter.

Lakin and several other youths had planned to force their way into a community dance in the Herzl center. They were on the fire escape when Roney ordered them down. After they had descended, according to Assistant State's Attorneys Abraham Marovitz and Edwin Spiro, who presented the evidence to the grand jury, Roney fired point-blank at Lakin.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste, and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

"You gotta Die to win . . .

★ POPULAR FALLACIES OF BUSINESS ★

THERE'S A FALLACY FOR YOU! Life insurance is not for the man who dies. It's for the living, himself included. Out of the earnings of his best years, it helps him meet emergencies, such as sickness and old age, as well as providing for dependents after he has gone.

For example, an old gentleman died in New York not long ago, who had $7,000 on which he drew 4 per cent interest, or $23.33 a month. He had not been ill—there was no obvious clew as to the cause of his death. It was slow starvation. He wasn't a miser, but he didn't want to draw on his principal for living expenses. He was apparently afraid he might live too long.

Within three blocks of the old gentleman's room is a life insurance company. That company would have taken his $7,000 and paid him an annuity of $60.00 a month so long as he had lived.

Not an unusual example—60 per cent of all the payments life insurance companies make go to living policyholders.

Nation's Business interprets constantly the developments and trends in the insurance field because insurance is one of the greatest business tools. It assures stability to a business by removing the hazards of death and the consequent disruption of business managements. It is the most important single agency for supplying capital to business; 22 per cent of the funds used by railroads, 6 per cent of those used by public utilities, 14 per cent of the money for public bonds, 40 per cent of the money for farm and city mortgages is furnished by insurance companies.

You should know the economic forces that affect insurance—the penalties which governmental action, such as unwise taxation, are placing on insurance. For these, in turn, come down on you.

Darrow Tells His Own Life Story in Book

Works of Three Other Authors Issued.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Story of My Life," by Clarence Darrow. [Scribners.] Published today.

Also published today:

"That Was Yesterday," by Storm Jameson. [Knopf.]

"The Saginaw Paul Bunyan," by James Stevens. [Knopf.]

"Rackety Rax," by Joel Sayre. [Knopf.]

ONE of the eagerly awaited volumes of the season is Clarence Darrow's autobiography which is published today. Those who dislike Mr. Darrow and his ideas as well as those who think of him as a modern prophet have been impatient for its publication, both groups eager for proof of their divergent contentions about their hero or their villain, and all wondering what life has really meant to him as he looks back over seventy-five years.

In "The Story of My Life" Mr. Darrow's devotees will find proof of his uncompromising adherence to his ideals of free thinking, the human waste of capital punishment, the inefficacy of punishment of crime in general, the brotherhood of man and his right to "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

In it those who think Clarence Darrow a subversive force in modern thought and life will find him declaring that man has no foundation for believing in the orthodox Christian faith, or in life after death, that crime is a result of social maladjustment, not of inherent "original sin," and that man has no right to punish his fellow men. They will see him as the eager defender of political criminals and ruthless murderers. They will find him admitting that he was always on the wrong—that is, the unpopular—side of every question except the war, and they will find him suspecting his own judgments when he found himself for the first time with the majority.

Clarence Darrow explains his attitude toward the war as the inevitable result of emotional stimulus. He says that he was emotionally, not rationally, on the side of the allies, and after explaining the causes of his intense emotional feeling for them he makes out a case for the Germans as the result of his afterthoughts about the war. Mr. Darrow in his autobiography is that strange anomaly, a rationalist with overpowering sentiments. His sentiment for the under dog made him constitutionally incapable of refraining from taking its part, he makes clear.

Such a person is bound to be misunderstood by his fellow men. The rationalists can't abide his sentiments. The sentimentalists find his rationalism abhorrent.

Mr. Darrow tells the actual story of his legal and political life, using the facts as a springboard from which to leap into statements of his philosophy of life. The book is written exactly as if Mr. Darrow were talking. It has no special suavity or beauty of language. It does not place its author among the great literary men of his day. But it has a definite vitality of style, the power of a speaker who can—as Mr. Darrow has done during his life—sway an audience by the sheer force of his vitality and his conviction.

About the other important books published today:

You remember the trilogy which Storm Jameson wrote about the Hervey family which built ships and made (and wrecked) happinesses? In "That Was Yesterday" Hervey Russell, the granddaughter of old Mary Hervey, does a wholesale wrecking of her own and her husband's happiness because she is too young to know how to keep such a fragile sloop afloat.

Two volumes of American folklore are published today in "Rackety Rax" and "The Saginaw Paul Bunyan," one of American lore in the making and the other of an already established saga. Paul Bunyan has been for years a part of every lumberman's conversational equipment. The story of the invincible Paul has been to him what whistling in the dark is to a little boy. James Stevens, who set down the tall tales of the Paul Bunyan of the great northwest, has tracked Paul to the great lakes and found him a figure of different proportions. He does a heroic sized sketch of him in "The Saginaw Paul Bunyan."

Joel Sayre tells a satirical story of racketeering invading our most popular college sport in "Rackety Rax." With such a fertile field as football untilled, racketeers organize a university not to educate any one but to give the chief, Knucks McGloin, a chance at a slice of the tremendous gate receipts of the great American institution. "Rackety Rax" chronicles the saga of modern education ruled by the kings of the underworld. The saga is a comic strip of the first order, but to generations as yet undreamed of, perhaps the actual story of America's fealty to the racketeer in other fields will seem no less amusing than this extravaganza does to the present generation.

THE STAGE

THE next play to be offered by the Dramatic League of Chicago at the Harris theater will be "Experience Unnecessary," a light comedy by Gladys Unger, adapted from a German work by Wilhelm Sterck. The league announces that its policy calls for the inclusion in its subscription program every season of an all-but farcical piece, and that this play, which is one of those ultra-sophisticated things, conforms to that ideal.

Walter Woolf, formerly a comic opera star, and Miss Verree Teasdale, a good-looker who hasn't visited Chicago for the last few years, are the stars of the company. For good measure Rex Hunter is "featured" in the cast. The first performance is scheduled for Monday night, Feb. 22, after the departure of the league's current attraction at the Harris, "Fata Morgana."

Charles Laughton, whose acting in "Payment Deferred" has been among the notable events of the playgoing season, will appear in New York next Monday night in "The Fatal Alibi," a drama of detective work which he has already given with success in London. Jed Harris is the impresario.

Other New York premières of next week will be: "Air Minded," a play dealing with aviation; Maurice Chevalier, in the entertainment that he recently gave in Chicago; "Comble," by Kenneth Webb, with Pauline Starke as star, and "Monkey," offered by Robert Sparks, who was responsible for the successful exploitation of "Lysistrata" last season.

Bernard Shaw's new play, "Too Good to Be True," will have its first American performance, and its world première, in the Colonial theater of Boston Feb. 28. This is a Theater Guild production with Beatrice Lillie and Hope Williams in the leading rôles.

"As Husbands Go," now at the Blackstone, may move to another Chicago theater a week hence to make way for "Mourning Becomes Electra." Its popularity seems to justify the continuance of its run here.

These Talkies Full of Thrill; Terrors, Too

'Murders in Rue Morgue' and 'Danton' Offered.

"MURDERS IN THE RUE MORGUE."

Produced by Universal.
Directed by Robert Florey.
Presented at the State-Lake.

THE CAST.

Dr. Mirakle ..... Bela Lugosi
Camille L'Espanaye ..... Sidney Fox
Pierre Dupin ..... Leon Waycoff
Paul ..... Bert Roach
Prefect of Police ..... Brandon Hurst
Janos, the Black One ..... Noble Johnson
The Morgue Keeper ..... D'Arcy Corrigan
The Mother ..... Betty Ross Clarke

By Mae Tinée.

Good morning!

If the State-Lake keeps to its present policy of exhibiting horrors such as "Dracula," "Frankenstein," and "Murders in the Rue Morgue" it will soon be known as "The Haunted House of State Street." And all the little children will cry, "Oo-OO, Let's RUN!" when they pass it, and all that the little children's papas and mammas will need to do to make bad l. c. become good l. c. will be to remark:

"Watch out! Or papa and mamma will take you right down to the State-Lake . . ."

The incumbent of this theater's screen is a garbled adaptation of one of Edgar Allan Poe's most famous stories. If you've read the classic that has made generations shudder, you'll wonder why on earth the producers wanted to make any changes in it. They did and they have, and the variations in no way improve the narrative, I can assure you. But the murderer remains identical with the author's creation, and if I should die before I wake—MAY I die BEFORE I wake and not wake to quake at the sight of anything even faintly resembling what the victims of Mr. Poe's killer beheld.

"Murders in the Rue Morgue" is nowhere near as frightening as "Frankenstein," though, I should say, it about measures up to "Dracula." Acting, direction and photography are all carefully directed toward the end of making the impressionable observer yip with terror. Whether or not the "Adults Only" who alone are permittd to view the picture do this, depends, of course, on the individual. I believe that if fainting at horrors is your hobby you'll find some nurses in the lobby.

"DANTON AM RHEIN."

Marat ..... Alexander Granach
Desmoulins ..... G. von Wangenheim
Saint Just ..... Werner Schott
Legendre ..... Hermann Speelmans
The Duke of Koburg ..... G. H. Schnell
King Louis XVI. ..... E. Stahl-Naehbaur

Gen. Dumouries ..... Ferdinand Hart
A Citizen ..... Carl Goet
Cornelia ..... Till Klockow
Sanson, executioner of Paris ..... Fried'h Gnass

"We must dare, and again dare, and forever dare!"

Such was the battle cry of Danton. "Strong Danton" Carlyle called the great leader who was otherwise variously known as the Titan, Jove the Thunderer, the rebel Satin, and Mirabeau of the Markets. . . . "See Danton enter," wrote Carlyle, "the black brows clouded, the colossus figure tramping heavy, grim energy looking from all features of that rugged man! Strong is that grim Son of France and Son of Earth; a reality and not a formula . . . Old men who heard it will still tell you how the reverberating voice made all hearts swell in that moment and braced them to the sticking place; and thrilled abroad over France like electric virtue. . . ."

You need not understand German to enjoy this picture, built about episodes of the French revolution concerned with Danton the whirlwind, Robespierre the theorist, and Marat, persecuted, diseased raller against all power. So splendid are the types portraying these historical figures, so powerfully illuminating and convincing their pantomime, so accurate the costumes and sets of the period, so astute the direction, that anybody interested in the subject cannot fail to follow the action even though the dialogue may be a closed book.

You see Danton, with the fire and eloquence which inspired such patriotism and devotion (in the person of Fritz Kortner who, it seemed to me, very nearly fits Carlyle's description), exhorting the people; Danton triumphant, Danton downcast, Danton making love to his new wife, apparently heedless of the lightnings playing round his head; Danton deposed, and, finally, led to the guillotine.

About the central figure surge the mobs who adore him. Behind his back conspirators plot and at last win from his self-interested allegiance to Danton Robespiere—who, himself, is to fall three months later. (By the way, did they wear horn-rimmed spectacles in those days? Robespierre has a pair.)

"I have left it all in a frightful welter," said Danton just prior to his execution. "Ah, better be a poor fisherman than meddle with the government of men." Then ironically:

"Show them my head when you have cut it off. It is worth seeing."

Third Persian Palace at Kish Includes Reservoir, Pipes

A third palace of the Sassanian dynasty of Persian kings, who ruled from 226 to 637 A. D., has been discovered on the site of the ancient city of Kish, according to dispatches from L. C. Watelin, field director of the Field Museum-Oxford university joint expedition to Mesopotamia. Announcement was made yesterday by Stephen C. Simms, director of the museum.

Last year the expedition uncovered two other palaces at Kish, which is believed to be the site of the world's earliest civilization. Other material unearthed at the site of the ancient city dates back 5,500 years.

The third Sassanian palace is different in plan from the other two, according to the word received from Mr. Watelin. One of the latest discoveries was a large square reservoir in which water was stored and from which it was carried by pipes. Pieces of glazed and unglazed pottery have been recovered.

GOLD LACE GLITTERS AS CANADA OPENS ITS PARLIAMENT'S SESSION

OTTAWA, Feb. 4.—(AP)—With all the pomp and display of a great pageant, Canada's parliament opened today.

Richly gowned women waited for hours to gain admittance to the senate galleries where Supreme court judges in robes or scarlet and ermine, and officers of the army and navy in brilliant uniforms with medals and decorations, participated in the ceremonies.

Cannons boomed a salute when Lord Bessborough, governor general, arrived with Lady Bessborough in an open sleigh accompanied by a mounted escort of Princess Louise dragoon guards.

As the governor general stepped to the throne to read his speech, Lady Bessborough took a hand-carved chair near by which was once the property of Princess Louise.

Beside her sat Arthur Meighen, who had just been chosen government leader in the senate. Premier R. B. Bennett was stationed at the right of the throne.

A messenger was sent to summon members of the commons. As tradition requires, he called them by rapping sharply on the huge oak doors.

As the governor general began his speech, the members of the lower house grouped behind the brass rail which a commoner must never pass.

The address was in French and English, official languages of the dominion.

RUMANIAN CONDUCTS SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA AFTER BEING SOLOIST

BY EDWARD MOORE.

GEORGES ENESCO of Rumania visited the Chicago Symphony orchestra last night as guest artist in a triple capacity. During the first half of the program he was the violin soloist in the Beethoven Concerto. In the second he laid aside the bow for the baton and conducted the orchestra in a work of his own composition, a Suite in C, opus 20.

This was his second appearance with the orchestra. Seven years ago he was likewise threefold in function, though with different music. In both his creative and recreative aspects he gives the impression of being learned, thorough, artistic, and seldom annoyed by any idea of haste in coming to a finish.

In fact the whole program was about as leisurely and easy going as any that has been played this season. Mr. DeLamarter began it with Charpentier's "Impressions of Italy," and those who have heard this work will know that it is no mad orgy of music. It is rather a pleasant stroll through several agreeable landscapes.

Then came Mr. Enesco as violinist. He played with a lovely tone and a full idea of the proportions of the work. It lacked only incisive drive and speed to be a fine performance.

In his suite he has followed at least in name the ideas of the old composers, Bach for example, who wrote suites in a former time. That is, it consists of an overture on the old model, followed by half a dozen antique dances, sarabande, minuet, bourrée, and what not. In this case he produced a charming effect with his gigue.

As a conductor, Mr. Enesco goes in for highly unconventional beats and gestures. He would seem, however, to have an entirely definite idea about the effect he wants to produce and to know how to get it from the orchestra. The program will be repeated this afternoon.

Boy Scout Week Begins on This Sunday

Michael Reese Hospital to Get 4 Grams.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

FOUR grams of radium—in bulk about enough to fill a teaspoon and in monetary value worth $200,000—arrived in this country from Belgium yesterday for the Michael Reese hospital. It will be shipped to Chicago within the next few days in a specially constructed metal box, after undergoing careful measurements at the bureau of standards in Washington and will be utilized in the treatment of cancer patients.

Acquisition of this amount of the world's costliest element means that the tumor clinic at Michael Reese, established recently under the direction of Dr. Max Cutler, will be able to offer patients as modern and efficient radium therapy as science has yet devised. It also places the clinic on a par with the most completely equipped cancer institutes of the world, including those in London, Paris, Stockholm, New York, and Buffalo.

Dr. Cutler, who came to Chicago from New York, where he was associated as a Rockefeller Fellow in Memorial hospital, and later served as director of cancer research in New York City Cancer institute, explained yesterday some of the advantages available through the concentration here of this quantity of radium.

The entire four grams, as large an amount as is ever used to treat one patient, will be placed in a lead receptacle with walls four inches thick, weighing 1,500 pounds, which will be mounted on a cradle having a universal motion that permits it to be easily adjusted to any position. A window in the under side of the lead chamber or "bomb," as it is known, allows the radium beam to play upon the proper spot of the patient's skin.

With the Michael Reese radium bomb it will be possible to give a cancer sufferer as much radiation in a fraction of the time as was formerly given by treatment with a smaller quantity. Thus it would take 250 hours to get the same effect with the smaller quantity that the new equipment is capable of giving in fifty hours, and with far more effectiveness.

To house the supply contained in the expected shipment, a special unit has been constructed in the hospital basement, to which the patients will be taken for treatment. This room is constructed with a floor, ceiling and walls lined with a layer of lead one inch thick, for protection of the personnel.

Although there is a steady deterioration of radiation over a long period of time, hospital authorities are not concerned about this, as it will require 1,700 years for these four grams to lose one-half their potency. In something like five billion years, Dr. Cutler said, this amount of radium will have turned to lead.

He added that if all the radium in the world were collected in one place, it would about fill a coffee cup, would weigh approximately half a pound, and would be worth $18,000,000.

Arrival of the shipment here will augment the hospital's present supply of the element, which amounts to half a gram.

SHIP BLAST TOLL MOUNTS TO 17; 4 HURT, 1 MISSING

Captain Among the Dead; Many Acts of Heroism.

Marcus Hook, Pa., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Lives of at least 17 men were snuffed out in fiery blasts which wrecked the motorship Bidwell early today as she lay at a Delaware river pier here.

Four explosions which burned and tore the forward part of the ship awakened the countryside for a mile around and caused damage to nearby buildings. Four persons injured and one missing completed their toll.

Some seamen asleep on the vessel and members of a yard gang engaged in cleaning the holds were trapped by the flames and the force of the blasts which bent and twisted steel parts about them. Others were blown from the decks into the river or jumped overboard to escape the flames.

Body of Captain Found.

The body of Capt. Joseph Rivers, Hollis, N. Y., was found in his cabin when the flames died down sufficiently to let searching parties go aboard. He was believed to have perished while attempting to save his logbook and papers.

His wife, Mrs. Viola Rivers, was blown off the ship, but was saved in one of the most heroic rescues of several that were effected in a short time after the first explosion. She is one of the most seriously injured, however. The missing man, A. B. Selch of Houston, Tex., is believed to have drowned when he was hurled or leaped overboard to escape.

Wilmette Man Among Dead.

The dead, charred and mutilated so badly that identification was difficult, were found in the wreckage of the upper deck and in charred holds. Officials of the Sun Oil company, owners of the Bidwell, assisted by Coroner Herbert Scheehle of Delaware county, were unable to determine immediately the cause of the explosions.

Among the dead are Edward Gielow, 32, seaman, Michigan City, Ind., and H. H. Derndston, 26, Wilmette, Ill.

The first blast apparently occured slightly forward of amidships. Acts of heroism went virtually unnoticed as seamen labored frantically to save the injured and prevent the ship from sinking. The second explosion occured in about ten minutes. Two others followed in rapid succession.

Some men of the crew of 35 ran for the lifeboats, but found ropes of several had been made useless by flames and the force of the explosions. Others endeavored to pull injured comrades to safety. A few jumped overboard to extinguish their burning clothing and attempted to return to aid in rescue work.

Saves Life of Mrs. Rivers.

"The most startling example of bravery," Coroner Scheehle said, was enacted by Edward Cartain of Lockman village, near Chester, who rushed to the ship when the flames were raging, jumped into the water, and swam through a hole torn in the ship's side to where Mrs. Rivers was floating unconscious. She had on a life preserver and was surrounded by burning oil. In a minute or so she would have been enveloped in the flames. But Cartain reached her in time and swam back to the pier with her."

Cartain has two medals for life saving, given him in England. He suffered cuts about the feet, hands, and knee in rescuing Mrs. Rivers.

200 IN BROOKLYN DANCE HALL FLEE FIRE; 20 HURT

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Fire in a haberdashery store on the ground floor of a four story building in Brooklyn caused a wild stampede tonight in a dance hall on the second floor. Twenty women were later treated for minor injuries suffered in the stampede or for smoke inhalation.

Three alarms were turned in, bringing a score of pieces of apparatus, police emergency squads, and a huge crowd of spectators, who cheered at the sight of the firemen carrying women—sometimes two and even three at a time—down their ladders from the second story.

Society Gay Before Lent Starts Feb. 10

Drake Family to Attend Conklin-Rike Wedding.

THIS week-end will be a busy one, but after Lent starts next Wednesday the chronicle of society's activities during the following six weeks will be mainly a record of the comings and goings of the various members of society for, in spite of the fact that not so many persons are taking long winter vacations this year as is customary, almost every one is running away for a little change.

One who planned a short trip, but who has had to change her plans, is Miss Katherine Drake, who has had to give up a trip to Dayton for the wedding tomorrow of Miss Catherine Conklin to David Rike, because the arm Miss Drake broke at a recent tobogganing party still is too painful to permit her to make the trip. The rest of the Drake family, however, will be present at the marriage of their old friend and frequent guest [Mr. Rike has been a popular Chicago visitor for years] and some of them may remain over Sunday. Katherine's mother, Mrs. John B. Drake, departed yesterday for Dayton with Mrs. Henry W. Farnum. Miss Elizabeth Drake will leave today with her father and her aunt, Miss Helen Drake. John B. Drake Jr. and Mr. Farnum probably will be in the same party of travelers.

Helen Bell Returns from Bryn Mawr.

Miss Helen Bell, the Laird Bells' daughter, who remained in the east after her graduation from Bryn Mawr last month for several visits with friends, is back with her parents in Winnetka, but will be going to St. Louis in a day or so for a visit with Miss Ethel Dyer, who was a classmate of hers last year at Bryn Mawr.

Mrs. John E. Holland of New York is in Chicago for a week's visit with the Thomas E. Quans. Mrs. Holland plans to spend the summer abroad, but her niece, Miss Margaret Quan, probably will not accompany her on her travels this year as she did last year.

A guest in Evanston who will be greatly entertained during her visit, we are sure, is Mrs. Frederick P. Ives of Boston and Cohasset. She arrives today to spend a fortnight with her mother, Mrs. W. T. Hall of Evanston. Mrs. Ives is a former president of the Evanston Junior league, unless our memory is bad, and it was with real regret that the younger set said good-by to Mr. and Mrs. Ives when they moved east a few years ago.

Mrs. Gustavus F. Swift and her daughter, Miss Geraldine Swift, will depart on Sunday for a grand winter holiday in Florence, where the subdeb of the family, Miss Marie Swift, is "finishing" at the fashionable Miss Nixon's school. The Alden B. Swifts' daughter, Lydia, and Elizabeth Baum, daughter of the James E. Baums, are also at Miss Nixon's. The three subdebs will not return to Chicago until after their graduation in early June, but Mrs. Swift and Miss Geraldine will be back in April.

Mrs. Joseph Leiter and Niece Go to New Orleans.

From Washington comes the news that Mrs. Joseph Leiter and her niece, Miss Audrey Campbell, have left there for New Orleans to join Mr. Leiter who has a house in New Orleans for the racing season. Mrs. Leiter and Miss Campbell were visiting Mrs. Leiter's mother, Mrs. John R. Williams, and were much entertained.

Also from Washington comes word of the Robert J. Dunhams, who have been there for a short stay and are now in New York. They will return to Chicago tomorrow.

We hear from Middleburg, Va., that Miss Edith Cummings has left there and is at Aiken for a visit. Mrs. Howard Linn is in New York, but is expected at Middleburg soon to visit Mrs. Perkins of New York.

Mrs. Frederic W. Upham is leaving today for Washington to attend a board meeting of the Woman's Federal Industrial institution, and from there she will go to South Orange, N. J., for a visit of several weeks with her sister, Mrs. F. H. Smith III.

Mrs. Upham will have a house guest during the first week of her absence, Miss Marion Kerby, who arrives tomorrow and will be in Mrs. Upham's apartment at 1260 Astor street until she leaves for California next Friday. Miss Kerby and Jack Niles will give a program of negro spirituals at the University club Sunday afternoon and at the Casino next Tuesday night.

Edward I. Cudahy, Son, Back from the West.

Edward I. Cudahy and his son, Billy, have returned from a western trip, and Billy is back at his studies at Harvard. Michael, the Cudahys' younger son, is recovered from a recent appendectomy, but he will not go back to school in the east this winter.

Mrs. George W. Blossom and her son's wife, Mrs. George W. Blossom Jr., of Lake Forest, are at Coronado for a time.

Mrs. Mary Belville Dickinson and Miss Rose Dickinson of 1353 North State street have gone to Arizona for the remainder of the winter.

Mrs. George L. Cragg has returned from a brief visit to her first grandchild, the son of her eldest son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. George Thomas Cragg of Lafayette, Ind. The baby, who was born on Jan. 31, has been named Robert Thomas Cragg, Robert just because his young parents like the name, and Thomas in memory of the senior Mrs. Cragg's grandfather, the late Judge Jesse B. Thomas of the Supreme court of Illinois.

Mrs. James Ward Thorne has invited some of her friends to the tea this afternoon that the Print and Drawing club of the Art institute will give in the print rooms where an exhibition of color-plate books and original drawings from Mrs. Thorne's collection is on from Feb. 1 to March 15. Mrs. Thorne is the proud grandmother of a second grandchild, a girl born Wednesday night to Mrs. Niblack Thorne, the former Virginia Hubbell of Des Moines, wife of the James W. Thornes' second son. Their eldest son, Ward Thorne, and his wife, the former Judith Dana of St. Louis, also have a daughter.

Mrs. Joseph Adams Will be Arts Club Hostess.

Mrs. Joseph Adams, vice chairman of the reception committee of the Arts club will act as hostess at a tea at the club this afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock to open two exhibitions, paintings by Georges D'Espagnat and paintings and drawings by Maurice Sterne. Mrs. Potter Palmer, reception chairman, is in Boston for the wedding tomorrow of her son, Potter III., to Miss Rose Movius. There will be parties galore at the supper Sunday night at the Arts club that will precede Vicente Escudero's dance recital, among the hostesses being Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Mrs. Walter Ayer, Mrs. Hubert Burnham, Mrs. William H. Hubbard who will entertain for her granddaughter, Miss Alice Means of Brookline; Mrs. Helen Watson, Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Mrs. John R. Winterbotham, Mrs. Shreve Badger, Mrs. William Dent Reichmann, Mrs. Otho F. Ball, Miss Emily Larned, Miss Agnes Foreman and Mrs. Freeman Hinckley.

The Woman's Athletic club, which had one of its delightful Thursday morning affairs yesterday when Winifred MacBride gave a piano recital, followed by numerous luncheon parties, will be open to members and their guests for inspection in all departments this afternoon, and each Friday afternoon thereafter, during the season. Tea will be served in the lounge from 4 to 6 o'clock.

Mrs. Paul Walker to Give Luncheon.

In yesterday's mail was a note from that nice Mrs. Paul Walker asking us to announce a luncheon to be given on Feb. 15 at 12:30 o'clock in the ballroom of the Palmer house by the Central Council for Nursing Education at which Dr. E. P. Lyon, dean of the medical school of the University of Minnesota will speak on "The Crisis in Nursing." Some of the Service club members, including Mrs. Stanley Zaring, Mrs. John Dern, Mrs. Orville Taylor, Miss Margaret Lynde, Mrs. Charles H. Conrad, Mrs. Leslie B. Olmsted, Mrs. Nathaniel Owings, Mrs. William McC. Drake, and Miss Katrina Mauff will act as hostesses.

Yesterday's mail also brought a notice about a breakfast to be given next Tuesday at 12 o'clock at the Chicago Woman's club for Countess Alexandra Tolstoy. Mrs. Edwin T. Johnson of Oak Park is chairman of the distinguished guest committee which is in charge of the breakfast. Assisting Mrs. Johnson in making arrangements for the party are Mrs. Andrew MacLeish, Mrs. Marx E. Oberndorfer, Mrs. George M. Shirk, and Mrs. Arthur E. Kesler.

We received an invitation yesterday from Alexander Green to a tea in his bookshop, 6 North Michigan avenue, on Sunday, Feb. 14, from 5 to 7 o'clock to meet Hilary Douglas C. Pepler, who is described as typographer, poet, dramatist and director of Saint Dominic's Press of Ditchling Common, Sussex, England. Assisting Mr. Green as hostesses will be Mrs. Green, Mrs. Godfrey Haggard, wife of the British consul-general, Mrs. Clarence A. Hough, Miss Cornelia Lunt, Mrs. Howard Shaw, and a few others.

The Chicago Latin School for Boys will have its annual open day for patrons and friends of the school on Washington's birthday. At the Upper School assembly at 12:15 o'clock Charles Pike will speak on the opportunities for Washington study in the new historical library, and Wallace Kirk will talk on municipal politics.

Paul McBride, Herbert McLaughlin, Joseph C. Belden Jr., and William Campbell are among the alumni who will serve as ushers and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. Bruce Borland, Mrs. Walter Cummings, Mrs. Valentine C. Bartlett, and Mrs. Duncan Forbes are among the mothers who will act as hostesses.

The school is very proud of the records of the members of last June's graduating class made in their freshman year at college; James Snitzler, son of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Snitzler, has been on the honor list at Harvard; Aldis J. Browne Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Aldis J. Browne, has made an excellent record at Yale, as have also Elias Babcock, son of the Orville E. Babcocks, and Eugene Dupee, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Dupee. Nelson Thomasson III. at Princeton has proved an excellent ambassador at the college for his prep school, and John Broomell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Broomell, has made a high standing at Amherst. Edson Cooke, son of Mrs. Helen Cooke, and Robert Morse Potter, son of Dr. and Mrs. H. E. Potter, have made enviable records at Williams. At Purdue, Oscar Mayer has been successful in all his work, as have William Campbell and Willard Randall at Northwestern.

G. N. Northrop, head master of the school, will leave today for the east to attend the meetings of the Head Masters' association at Rye and the meeting of the Secondary Educational board near Boston.

Who They Are

Dispatches from Paris announced yesterday that four girls, trained for the dance in Chicago, will be featured in the ballet "Mlada," to be presented for the first time this month by the Paris grand opera.

Ruth Buchanan, 14 years old, who lived here with her mother, Mrs. Adelaide Kahman of Los Angeles, while she studied, is one of the group. It is said that she is the youngest danseuse of any nationality to appear in a major rôle, and, with the three other girls, the first Americans to dance at the Paris opera.

Miss Lenora Felden, 16 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Feldstein, 2332 Farwell avenue, Chicago, who made her first public appearance in "Aida" when the ballet was given in honor of Queen Marie of Rumania, is another member of the dancing group. The others are Elsa De Raniz, 21 years old, who came from Crete, Neb., to study dancing in Chicago, and Dorothy Hamilton, 21 years old, whose former home is in Phoenix, Ariz. Both have had considerable ballet and solo work.

The young dancers sailed for Paris on Dec. 16. They have been rehearsing in the meanwhile for their first appearance. The corps de ballet of the Paris company will dance with them in "Mlada."

Recalls Days of Coach and Four Going to Races

Mrs. W. J. Chalmers Tells of Former Thrills.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

ONE glorious summer afternoon in the late eighties pretty Joan Chalmers raised her flowered parasol, adjusted her lavender ruffles, and rolled away down Ashland boulevard in a handsome victoria. It was Derby day at the Washington Park club track, that day of days when the Pinkertons and the Pullmans, the Catons and the Spragues in all their finery journeyed to the south side.

Forty odd years have passed.

Yesterday the same Joan Chalmers spent a short hour recalling all the pleasantries of that Derby day as well as the delightful parties and "at homes" that characterized Chicago society less than a half century ago. Now she is the much loved and respected Mrs. William J. Chalmers, one of the city's skilled social leaders. In this span of years her girlish charm has been supplemented by a regal dignity and a broadened culture.

"There was such a thrill in living then," Mrs. Chalmers said as she settled back in one corner of the library hung with one of the two finest private collections of etchings in the city. Though modern in its appointments, the Chalmers' town home at 1100 Lake Shore drive seems to hark back to an earlier day in its atmosphere of gracious hospitality.

"How well I remember that Derby day," she went on. "Mr. Chalmers had just returned from Paris with a beautiful lavender parasol decorated with embroidery and lavender ruffles. But it didn't match my new gown so, of course, I could have nothing but another dress to match the parasol. We gave so much more time and thought to good grooming in those days and clothes were truly beautiful.

"There was an air of elegance in the colorful parasols and dresses and the victorias and coaches drawn by four horses as they swept out in great procession to the old race track."

As Mrs. Chalmers reminisced she picked up from a nearby settee the beloved rag doll she had played with as a child. Soon it is to be redressed after a miniature of Mrs. Chalmers and placed in the Chicago Historical society. Sharing the same settee was one of the favorite members of Mrs. John Black's former doll family.

"Perhaps nothing has been a more distinct loss to the city than the old time 'at homes,'" Mrs. Chalmers mused. "They were delightful occasions. North siders stayed home religiously on Mondays and south side residents on Tuesday. The men returned from their offices about five o'clock. There was a delightful intimacy and exchange of ideas in those groups that we miss over the bridge table today."

Mrs. Chalmers has done as much as any hostess in town, however, to retain the old custom by continuing to entertain at home rather than in one of the town's fashionable clubs or hotels. She learned the art when as Joan Pinkerton she assisted at her father's parties held in the gardens of the old Pinkerton mansion at Monroe and Ashland. Debuts, styled as such, held second place in that day to a year or more of travel on the European continent.

If Mrs. Chalmers' busy life can be classified, she might as well be said to have two hobbies—Lincoln and the Country Home for Convalescent Children. There has been a curious association, indeed, between the Chalmers and the Lincolns through the last four generations, one that without doubt can be boasted by no other family.

Mrs. Chalmers' father, you will recall, was Allan Pinkerton and an intimate friend of Lincoln, as head of the federal secret service during the civil war. In fact, it was the system he established that contributed so much to Union success. Prior to this time Mr. Pinkerton had founded the national detective agency that still bears his name, guarded Lincoln in his journey in 1861 to the inauguration, and exposed a plot in Baltimore to assassinate the new President.

"How well I remember the day in 1865 the news came that Lincoln had been assassinated," Mrs. Chalmers recalled. "Father was home on furlough. He broke down and wept, for he felt he might have discovered the plot had he been in Washington."

The association between the two families was revived again when Robert Lincoln and Mr. Chalmers took places together on the directorate of one of Chicago's large banking institutions. Then, in 1894, Mrs. Chalmers was the partner of Robert Lincoln as she led one wing of the grand march at Chicago's charity ball. Last December she unpacked the same satin gown, with its five lace underskirts, for the city's 1931 charity ball. The last link in the Lincoln-Chalmers chain came when Mrs. Chalmers' grandson, Norman Williams, unveiled St. Gaudens' statue of Lincoln.

Of particular value is the photograph in the Chalmers home of Mr. Pinkerton with Lincoln and Gen. John A. McClernand, taken just before the bloody battle of Antietam, in 1862. Hanging by its side is Robert Lincoln's favorite picture of his father.

As for the Country Home for Convalescent Children near Wheaton, now under the direction of the University of Chicago, Mrs. Chalmers founded it 21 years ago, and has ever since given tirelessly of her energy to build a model institution for the care of handicapped children. Today the bronze tablets on the walls of the hospitals, workrooms, and the library bear tribute to her work and the gifts of other old and outstanding Chicago families.

How Mrs. Chalmers continues her full and active life year in and year out is best expressed, perhaps, in the verse she has had copied for many of her friends:

Youth is a time of life;
It is a state of mind.
Nobody grows old by merely living a number of years;
People grow old by losing their ideals.
You are as young as your hope,
As old as your doubt;
As young as your self-confidence.
As old as your fear.
In the central place in your heart is a wireless station;
So long as it receives the messages of hope, beauty, courage, cheer,
And the love of God and your fellow man,
You are young.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Hoover gave the fifth official reception this evening. Their guests of honor were the officials of six federal departments, treasury, postoffice, interior, agriculture, commerce, and labor. Though no set order was arranged to receive the guests there was much interest in the newly appointed secretary of the treasury, Ogden L. Mills, who will succeed Andrew W. Mellon when the latter goes to the court of St. James's as ambassador. Mr. Mills, as undersecretary of the treasury, was the ranking official among the guests for whom the party was arranged. Mrs. Mills is in New York for the remainder of the week and did not attend. Arrangements for the festivity were the same as other such functions, the marine band playing in the main corridor during the reception.

Spring Coats Discard Fur Collar Trim

Many Two Piece Suits Are Displayed.

PARIS, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Foxes have little to fear from spring coats, which in general are not fur trimmed. Bruyeres goes so far as to discard collars altogether in many.

The sloping shoulder silhouette is featured by that house, with sleeves widening at the elbow. Jackets as well as coats frequently are collarless. Many of the coats are princess fitted and some have cape sleeves to the elbow.

The Bruyeres ensembles favor a short-sleeved dress under the coat. Many two-piece suits are in the collection.

Mexican drawn work, wool embroidered eyelets and daisy motifs decorate a group of wool dresses. Contrasting belts in grosgrain, ribbon and leather are stressed. Jackets are belted.

Grosgrain also is used in the red ribbon trims on black dresses. Sleeve puffs of starched linen in contrasting color here an unusual effect. There are many epaulette dresses shown, as well as sleeveless dresses.

White crochet gloves in an Irish mesh pattern match crochet boutonnieres. Very wide topped navy glace gloves also appear, as well as some suede gloves in navy.

Brueyeres shows small hats with shallow round crown and roll brim. Cuff brims also are used. The popular top trim accompanies these styles.

An attractive costume offered by Bruyeres combines an all white crepe satin afternoon dress with an ermine trimmed navy wool coat. One dress or dot printed organdie is in bouffant style.

Blue and white and red and white are much used in combination. Black is featured for both afternoon and evening. One dress is fashioned of sheer black lace. Starched white lace takes a definite place, in collars and cuffs.

The Charming Cheat

By Clara Sharpe Hough

SYNOPSIS.

Ricardo Dane visits New York in search of his aunt, Miss Filomena Stanley, his mother's half sister. Ricardo's mother had recently died and left him heir to the ranch and mountain land in Romeu valley, California, where he had spent most of his life. He intended to find his sole remaining near relative and bring her back to Romeu valley. He had understood this to be his mother's dying wish. His aunt, an actress, had been out of favor with the family, although his mother had sent her checks.

Ricardo locates a Filomena Stanley, but instead of the aged aunt he'd expected, he finds a beautiful young aunt. She is living in a Bohemian studio with a Follies girl named Frances. Ricardo readily believes this lovely creature, who acknowledges the relationship. His arrival was fortunate for Filomena, who had been out of work for weeks and was in a sad state financially. Ricardo showers her with gifts and moves her into a better apartment. He moves into the same building on another floor. Webster Sutton, a college friend of Ricardo's, visits New York. He and Eunice Greenway, a girl from home who is studying in New York, are entertained by Ricardo and his aunt. Eunice is a friend of Ricardo's fiancée, Rachel Beatty. She heartily disapproves of Filomena. Web believes his friend is being trimmed and before he leaves tells him so. Ricardo learns Web was right when Filomena receives a telegram from her home stating that her father was dead. He is furious and goes with Filomena to make sure she'll return to New York. They find that the telegram was a mistake and that Filomena's father is not dead but seriously ill.

INSTALLMENT XI.

BITTER REALITIES.

"Does father—will he want to see me?" asked Filomena after another sniffly moment.

"He's asleep. You might see him after dinner, I suppose. If we can tell him you're here first. Well, I better see about dinner, I guess. Get the gentleman to take your bags——"

"It's Mr. Dane, Aunt Kay. He lives in the apartment house I do," Filomena explained, seeing that Ricardo really required explanation. "He came along because I—it was very kind of him—he thought I needed help——"

"I'm sure it's very kind of Mr. Dane," agreed Aunt Kay without ardor, "I think I better see about dinner. I didn't expect——"

She vanished toward the back of the house, and Filomena led the way up a narrow flight of stairs into another narrow hall.

"This is my room," she whispered, stopping before a closed door. "I don't know who's sleeping here now." She opened a crack and peered in. "Nobody, I guess. I don't know what we ought to do. We'll have to stay tonight, I suppose. We can go back tomorrow." She was talking fast and nervously, in a jerky whisper.

"This is my room," she whispered.

He opened the door and set her suitcase within a dim room with tightly drawn shade.

"Bathroom's at the end of the hall," offered Filomena, "you could wash up for lunch—it's dinner here. Then Aunt Kay can see about letting you sleep somewhere."

"Don't worry about me," said Ricardo, feeling very sorry for her. "Only, of course, I'm glad your father——"

Once free of Ricardo's presence, Filomena abandoned herself to a passion of weeping, lying on the candlewick bedspread on the bed where she had lain so happily years ago, dreaming dreams about what she would do when she grew up, with the sound of the waves drifting in through the open window. Now the window was tightly closed and all her dreams were dissolved into the bitterest sort of realities and despair lay upon her blackly.

Aunt Kay presided at dinner, a meal attended by a lesser aunt called Aunt Hattie and a respectable middle aged uncle addressed as Uncle Flanders. They accepted Filomena's presence without notable delight and Ricardo's with apparent stoicism. The dinner was what is known in New England as a boiled dinner.

After the meal when it was agreed Filomena should go up and see her father, Ricardo said he would enjoy taking a walk. He succeeded in remaining away from the depressing house for two hours.

In that two hours he saw quite a lot of East Wellmouth and still more of the cold wintry sea. And pondered the misdemeanors of Filomena.

He felt overwhelmingly sorry for the girl. He pitied her with a searching pity that he might have felt for a child caught in mischief. She was like a child, he reflected, who would play with fire and who finally got her fingers scorched. But along with that pity he had no palliative feeling that she should be saved from the pain of the burn.

It was a shame, from her point of view, that things had broken this way. She would not have been caught out by him in such merciless fashion had it not been for that telegram, the telegram that it now seemed was all a mistake and should not have read as it did, due to the undependable character of the unknown and undescribed Gert. How this had happened he did not understand in the least, and if Filomena did, the needlessness of it probably only added to the bitter taste of her present draught.

East Wellmouth of course was more incredibly awful than he had ever imagined it could be. Here Filomena had lived her childhood and girlhood, in that frightful house with the drawn shades. How she could have come from here, herself so filled with gayety and the joy of life, was a question to puzzle any one.

This background, then, had produced Filomena. It might help to explain her. It had taken generations of the green valleys and widespread plains around Romeu to produce him, Ricardo Dane. Something of all that full-girt freedom of space would always be in him. Was there, in her, something indrawn, tight-bound, because of those tight-drawn shades, those uninviting crowded rooms?

After finally returning to the house to see if he could be of use to any one he effaced himself as much as possible. It was made plain to him that he could not possibly be of use to any one, that his status was that of a passing stranger who had offered assistance in an emergency. He could be no more intimate in the household than some passerby who had held an umbrella over Filomena in a sudden shower. Aunt Kay and Aunt Hattie were immeasurably distant, answering his polite queries about Filomena's father. Uncle Flanders had disappeared after encompassing his share of the boiled dinner.

At dark Filomena appeared, red-eyed and silent. He suggested that he had better go to the hotel to sleep. He was promptly directed thither, and Filomena's only words to him were that she would meet him at the train the next morning.

She did. But she was almost as subdued as she had been the previous afternoon. She had powdered her nose, which slightly improved her appearance, though her eyes were swollen yet if not anew. She had little to say on the dreary journey to Boston, and Ricardo himself felt enough of the depression of the last two days that he made no effort to talk to her.

Ricardo turned his latchkey in Filomena's door three days after he had closed it for her.

In the living room she turned a wan smile upon him, wan and possibly a little forced, but showing kinship to the old smile of the early weeks he had known her. He smiled back at her and bent his head to give her a quick kiss.

"You're a game little darling," he said, "if you are a little devil."

She ignored both his words and his caress, pulling off her hat and coat and tossing them upon the divan.

"What a mess," she said looking about the untidy room. The bedroom door stood open, revealing a clutter that should have shamed a girl with New England training if she were not void of all conscience.

She dropped onto the divan with a tremendous sigh. "They never open enough windows up there," she remarked irrelevantly.

He took the hint and flung open the furthest window, letting in the chill December air in a swift tide.

"Ricardo, call downstairs like a good lamb, and have somebody up to clean," she suggested. "It's a horrible mess."

He stood looking down at her. "Do you really think you can pick up things where we—where you left off, the other day?"

She glanced up with a glint in her blue eyes. "Good heavens, Ricardo, I don't have to live in a pigpen, do I?"

He turned away. "I'll be back by and by," he said, "after you get cleared up, since you feel so tidy. I suppose it's the New England influence."

"You'll find me looking like Aunt Kay when you get back," she called after him, still gay.

While he bathed and changed, Ricardo held indignant communion with himself. Something was going to be done about this situation, and done quickly. Things seemed far too natural, far too much already like they had been before. He and she could not drop back casually into the old relationship, half intimate, half formal—the queerest a man had ever had with a girl, surely. A girl with whom, he could realize, he was more than half in love. She was ready to be gay and comradely again. And he distinctly did not want her to be gay and comradely, to establish things on that old easy footing, as she was trying plainly to do.

He was angry with her, he must remember that. He was furious with her, completely outraged by the cheeky thing she had dared to do. He wanted her to realize this, to grasp the full flavor of his wrath. He wanted her to cringe a little. As indeed she had actually done on Wednesday evening, when he had locked the door so masterfully and dropped the key in his pocket. He felt slightly shamefaced now to recall his pleasure at sight of her paling face and dilated eyes in that few minutes while he was asserting his mastery.

Yet the fact that he had actually forced her to do just as he commanded had a rather pleasing savor in his mouth even now. There was shame mingled with this memory of triumph as he recalled her pulling off her pink frock under his stern compelling. But the pleasure of the memory was solely in his mastery of her. Because during all these three months of their pleasant companionship she had been the master. No doubt at all about that. She had called the tune and he had danced. And he had paid the piper to boot. She had treated him outrageously and she knew it. And she was going to be sorry.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Clothes for a New Start.

"I have been sick and in the infirmary here for some time. I am about due to leave now and am badly in need of clothing. I wonder if you could help me get some. I have no overcoat and will need one, size 40 or 42. I would be grateful for a suit of clothes, size 38 or 40, and a pair of shoes, size 7 or 8, also. By doing this you may be the means of getting me a position. G. S."

At any rate, we hope you get a position and we know that a presentable appearance helps a great deal. Has some one the clothing to make this appearance possible?

If perchance you are English you undoubtedly think that it is far more practical to drive on the left hand side of the street. For the sake of tranquil diplomatic relations let us assume that you are right. Yet we still advise that when driving in the United States of America you are far better off to drive on the right hand side of the road, since others using the same strip of macadam do not realize your preference for the left side. All of which merely goes to show that when requiring the coöperation of others it is better to do things that they understand than to do things that they do not comprehend.

Now I have always preferred showing a four card suit, if you are going to show it at all, at the first opportunity. I believe this is a much sounder method of bidding than the usual preference of showing the five card suit first and the four card suit second when the bidding has gotten much higher. However, I advise you to prefer the five card suit since both the Official and the Approach-Forcing system agree on the five card suit preference, and if you happen to follow my idea you will unquestionably be misunderstood by your partner. For the sake of variety, though, it may be well to show an example of the, to my mind, preferable selection of the four card suit for the opening bid. Yesterday's play-a-problem is an example. Remember, I am not telling you to do this—quite the reverse. The hand will be found at the commencement of this article.

West opened this with one club. North bid two spades, East three diamonds, South pass. West bid four hearts, North four spades, East five clubs, and all passed. Now, if instead of opening the one club West had opened the heart, North would have overbid with four spades and could have made it because North knows that he would get an original heart opening. This bid of North's would have cut East off from the diamond showing and would have left West in a horrible quandary which probably would have resulted in West's passing.

North opened the ♠ K, which took, and followed with the ♠ Q, which declarer trumped with the ♣ J. Declarer then led back the ♦ J, which dummy took with the Q, North playing the 2. Dummy returned the ♣ 10, South played the ♣ 3, and West the 2. Dummy then led the ♣ 4, South's K came up, and West took with the A. West now led the ♦ 8, which dummy took with the ♦ A, dummy leading back the ♦ 10, the ♦ 9, and then the ♦ 3 for the seventh, eighth, and ninth trick. To the tenth trick dummy led the ♥ 4, declarer played the K, and North took with the A. North returned the ♥ Q, which dummy trumped with the ♣ 7, returning the ♣ 8 to declarer's Q. Declarer led the ♥ J to the thirteenth trick, which dummy trumped with the ♣ 9. East and West made their five-odd and a game.

It will be noted that West trumped with the ♣ J at trick two to keep his hand flexible and to be able to lead through the ♣ K twice if it was necessary to do so without giving up the second entry in dummy.

PLAY-A-PROBLEM: SOLITAIRE OR PARTNERS

Play this hand tonight at your bridge game. Keep a record of the bid and play in the spaces provided. Numbers in the bidding squares are for successive rounds. Check your results with tomorrow's answer.

To play "Solitaire": Record the bids you think each hand would make in the bidding squares. After the final declaration has been made start the play, leading from the hand at declarer's left. As you play each card cross it off of the diagram and record it in the proper square, as S. 3, H. K, etc. In the last column indicate the hand which won the round and lead from that hand on the next round.

Send your bridge problems to Charles True Adams, The Chicago Tribune; inclose stamped, addressed envelope.

STRIPES

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—In certain Parisian circles there is a growing discontent with the plainness of styles. All winter long, and Paris is gifted with extra long winter seasons, the slightest smudge of a pattern has been banished from materials of fashions. No checks, no dots, no flowers, no stripes, no anything on the woolens that make smart daytime clothes—just plain, patternless stuffs.

When the first spring and southern fashions reared their heads in dressmaking salons along the rue de la Paix, however, certain couturiers slipped in a patterned model or so, in rebellion against the plain goods edict. These few dresses and ensembles were grabbed at once, and have been regrabbed by smart clients in the intervening weeks, starting a small bull market on printed and patterned materials.

Stripes, particularly in fine pin lines and undulating waves of microscopic size are among the chief grabbed materials. With practically two-thirds of the spring clothes cut on the bias, fine stripes become the most amusing of patterns, and they're not at all loud, so any lady can wear 'em.

The striped frock or tailored ensemble has been doing so well, in fact, that it may be considered as a promising style for the vernal season.

Children of the Same Family Differ, Due to Parental Variations

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

So much emphasis is put nowadays on environment rather than on heritage that parents are often puzzled by the difference in personality and character exhibited by the children in one family. With the same parents, with the same social background, with the same financial status, why will the children in a family often be so widely divergent in type?

A mother writes of "my quiet little boy and my tom-boy girl," or says, "My little boy is so sweet tempered and my oldest boy is so sulky." Or, "My first baby was so quiet and docile and uninteresting, but my second baby leads me a life and I love it."

How can we account for children in the same family—often only a few hours apart in age—developing along lines so entirely different from each other? Though they have the same parentage, though they are born into the same physical environment, there are other factors in this environment that vary with each child. The biggest factor is, of course, the attitude of the parents toward the child. Our attitude toward the first child is certainly not the same as toward the second, or the third, or the fourth, though we may love them equally.

Often the first child has had all sorts of experiments played upon it, while the second child has just "bummed along." Or parents have "notions" that exhaust themselves on the first poor little baby, while the subsequent babies "just grow," like Topsy. Or the first baby gets an intensity of interest and loving care that the second baby, even if loved as much, cannot get because there are not enough hours in the day.

Adler, the Viennese psychologist, recognizes a special problem in the "only" child, a special problem in the second child, a special problem in the third child, etc., inherent in the family situation at the time each child is born.

Children are often treated differently by their parents—a father may be unduly proud or happy over his first born son, or, already having a son, he may get a special pleasure in a dainty little daughter. Or the mother may temporarily protect a younger child during convalescence which may tend to make a bully of the older [his only comeback].

Kids and Cats Get Help from Humane Group

Over 3,000 of Former Are Benefited.

Rescuing thirty-two cats from telephone poles, vacant stores, from under sidewalks, from elevated structures and trees—that was only one of the services performed last year by the Illinois Humane society.

In the annual report read yesterday before the directors at the society's headquarters, 1145 South Wabash avenue, George A. H. Scott, secretary, declared that the care of animals had increased over last year, and that during the year 7,329 cases of animal mistreatment were investigated.

A large part of the work of the society, Mr. Scott said, was bringing about more humane treatment of children. During 1931 the society investigated 1,583 complaints involving 4,155 children. Of these 3,572 children were directly benefited, he said.

"Fifty-six children were rescued from ill treatment and neglect and were provided with homes and protection," Mr. Scott continued. "We admonished 2,098 persons regarding the care and treatment of children, and 231 court conferences were held to adjust domestic troubles involving the proper treatment of children. Ill treatment included child-beating, contributing to delinquency, leaving children in homes without protection, and failing to provide food and shelter."

The society, the report stated, aided 300 families in eviction cases in the Renters' court. Many others were helped and sent to charitable agencies.

Richard E. Schmidt was reëlected president, James Curtiss and Walter O. Wilson, vice presidents; Mr. Scott, secretary and treasurer pro tem.

Antoinette Gives Beauty Secrets All Women Should Know

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Here's a little trick that may save your freshly painted mouth beauty for you. Simple as anything, but it takes off that surplus color neatly and without spreading. When the lipstick is all on, just close the lips on a tiny piece of your cleansing tissue. It's a nicer, cleaner way to dispose of the extra coloring than using the powder puff as some women do. It takes the "fresh paint" look off the mouth and makes the lips look more the things of beauty nature intended.

There is a question about the practicability of greasing the lips lightly with a cream before you apply the lipstick. It depends entirely on the condition of the skin. If it is dry the foundation greasing will help. Ordinarily, however, it is difficult to paint over the oil base. Too, many of the lipsticks have sufficient greasing in themselves.

Wetting the lips, a habit common to many women, is not a good way to approach the lip tinting job. Neither is running the moist tongue over the lipstick coloring immediately the painting is finished. The coloring should be given a little time to set.

Another thing about beautifying the lips. It is the upper one, not the lower one that calls for the most skill. The upper one is harder to do and perhaps that is why one so often sees a faint tinge on the upper with a heavily done lower lip. If either were to be overtreated it should be the upper, since it is the one that gives the contour to the mouth. A good rule is to go lighter on the lower lip. If the lips are at all thick, by all means go lightly on the lower one.

Too, if you would be up in the advanced lip painting class, you must choose your lipstick to harmonize with your costume coloring. This may complicate life for you if you have a wide and color-varied wardrobe. Anyway this is what some of our high priced manufacturers are advocating.

Most of us, however, have to compromise with one sturdy lip tinter.

WOMAN'S DRESS.

This stunning dress is cut on slimming lines that help the larger figure marvelously. DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Not a Definite Proof.

Boy's Third Degree Questioning Gets on "Babe's" Nerves

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Babe" will agree that there is only one thing worse than having no beau at all. It is having one who counts that moment lost when he is not at her side, peppering her with questions as to what she did, what she was thinking in the necessary interims of absence.

Six nights of the week "Babe's" beau is on the job. And Sunday afternoon. "Babe" gets an afternoon off from work occasionally. She must explain every moment's thought and action during that brief holiday session. She may want to go shopping Saturday afternoon. To tell the boy friend so is to invite: "O, all right. If shopping is more important to you than I am, go ahead!"

Then he goes on "mads." Won't speak for a day, sometimes two. But comes a-calling just the same, mad and all.

A cheery pal, that one! The kind to wear a girl's nerves to a frazzle. The kind to give the air to before the nerves begin shrieking out loud! Anyway, temporary spasms of air, just for better companionship sake.

The short, quick and decisive route to a break off of friendly relations is to have one of the nagging, quizzing specie perpetually around. Tempers were never made to withstand the assault.

If the boy ever is to be trained into a companionable husband now is the time to arrange the training. That kind of man, as a legal mate, is just too much for human endurance. You can more easily forgive a fault that looms large on the vice calendar than that eternal scratching at one's nerves, that continued assault on one's personal right to liberty of thought and deed.

There are women who positively drive men to drink with this same sort of infantile behavior. What we humans all must learn in the interest of happier friendships is that every one is entitled to his private thoughts and hours of privacy in which to indulge them.

BIG STICK HOVERS AS PROBE GROUP REACHES HAWAII

Island's Business Men Ask U. S. to Intervene.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONOLULU, Feb. 4.—Whether Hawaii is willing or able to clean her own house or whether congress will be forced to apply the big stick and take a measure of self-government away from this island of democracy was the alternative which presented itself today with the arrival of Seth W. Richardson, assistant United States attorney general, and his staff of congressional investigators.

This group was sent to make a survey of law enforcement in Honolulu as a result of the rape of Mrs. Thalia Massie, naval officer's wife, and the subsequent murder of Joseph Kahahawai, one of the five suspected rapists.

The four defendants charged with the murder—Mrs. Granville Fortescue, mother of Mrs. Massie; her son-in-law, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, U. S. N., and two sailors, Albert O. Jones and E. J. Lord—will enter pleas to their indictment tomorrow.

The territorial legislature has adjourned after a special session in which many of the questions of reform the Richardson commission was sent to inquire into were disposed of, but on examination the measures taken may be found to be unsatisfactory.

Ask Congress to Step In.

Two important local groups, the chamber of commerce and the hastily organized Citizens' Association for Good Government, have announced their partial disapproval of the new laws. The latter group memorialized congress today to step in and give the islands a law making the penalty for rape either death or life imprisonment and giving the appointment of the public prosecutor to the territorial supreme court.

Honolulu, squirming under a world microscope, is still not awake to the situation and is not willing to have elective officers taken away from the game of politics which is played here much as on the mainland. The legislature amended the rape bill to make it still possible for the judge to give a low sentence, and it insisted on keeping the key to the office of prosecutor in the control of the mayor.

"The legislature has swept the dirt under a rug and given us a gold brick," was the sentiment expressed in the "good government" meeting, where Senator William H. Heen was criticized for attempting to influence public opinion from the floor of the senate in favor of his clients, the four defendants in the rape case. Senator Heen is part Hawaiian and a former county attorney and circuit judge.

Church Group Feels Ashamed.

A Hawaiian group of church members declared that if their lawmakers fail them to the extent that congress takes away their present form of government nothing is left but to sink the islands into the sea in shame.

Even haole [white] business men, born here and risen to wealth and dictatorship comparable with that of men of Wall street, have failed to have their will become the law in this emergency and are wondering what sort of strange political devil fish will come at last from under the rocks in these heavenly waters.

Walter Dillingham, corporation director, a member of one of the oldest and wealthiest families and a member of the best clubs in Washington, San Francisco, and here, spoke to Representative Nolle Smith today in the parlors of the Central Union church.

"Will Never Understand It."

"We sent you to the legislature as our servants," he said, pointing an accusing finger at the member of the Oahu delegation that amended the prosecutor bill so as to keep politics in control. "You got there and began to think of yourselves as kings. We told you what we wanted you to do and what had to be done to satisfy Washington, but you would not do it. I will never understand it."

Few people will understand what is going on here. It is a problem of political and social reform unique in the world. The uniqueness consists not in the character or the number of crimes, but in the spectacle of what universal education, surface Americanization, and the extension of democratic government has brought into being in the way of body politics.

It is built on a base of Polynesian stock, pleasure loving, childlike pagans of south sea idylls. Upon this base came the impact of missionary and sailor bringing Mother Hubbard dresses and sharp trading practices. Then came stronger and stronger mixtures of Portuguese, Porto Ricans, Chinese, Japanese, and Philippine laborers.

Need Complete Overhauling.

Stir this and let it settle into the second, third, and fourth generations, with a dash of Irish and Scotch here and there, and see what happens.

Nobody knows. It is not the Hawaiians, but a new social mixture to be dealt with, and the feeling among the whites is growing that a complete overhauling of the governmental structure is necessary, and that reforms will never come otherwise.

This experiment in interracial friendliness has been set back a long time by the occurrences of the last few months, which have forced the United States navy to warn the world against the community.

Business leaders hope that they will be able to force reform legislation so that the navy will rescind the order against allowing shore leave here during the present maneuvers, but at present this is a paradise lost to the officers and sailors of the fleet. It is also $1,000,000 lost to business and a social blight.

May Alter Organic Law.

The organic territorial act provides plenty of room for congress to do here what it considers necessary, even to the adoption of a commission form of government. Richardson may suggest changes in the organic law and in any event Washington authorities are determined, in view of the important military and naval establishments here and the vast strategic importance of the Pacific coast, that law and order shall be effectively maintained.

The present movement away from democracy is delayed and hamstrung wherever possible, but it appears inevitable that the city and county government will yield more of its prize plums of appointive power. To this extent democracy is a failure.

The predominant population is now Japanese. The Hawaii Hochi, their daily newspaper, had this to say today:

"There has been much saber rattling and hints at drastic action by the federal government over the proposed trial of the four defendants in the Kahahawai murder case. Members of congress have urged the forcible removal of the accused from the jurisdiction of the Hawaiian courts and even threatened to introduce a measure transferring the case from the mainland.

"Cristy Called Bluff."

"It remained for Judge Cristy to call the bluff. When he served his famous ultimatum refusing to turn prisoners back to naval custody, and demanding a guarantee of the jurisdiction of Hawaii's courts, the government yielded.

"At a time when our legislators were taking orders from Washington, and insistence was being made to make hasty changes in our basic laws at the behest of hill-billy congressmen from Kentucky and Tennessee, lands of mountain feuds and monkey trials, this judge single-handed challenged the right of outside influence to tamper with the Hawaiian legal machine.

"Pretense of a danger of mob violence was carefully maintained by posting a heavy guard and having a large escort accompany the defendants when they appeared in court.

"Stupid Gesture."

"It was a rather stupid gesture, for not now nor has there been at any time the slightest danger of violence at the hands of Hawaii's civilian population.

"These people (the defendants) may be heroic in the eyes of their sympathizers on the mainland, who have been fed on misinformation and highly colored news stories, but they are not heroes in Hawaii, where the facts are known, except to a few hysterical individuals. To the vast majority they are merely defendants in the latest murder case, for whom every one wishes a speedy and impartial trial."

The trial of the four defendants is expected to be delayed for several weeks. Meantime there is no activity in the retrial of the four defendants charged with the rape of Mrs. Massie. It is still being tried around the tea tables, but that is all.

AMERICANS LEAD AS OLYMPIC GAMES OPEN

TRIBUNE TO HOLD SKI MEET FOR BOYS SUNDAY

133 to Seek Prizes at Riis Park.

The second annual ski meet sponsored by THE TRIBUNE and the commissioners of the Northwest park district will be held Sunday afternoon at Riis park, Mead and Fullerton avenues. The meet originally was arranged for Jan. 3 but was postponed because of lack of snow.

One hundred and thirty-three boys entered the tournament and now are eligible for the prizes. Gold, silver and bronze medals will be awarded in each of four age divisions. The number of contestants eligible in each class follows:

Boys, 12 years of age and under, 13.
Boys, 13 and 14 years of age, 24.
Boys, 15 and 16 years of age, 36.
Boys, 17 years of age and over, 61.

Berz Chief Clerk.

Contestants will received their numbers at the Riis park fieldhouse between 12 and 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Harry Berz will be chief of the clerks in charge of numbers. The meet will start promptly at 1:30. The names and numbers of all contestants will be printed in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

Frank Kalteux, Northwest park commissioner, yesterday had a crew of workmen preparing the slide. Even in the event of warmer weather, which is not anticipated, there will be sufficient snow stored to hold the tournament.

Several ski clubs have entered strong teams and the organization which scores the most points will receive the silver trophy. First place will count five points; second place, three points, and third place, one point. Points will be totaled in all age classifications.

Halt Silver Skates Again.

The sixteenth annual Silver Skates Derbies, postponed from Jan. 24, will not be held this week-end. The lagoon in Garfield park has at no time been frozen to a sufficient depth to permit skating and the surface, now covered with snow, cannot be scraped until the ice thickens.

More than 4,100 have entered Silver Skates races this year. This number cannot be handled successfully at one of the smaller parks.

BAAL PAYS OFF A RECORD $971 FOR $2 PLACE BET

Miami, Fla., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—In the first race at Hialeah Park today for three year old maidens, which was won by the Paramount stable's Buoyant Days, the sensational odds of $971.10 for $2 were posted on the second horse, Joseph Edwards' gelding, Baal, a record place price for the American turf.

Had the horse won—and he was beaten only by a length and a half—he would have paid $2,428.50 to each holder of a $2 ticket. This would have displaced the record winning price in this country, held by Wishing Ring, and set at Latonia, Ky., on June 17, 1912. Wishing Ring's place price was $644.60 for $2, the record shattered today by Baal.

Baal also set a new record for show money, $243.30, a show ticket on Wishing Ring having paid $172.60.

This was the thirteenth start of Baal. He was ridden by Jockey E. Buck. There were only eight tickets purchased on him, two for $2 each to place and six for $2 to show.

Manassas finished third in the race. The time was fast, 1:40 for a mile. The winner, Buoyant Days, paid $16.70.

TALKING IT OVER.

BY ARCH WARD.

Chicago's army of amateur boxers will have something more than Golden Gloves to fight for this winter. They are going to help feed thousands of hungry children. Profits of THE TRIBUNE tournament will be donated to the Hungry School Children's fund.

Fans who patronize the various Golden Gloves bouts not only will get a kick out of watching the fastest competition the sport provides. They will know that every dollar above expenses taken in at the gate will help furnish hot, nourishing lunches to needy children.

More than 10,000 boys and girls have been fed daily since the fund was established last fall. It costs $500 a day to carry on this work. Although contributors have been generous, additional aid is necessary to meet the demand. There is no overhead expense in the operation of the fund. Every penny goes for food.

Net proceeds of the Golden Gloves tournaments always have been donated to charity. Starting with $9,000 in the first tournament in 1928, donations from the meet have increased steadily, until last year they exceeded $40,000.

For that reason alone Golden Gloves contests have been well worth while. But they have done more than that. They have engaged young men in healthful, vigorous exercise. They have enabled boys from widely separated districts to give expression to that fundamental urge for combat that arises from an exuberance of red blood. Competition for Golden Gloves is conflict in its essential elements. It is one man against another, a personal encounter.

It is not surprising that now and again we hear some one attack amateur boxing as a sport too strenuous for present day youth. Football is subjected to the same criticism. Amateur boxing began to flourish during the world war. It was encouraged by army leaders everywhere. Representing courage, strength, youth, and virility, it enjoyed some prosperity in the days following the war, for at that time we still gloried in the things that boxing stood for. We emerged from the war toughened in mind and body and heart. We weren't afraid of anything then.

Soon came a period of unrivaled prosperity when we grew fat and soft. Some began to worry because our ablest and strongest boys enjoyed taking part in sports as rough as boxing and football. Their brothers perhaps had tramped hour after hour carrying a heavy pack and rifle. Many of their fathers had worked 12 or 14 hours a day to provide them with the necessities of life.

Boxing and football exemplified many of the attributes of fighting and working. Educators and civic leaders here and there, weakened by contact with a softening civilization, began to worry lest their boys be overworked or for fear they would not be paid for entertaining others.

The period of easy living has passed and America again is sweating and toiling. We are building for the future. Men with fighting hearts will come through on top. And doesn't it seem reasonable that a boy who has had enough courage to square off against an opponent in a 24 foot ring or throw himself at an adversary on the gridiron has a good chance to land in the forefront?

We never were good at riddles, so you can figure out the answer for yourselves.

BEAT HOLDEN! HOLDEN WARNS GOLDEN GLOVERS

Geneva Lightweight Out to Win Title.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

George Holden of Geneva, Ill., runner up last year for the Golden Gloves lightweight championship, has entered again this season. He will fight in the west section preliminaries, which start a week from Monday night at the Ashland Boulevard auditorium, and Holden assures us he intends to win the title.

Holden met Scotty Sylvano in the finals last year at the Chicago Stadium and lost the decision in three rounds, principally because Scotty connected with a right hand punch in the first round which sent Holden head over heels. However, George was named on the intercity squad and whipped his New York opponent to help Chicago pile a 13 to 3 victory.

Rodak Enters Again.

Leo Rodak, the intercity and international flyweight champion from last year, yesterday filed his entry for Golden Gloves. Rodak this year will compete in the bantamweight class Leo is a South Chicago boy. He will compete for St. Peter's and St. Paul's parish of the Catholic Youth organization. He is entered in the south section tournament at White City.

Capt. Frederick Burton, who is coaching the boxing team of the unemployed shelters in Chicago, yesterday submitted a preliminary list of twenty-six boxers who will compete in the three Golden Gloves sectionals. Additional entries will be submitted in the next few days.

Entries Close Monday.

Entries close Monday night for the west side section. These bouts at the Ashland Boulevard auditorium will be held Feb. 15 and 16. Entries close Feb. 11 for the north side tournament at the Loyola university gymnasium, which will be held Feb. 18 and 19. Entries for the south side meet at White City close Feb. 15. The south side contestants will box on Feb. 22, 23, and 24.

Gymnasium and club teams should be entered before Monday if the coaches wish to divide their boys between the three sectionals and increase the chances of qualifying several boys in the same weight. Two boys in each weight will qualify in each of the three city tournaments for the Tournament of Champions at the Chicago Stadium.

100 Box at Milwaukee.

The Wisconsin Golden Gloves tournament gets under way next Thursday and Friday nights at the Milwaukee Eagles club, which is sponsoring the amateur contests in connection with the Milwaukee bureau of THE TRIBUNE.

More than 100 boys will compete for Wisconsin championships. The eight champions will be determined Feb. 19 in the finals and will then be eligible for the Tournament of Champions in Chicago.

JOLIET BOASTS CHAMPS

Joliet, Ill., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Seven Will county amateur boxing champions today entered the Joliet Spectator's sectional Golden Gloves tourney. The new titleholders were crowned last night in the final round of a three night tournament. They are:

105 pound class: Fritz Walz, Rockdale.
112 pound class: Ed Spiezio, Joliet.
118 pound class: Tom Calvick, Joliet.
135 pound class: Louis Desarro, Joliet.
147 pound class: Clair Long, Plainfield.
160 pound class: Roy Skeldon, Joliet.
Heavyweight: Eli Rungaitis, Rockdale.

Entrants today soared toward the century mark. With several towns still unreported, it is expected more than 100 boxers will be registered for first round bouts before entries close tomorrow night.

A majority of the boxers entered have been in training several weeks for the opening bouts Feb. 15. Jim McCure, Joliet heavyweight hope, was beaten in the Will county tourney when Eli Rungaitis, Rockdale usher, whipped him easily in three rounds. Rungaitis, however, will be in the Joliet bouts.

TIPS FROM AN OLD CHAMPION

AMERICAN FIGHTS RAID ON ITS STAR HOCKEY PLAYERS

President William F. Grant of the American Hockey league last night threatened court action if the National league clubs attempted to recruit players of his league. It was reported that Bob Trapp of Tulsa and Burr Williams of St. Louis were on their way to join the Chicago Blackhawks.

"If the report is true about the players, we will prevent their playing by injunction proceedings and file action for damages against the Chicago club," said President Grant. "These men are under contracts which are valid.

"We are protected by law. We are not worried about the players. The loss of Trapp or Williams will not wreck any hockey clubs in the American league. There are plenty of players available with Buffalo disorganized."

Hawks Await Ruling.

Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, owner of the Chicago Blackhawks, said his club was negotiating with Williams and Trapp. Williams and Trapp have declared themselves free agents, and will sign with the Hawks as soon as it can be determined that they are not bound by contracts to play with the American league clubs, Maj. McLaughlin said.

While President Grant declared that both Williams and Trapp could not jump their contracts, it was the players' claim they have not received their salaries and therefore the contracts were invalidated. Grant said the salaries have been paid on schedule.

Ignores Cup Challenge.

With reports coming from several cities in the United States on the players jumping their contracts, a statement was issued by Frank Calder, president of the National Hockey league at Montreal, on the Stanley cup challenge made by the American league on Wednesday night.

"As far as I am personally concerned there will be no truck or trade with any outlaw league for the Stanley cup or any other trophy. The sponsors of the outlaw league are fully aware of that," said President Calder.

"They are also well aware of the requirements necessary to enter organized professional hockey. An attempt to push their way in by means of a challenge for the Stanley cup is nothing but an attempt to evade those requirements."

NO PROTEST RECEIVED.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Trustees of the Stanley cup, emblematic of world hockey supremacy, have received no official protest from the National Hockey league over the acceptance of a challenge from the American Hockey league, William Foran, cup trustee, said here tonight.

Prices on Outfielders Look Like War Debt to Hornsby

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Plans by which Cub bosses figured they could capture an experienced, worthwhile outfielder during the National league meeting at New York last Tuesday, were a complete flop. President William Veeck and Manager Rogers Hornsby returned yesterday and reported the only response received to their various "feelers" was either an exorbitant demand or "We don't want to do anything just now."

Bosses of the world's champion Cardinals were asked whether they had any excess fly chasers. They have them, but prefer not to act hastily. The same question was put to the guiding lights of the Brooklyn club. They hadn't heard of the big depression. Their price in ivory was excessive. The Pittsburgh club also was consulted, but George Gibson, the new manager, expressed a desire to hang on to what he has until after he has looked it over in spring camp.

Robins Are Tricky.

Brooklyn officials, confident that the famous Hack Wilson will not have any trouble patroling center field, stood willing to help out the Cubs by giving them Frederick. The price for this was one of the Cubs' starting pitchers. Frederick, since the Wilson acquisition, isn't considered good enough by his owners to play regularly, but they figured the Cub chiefs, in their anxiey to fill a weakness, might be foolish enough to surrender a valuable chattel.

The Pirate star in whom the Cubs are interested is Paul Waner, who is not in the good graces of his owner. However, Gibson as manager is responsible for the team and has no desire to cripple himself even before he starts actual work. If during spring training some new outfield talent should be uncovered, or if Mr. Waner should stage another holdout such as he did last year, a deal probably will be made.

Cardinal officials want to wait until they see how well some of their stars swallow salary cuts. Any balking over terms probably will result in the recalcitrants being tossed off the St. Louis premises. If and when that happens, the Cubs will be ready to dicker if a good outfielder happens to be included among the undersirables.

Barton May Get Chance.

Hornsby has already decided what he'll do if he has to go along with the outfielders now on the roster. If Riggs Stephenson is able to play, he'll be in left with Cuyler in center and Richbourg in right. In the event Stephenson is hopelessly handicapped by the ankle fractured last summer, Barton will be dropped into right field and Richbourg shifted over to left. Barton still has to prove himself a hitter. That Stephenson is slightly worried by his ankle is indicated by a written request that the club provide him with a high shoe for the weak foot.

Pat Malone, who, to prove that he is going in for serious work this summer, recently started a conditioning grind here, has gone on to California. The club consented to let him start his labors immediately at the Catalina Island camp. He will be the only veteran among the rookie squad due on the island Feb. 16. By that time Pat expects to have himself in real pitching trim. That will make him and Grover Alexander, who also is leading the simple life at Catalina, available in batting practice.

Pittsburgh Sells George Grantham to Cincinnati Reds

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—George Grantham, who came to the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1924, was sold today to the Cincinnati Reds. Pirate officials, who made the announcement, said the deal was made with "just cash." The amount was not revealed.

Grantham, who came here from the Chicago Cubs along with Vic Aldridge and Al Niehaus, covered second base for the Chicago club, but was shifted to first by the Pirates. The Cubs acquired Walter Maranville, Charley Grimm, and Wilbur Cooper in the Grantham deal.

Pittsburgh officials also announced that Jimmy Mosolf, Tacoma, Wash., outfielder, has been sent to the San Francisco Mission club of the Pacific Coast league. Mosolf came to the Pirates from the Wichita club of the Western league in 1929.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.

TODAY'S SCHEDULE.
3 p. m.—Reiselt vs. Copulos.
8:15 p. m.—Thurnblad vs. Kieckhefer.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The world's champion at three cushion billiards, Art Thurnblad of Chicago, made a final gesture toward retaining his crown in the title tournament at Mussey's amphitheater last night when he easily beat Jake Schaefer, 50 to 36, in a rather tiresome 62 inning game.

It was tiresome becuse Thurnblad failed to play like a champion should play and because Young Jake, the balkline champion, was so badly out of stroke that he missed his own pet short angle shots. As the game dragged along and Thurnblad grasped at and clung to the last straw that would keep him in the running, the billiard marathon, as far as the championship is concerned, developed into a three handed fight.

Three Leaders Play Today.

It will reach one of those crucial stages where more help has to be put on in the counting room today, for the three players with a chance at the title see action.

Thurnblad steps back into the spotlight this afternoon and meets Augie Kieckhefer, who is in second place. Tonight Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia, who is sailing out in front, battles Gus Copulos, who was eliminated only yesterday when he fell before a brilliant Johnny Layton, 50 to 37, in 38 innings.

If Reiselt and Kieckhefer win their games they will fight it out for the championship. If Reiselt and Kieckhefer lose, which would, of course, make Thurnblad win, the championship race would develop into the most difficult sort of a puzzle. But from the way recent games shape up the championship match next Monday night will find Reiselt squared away against Kieckhefer.

Schaefer Loses Touch.

Schaefer, who just twenty-four hours previous had turned in a sensational 33 inning triumph over Copulos, could not find his stride until the last two innings, when he bunched two runs of 5. That meant that during the Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 4.—In a scene adorned by bright uniforms and the flags of seventeen nations and slightly cluttered by the presence of numerous officials on parade, the American athletes got away to an auspicious start in the third presentation of the winter Olympic games which began today with ceremonies in the open air stadium down by the Lake Placid town hall.

COUNTESS YVONNE DE LIGNE.

Jack Shea, a local boy and apparently a prophet in his own home town, won the 500 meter race after loafing through his trial heat, and Irving Jaffee of New York won the 5,000 meter race by inches from Eddie Murphy of Chicago, a former CHICAGO TRIBUNE Silver Skates winner.

The Canadian hockey team beat the Americans, 2 to 1, in a game which went into overtime, and the Germans beat the Poles, 2 to 1. However, none of the hockey teams was eliminated by today's results, as the championships in this sport is being decided by the outcome of a series of matches, like an abbreviated major league baseball season.

Hoist Olympic Flag.

The crowd which descended on the little winter resort in the snowy lake and hill country of the Adirondacks beheld a scene of snow and ice and festival. The Olympic flag, a series of vari-colored loops, entwined on a white field, suggesting an idealized pretzel, was flung to the light breeze of a pleasant winter day from a number of rough wooden masts with the bark on, plucked from the forests roundabout.

The officials on the gates were all a-twitter as the great moment of the opening of the Olympic games approached, for this was a historic event in Lake Placid, which the town had been anticipating for three years, and any miscarriage of the plans would have caused deep mortification. Moreover, Lake Placid had invested about half a million dollars in the arrangements, including the permanent plant, and there was some pardonable anxiety about the attendance.

Athletes on Dress Parade.

At a quarter of eleven Gov. Franklin Roosevelt's automobile hove to behind the area just in front of the high school which was being used as a dressing room for the athletes, and he got down, assisted by troopers of the New York state constabulary and his secretary. Already the athletes were dressed for the ceremonial parade and waiting in squads beside the schoolhouse behind their national flags. The governor entered the grandstand and the band struck up something doubtless intended to be stirring, the effect being jumbled and somewhat soured, however, by an overcharge of power in the amplifying apparatus.

The crowd rose, the band blatted oh, and the dials presently tuned in the music, more or less clear, just as the first flag approached the entrance on the far side of the arena, across a broad field of glassy ice. This was an unfamiliar flag, the new Austrian standard, with two broad red horizontal stripes separated by a broad white stripe. A Boy Scout of the local troop marched before the color bearer carrying a sign "Austria" and thereafter each group, including the United States team, was similarly preceded and identified beyond any mistake.

There were seven in the Austrian party, including a girl in a big, fuzzy coat, and next behind them came the Belgians, including the Countess Yvonne de Ligne, a figure skater, who could have kept on marching around and around the arena all day long without any objection from a suddenly smitten and palpitant element of susceptible males.

O-o-o—That Countess.

The countess is what you might call a sort of blond, and yet not a blond either, but a compromise between the yellow haired blond and the medium. The countess is something special and not to be classified. She wore pants, of course, as all the girls, including the noncombatants, do at Lake Placid, which tapered down tight until they vanished into her boots, and above the pants she wore a fur jacket and some kind of cap.

There was something about the Countess de Ligne of Belgium that set the gents up in the stands to babbling and reduced them, finally, to a state of balmy coma. The countess stepped forward from the little group of Belgians as they approached the

ANDERSON GIVEN YEAR'S CONTRACT AT NOTRE DAME

Schwartz, Yarr, Hoffmann Named Assistants.

Notre Dame, Ind., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Heartly W. [Hunk] Anderson will be retained in 1932 as head football coach at Notre Dame. John [Ike] Voedisch will return as end coach, and they will be assisted by the three seniors of the 1931 varsity who finished their careers last fall. This announcement was made today by the Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, C. S. C., university president.

Capt. Tommy Yarr, center; Marchmont Schwartz, left half back, and Frank Nordy Hoffmann, guard, have been engaged to assist Anderson.

Yarr Completes Course.

Yarr has completed his studies at Notre Dame and was signed for one year, spring and fall practice. Schwartz and Hoffmann will coach this spring, next fall and the spring of 1933. They will finish their law courses in June of 1933.

Anderson's contract, like those of Voedisch and Yarr, is for one year, as is customary at Notre Dame. Father O'Donnell said Jake Klein probably will be retained as assistant freshman coach and that his assistants will be appointed later.

Anderson in Florida.

Today's announcement came after Jack Chevigny, junior coach, announced his resignation in Sunday's CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Anderson is expected back from Florida Monday. The South Bend Rotary club will give a testimonial dinner to the team Wednesday noon. The annual monogram dinner, at which a captain for 1932 will be elected, will be held shortly after the Rotary fête.

Forest Census Shows Cunning of Wolf, Coyote

BY BOB BECKER.

How the coyotes, wolves, and bobcats cleverly evade traps and how these animals maintain colonies in a given unit of forest are shown in a report from Crosby A. Hoar, acting regional forester of the United States forest service.

Mr. Hoar has given us figures on a wild life census taken on the Oneida purchase unit in northern Wisconsin, a new national forest, which is perhaps better known as the Argonne. It's in Oneida county and lies east of the little town of Three Lakes, Wis.

The census of game animals not only shows the difficulty of handling the predatory problem, but also what an asset a national forest is in stocking the surrounding country with game.

Incidentally, this unit will be fairly open for recreation this year. The government has been building roads through to some of the best trout streams.

Here are the figures on wild animals in this forest and recreational unit of 140,764 acres, of which 57 per cent has actually been purchased. After making a census, Mr. Hoar says that every estimate indicates the presence of 3,100 deer and 25 bears. Unwelcome "guests" include 100 coyotes, 20 wildcats, and 25 timber wolves.

As for fur bearing animals, Mr. Hoar submits the following figures, which show the Argonne to be a regular beaver and muskrat paradise: 650 beaver, 50 fox, 12 marten, 450 mink, 800 muskrats, 10 otter, and 600 skunks. Mr. Hoar adds that about 20 deer were killed by predators during the year 1931. To balance this the trappers waged war against the wolves and took the following toll: 15 coyotes, 15 bobcats, and 12 wolves.

One of the great assets of this forest unit, as far as the production of game is concerned, is a state game refuge of more than 45,000 acres, part of which is in the forest.

But one of the most interesting features of the survey of wild life in the Argonne refers to fish. Whereas rigid protection and the trapping of predators has made for an increase in game, the streams and lakes haven't had such an auspicious setup. The acting forester says that the lakes and streams in the unit need even more help than state and local authorities have given through the stocking of the waters with fry and fingerlings. Therefore the federal hatcheries are going to be asked to stock trout streams and lakes, so that tourists and campers can have some fun with rod and line.

Ping Pong Stars Play for Chicago Title Tonight

Play for the Chicago district men's ping pong singles title will start tonight at 365 West Madison street. George Littell and Ray Leininger of the Interfraternity club, Frank Work and Yoshio Fushimi of the Illinois Ping Pong club, B. Jablonski, Will Larson and Max Rushakoff of Central Chicago, and Ole Pearson of Hyde Park are the seeded players.

Shamrocks Out for Revenge in Game Tonight

Tonight at the Chicago Stadium the St. Louis Fliers make their sixth drive against the Shamrocks, whom they have beaten four out of five times during the American Hockey league season. Burr Williams, one of two American leaguers the Chicago Blackhawks are trying to sign, will be in the St. Louis lineup at defense, Manager Dick Carroll told President Thomas Shaughnessy of the Shamrocks.

The game tonight is the third of the year between the two clubs at the Stadium. The last one, a victory for the Fliers, was marked by unusually rough play, several fights on the ice, and an exchange of punches by the two managers.

The Fliers recently turned in a winning streak of five weeks during which they marched from the rear of the American league procession to the front. They just lost two games to the champion Tulsa Oilers, but consider themselves ready to resume their victorious advance to the American championship.

The Shamrocks, on the other hand, have shown a decided reversal of form recently, and after a week's strenuous drill feel fit to avenge the conquests of their rivals.

The St. Louis forces are augmented by the acquisition of Eddie Bouchard and Billy De Paul, ex-Buffalo wings, Carroll announced last night. The veteran Bouchard and the young De Paul will form a third line for St. Louis in combination with Bobby Kirk, another young forward.

Billy Kendall has been playing fine hockey for the Fliers at center and will team up on an advance line with the fleet Red Jackson and St. John—a young combination.

Shrimp McPherson, center, and Chubby Scott are the Fliers' scoring aces. Shrimp, who scored three of the five St. Louis goals here two weeks ago, is the league's best goal netter with 16. Although experienced in service this Flier star is only 23 years old.

Firpo Down to Weight for Shade Bout

Henry Firpo, Newcastle, Pa., middleweight, who meets Dave Shade at White City next Monday night, yesterday boxed with four sparring partners, Young Stuhley, Jimmy Murphy, Bill Connell, and Bud Borelli. He will box with the same fighters today. Firpo will have no trouble making the 160 pound limit since he is a natural middleweight. The winner has been promised a match with Gorilla Jones, National Boxing association champion, early next summer. Five other bouts complete the card.

BOWLING LEAGUE MEETS.

A meeting of the Royal League National Bowling association will be held tomorrow in the Steuben building to make arrangements for the association's mixed doubles championships.

AMATEUR CHAMPS CLASH TONIGHT AT MERRY GARDEN

Five boxing champions will appear in feature bouts tonight on the amateur card at Merry Garden arena, Sheffield and Belmont avenues. Anton Hedman, Central A. A. U. middleweight champion, and Max Marek, Catholic Youth organization intercity title holder, meet in the main event.

The semi-windup brings together Gus Lindquist, amateur middleweight champion of Sweden, and Bob Groshek, Indiana State Golden Gloves title holder. Solly Dukelsky, Central A. A. U. welterweight champion, and Bud Shannon of Hinsdale, Ill., box one of six supporting matches.

Negotiations for the welterweight title fight between Jackie Fields, champion, and Young Corbett at San Francisco Feb. 22 will be completed today. Fields already has accepted terms, and Corbett is expected to sign today at San Francisco.

George Haberski, Catholic Youth organization bantamweight champion, and Paul Steger will fight Mickey Vatslavek and Meyer Corn, respectively, in headline matches tonight at the Northwest Lions Athletic club, 4300 West North avenue. Six other bouts round out the program.

Tom Moon and John Holda will meet in the main event of the amateur program tonight at the Coulon club, 1154 East 63d street. Steve Chastein of Hammond and Willie Krongly box in the semi-windup.

Nick Scialaba, international Golden Gloves champion, and Gene Weiss clash in the windup of the amateur card tonight at the 24th Ward club, 3242 West Roosevelt road.

Quicker cold weather starting—70% higher anti-knock (superior to some premium gasolines)—this ace of motor fuels was made at the cost of $18,000,000 to us—

BUT NOT ONE CENT EXTRA TO YOU!

Here it is in a nutshell—we've just spent $18,000,000 in refinery improvements to give you a finer, all-around gasoline at no increase in price to you.

Jaffee, Shea Win Speed Skating Races.

governor's reviewing stand to give the salute, but the countess, herself, did not raise the salute. The countess saluted with her eyes. She rolled those eyes at the governor, marching along there on the ice with her hands at her sides and then she tore off a smile and flung it up into the stands and all over everybody.

Sonja Good, But Second.

There was much discussion of the countess, and there were some who said, "Wait until the little Norwegian doll, Sonja Henie, comes by." And, for a fact, when Sonja Henie, the world's champion figure skater, came tripping by the reviewing stand, she rolled a very nice orb and let fly a smile which will have to be scored very high; but still nobody weakened on the countess. It wasn't even close.

All the Canadians threw the governor a military salute of the left hand and all the nations, including the Japanese and excepting only the United States, dipped their flags in passing. This was a conspicuous exception and Maj. Phil Fleming of the United States Military academy, who is an official of the Olympic games, explained that the Stars and Stripes never are dipped to anybody.

Four Germans Missing.

The German squad was reduced by four men who lay in the local hospital cracked up in practice slides on the bob run down Mount van Hoevenberg. Their sleds were mounted on round steel runners, intended for snowy going, whereas the Americans have been using runners more like the blades of skates to grip the icy banks on the turns.

The officials tried to keep the Germans off the slide with those sleds, but they demanded the right to practice and when the Americans said, "You'll break your necks," they replied, "That is our right." So Albert Brehme may die of his hurts and two of the men who marched with the squad today were suffering from broken bones. Capt. Werner Zahn marched by with his left arm in a white sling and a wound over his right eye, still determined to slide on his round runners.

The teams, as they filed by, made a turn and fell in on the hockey rink, facing the reviewing stand and the Canadians, a generous lot, were bouncing cheers against the sky for every one. But when all the American officials had shuffled past, followed by the athletes, and had taken their place on the rink, closing the procession, an official jumped up on the wooden barrier of the hockey arena and led the boys and girls in a rousing cheer for themselves and nobody else whatever.

This was the cheer:

Ray, Ray, Ray.
U. S. A.
A-M-E-R-I-C-A.

Jack Shea, the local boy who is uncommonly popular for a local boy, was then summoned to a platform before the governor and the microphone, to repeat the Olympic oath on behalf of all the players.

A few minutes later, Shea dawdled through his heat of the 500 meter race, running second to Frank Stack of Canada in an idling finish. But when the final came, he beat Bernt Evenson, the great Norwegian, by five yards. Hurd, Stack, and Logan of Canada took the next three places and O'Neill Farrell of Chicago, a former CHICAGO TRIBUNE Silver Skates winner, was sixth.

Murphy Runs Second.

In the final of the 5,000 meters, Jaffe of New York and Murphy of Chicago were first and second, and Bert Taylor of New York was fourth, with Logan, the Canadian, in third place, so the American score in the two competitive events of the day was satisfactory.

There were four Japanese in the heats of the 500 meters and they took the track for their practice in flowing kimonos which streaked out behind them like banners, but none of them qualified for the final. Summaries:

Laufer, Colbath Lose Titles in A. A. U. Swim Meet

BY BETTY ECKERSALL.

Two champions were dethroned in the first Central A. A. U. swimming championships of the 1932 season, held last night at the Lake Shore Athletic club.

Walter Laufer of the Lake Shore Athletic club was unsuccessful in the defense of his 150 yard senior men's back stroke title. Laufer, who has held the championship for four consecutive years, raced stroke for stroke with R. W. Kerber, unattached, but lost out by a yard in the last half tank length of the race.

The other upset of the evening was the defeat of Walter Colbath, veteran high board diving ace of the Lake Shore Athletic club. Colbath, titlist in this event for the last six years, lost his championship to Al Green, 19 year old team mate who scored 8.5 on an Olympic optional dive, the highest score given any competitor on one dive. The Olympic dive is running a half gainor with a half twist. Green is the Pacific A. A. U. high board champion.

Sixteen year old Marjorie Canavan of the Illinois Women's Athletic club successfully defended her women's 100 yard senior backstroke title. A team mate, Marian Stanton, competing for the first time, was second, only a yard behind.

Summaries:

100 YARD SENIOR WOMEN'S BACKSTROKE—Won by Majorie Canavan, Illinois Women's Athletic club; Marian Stanton, Illinois Women's Athletic club, second; Grace Swenson, Edgewater Beach apartments, third. Time, 1:18.5

500 YARD SENIOR MEN'S FREE STYLE SWIM—Won by Merton Wilcox, Northwestern university; William Wilson, Northwestern university, second; Cy Nelson, Lake Shore Athletic club, third. Time, 5:57 flat.

FANCY DIVING, SENIOR MEN—Won by Al Green, Lake Shore Athletic club, Walter Colbath, Lake Shore Athletic club, second; James Wilkie, Northwestern university, third.

150 YARD SENIOR MEN'S BACKSTROKE SWIM—Won by R. W. Kerber, unattached; Walter Laufer, Lake Shore Athletic club, second; Herb Murphy Northwestern university, third. Time, 1:42.8.

The Illinois Athletic Club Polo team defeated the Northwestern university team, 7 to 2.

BRUINS HOPE TO STOP MURPHY AND BEAT HOOSIERS

If Feed Murphy of Loyola can stop Stretch Murphy of Purdue when the Hoosier All Stars and the Chicago Bruins meet Sunday night at the Rainbo Fronton it will be the first time this season that the Purdue boy has been checked.

In every game this season Stretch has averaged six field goals per game for the Hoosiers against some of the strongest opposition in Indiana and surrounding states. His teammates declare that he is playing the best game of his career.

Taylor Post of Legion Wins U. S. Rifle Awards

Members of the Harold A. Taylor American Legion post's rifle team were presented with war department medals at a dinner in the Allerton hotel last night. The awards were won by the team in the government qualification matches at Fort Sheridan last summer. Maj. C. A. Plamondon of the 122d Field artillery made the presentations. Following the ceremony, members of the post team competed in an inter-club shoot on a temporary range in the Allerton hotel.

House of David to Use Star Hurler Against Ruppert

Harold Means, star pitcher of the House of David indoor baseball team, who will oppose Matt Ruppert when the Benton Harbor squad faces the Ruppert All-Stars at the Rainbo Fronton Monday night, has won 24 straight games. There will be a preliminary game between the T. O. Wallaces and the Kellers.

Thurnblad Is 50-36 Victor Over Schaefer

other sixty innings he was not counting with the frequency and ease that marked some of his other engagements.

Whether it was Thurnblad's underrated defense or Schaefer's inaccurate shooting, the fact remains that Schaefer was not clicking. His total reached 11 in the seventeenth inning and for the next thirteen innings he registered only blanks. Not so wonderful for a cueist of the Schaefer type. Then for the next fourteen innings he collected only 6 and broke this scoring depression with a cluster of 5 in the forty-fifth.

In the meantime the lethargic Thurnblad advanced slowly, making one here, one there, an occasional two and finally a three in the 38th inning, then a four in the 43d and at the end of the 45th he was leading by 37 to 22. His 5 in the 54th virtually clinched the game.

Rallies Too Late.

Schaefer, who likes to play a waiting game, lingered too long for this finish. He was beaten by 49 to 26 when he decided to get busy, but the damage had been done.

If Layton, who whipped Copulos, had played billiards half as well in his early struggles, he might have been up there fighting for the championship. Instead he is buried down in fifth place with no chance at the title and with only a remote chance to finish better than fourth.

Layton played Copulos off his feet from the beginning of the match, and it was a severe blow to Gus. Until Wednesday night he was in the thick of the championship tussle. Then Jake Schaefer beat him and made him a 15 to 1 shot for the title. His beating at the hands of Layton dropped him into the three way tie for fifth place with Layton and Schaefer.

Leaders Anxious to Meet.

Reiselt, Kieckhefer and Thurnblad, the three who have a chance to wind up playing the big rôle in the championship coronation ceremonies, were pacing up and down the corridors waiting until they could get at each other.

In his last two games Copulos walked into players who flashed sensational form. Jake Schaefer made his 50 points in 33 innings, and Layton his 50 in 38, 100 points for opponents in 71 innings. In that period Copulos counted 58.

HINMAN MANOR TITLE CONVEYED TO CORPORATION

Will Manage It for Bond Owners' Committee.

BY AL CHASE.

Filing of a quitclaim deed to the Hinman Manor apartments at 545-555 Hinman avenue, Evanston, from Marie Curow to the Hinman Manor Building corporation yesterday disclosed another step in the reorganization of that property as outlined in a letter mailed by Fred W. Heide, secretary of the Leight & Co. bondholders' protective committee, to the bondholders. The grantee, the Hinman Manor Building corporation, recently was organized to take over the ownership of the property and manage it for the benefit of depositing bondholders. Adolph Kempner, formerly president of the Chicago Curb, is chairman of the bondholders' protective committee.

ADOLPH KEMPNER.

All of the stock in the new corporation is no par value common and will be issued to three trustees for the benefit of the depositing bondholders pro rata their respective holdings of bonds. The trustees will issue trust certificates to each bondholder representing a beneficial interest in one share of stock in the corporation for each $10 in par value of bonds and coupons deposited with the committee.

Plan New Loan.

According to George S. Ballard, vice chairman and reorganization manager of the bondholders' committee, the new corporation has reasonable assurance of procuring a new first mortgage loan sufficient to pay the back taxes, reorganization expenses, and purchase price of the equity and provide a substantial reserve for operations. It is estimated by Mr. Ballard that the net profit from the property will be sufficient to pay at least a 5 per cent annual dividend on the stock.

The foreclosure sale will be held in about thirty days. Bondholders will be allowed twenty days from the mailing of the plan to accept it. The reorganization, it is stated, has been worked out by the committee with the approval of the Leight Trust, of which Paul C. Loeber is managing trustee. Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin and MacChesney, Whiteford & Wells are attorneys. The original bond issue was for $225,000 at 7 per cent and has been reduced to $165,000. It was underwritten by Leight & Co. Both principal and interest payments defaulted in April, 1930, and the trustees filed a foreclosure suit. The building contains thirty-six four and five room unfurnished suites.

Broadway-Barry Bond Issue.

Harry G. Zimmerman yesterday took title to the five story garage building at 3111-21 Broadway from the Broadway-Barry Building corporation, by Irvin H. Callner, president. Mr. Zimmermann represents the bondholders' protective committee, of which Abel Davis is chairman. The members are J. E. Otis, Howard A. Loeb, John P. Oleson, B. M. Winston, Murray Wolbach, and M. E. Greenebaum. C. J. Olsen is secretary.

A receiver is to be appointed and the court will be asked to authorize a lease of the premises for two years to Leslie Levine, who will pay $900 a month rental. The present rental is said to average only about $300 a month. Mr. Levine also is scheduled to pay the committee $4,800 for an option to extend the lease for two years. This will be used in part to settle a controversy over fixtures.

William M. Richards, acting for the bondholders in the Park View Manor apartments at the northwest corner of Central Park and Sunnyside avenues, has bid in the property at a foreclosure sale for $38,000. The building, which contains twenty-four suites, was erected about nine years ago. It was financed by a $105,000 bond issue underwritten by H. O. Stone & Co. The interest defaulted in February, 1928, at which time the bonds had been reduced to $94,000. Mr. Richards is assistant secretary for the H. A. Stone & Co. bondholders' protective committee.

HOARDERS SEEN SHARING BLAME FOR INFLATION

Keep Needed Money from Business.

BY O. A. MATHER.

There has been considerable discussion recently on currency inflation. More recently much has been said about hoarding and this has culminated in an appeal by President Hoover for the release of hidden and idle money. Perhaps few people associate these discussions, although they are related.

Most of the proponents of currency inflation advocate it in a mild form and as a temporary palliative for depression. Thus far there has been no move on the part of the government and the federal reserve system to inflate the currency. Yet it is estimated that more than a billion dollars is in hoarding. This hidden and idle currency is performing no useful function, although the country's business must have sufficient media of exchange.

Must Have Gold Backing.

Even money in hoarding must be backed by a percentage of gold. Therefore, if the country is to have sufficient money for its legitimate business either the currency must be somewhat inflated or hoarded money must be returned to active and useful circulation. So the hoarder is doing as much as anybody, probably more, to force an inflation that nobody really desires for this country.

The weekly report of the federal reserve system, issued last night, brings this situation again to attention. In the last week the amount of money in circulation increased $42,000,000 and now totals $5,631,000,000. While part of the current increase may result from the usual month-end demand for currency in connection with commercial settlements, still it is unusually large.

A Currency Expansion.

But there has been an expansion of $1,055,000,000 in currency in the last year, although business is seen less active. It cannot be denied that hoarding is responsible for most of this expansion. Thus, it apepars that nearly one-fifth of our total money is in hiding.

With all the reported withdrawals of gold by foreign banks, the gold stock of the United States declined only $20,000,000 in the last week. It still stands at $4,406,000,000, which results in making our currency the soundest in the world. Of this gold, $2,970,182,000 is held by the reserve banks. This is a decline of $16,804,000 for the week. While federal reserve notes expanded $36,707,000, their total of $2,664,003,000 still is smaller than the gold reserves.

Borrowings Increased.

There was a moderate expansion of credit afforded by the reserve banks in the last week. The member banks increased their borrowings from the reserve banks by $17,529,000, although this resulted from the month-end needs. Total borrowings now stand at $855,168,000. However, this expansion was considerably offset by the reserve banks selling $6,161,000 of bankers' acceptances and $2,721,000 of government securities. Deposits of the reserve banks receded $45,491,000. Total reserves declined $18,003,000 and the ratio of reserve to liabilities eased to 67.1 per cent, compared with 67.4 per cent last week.

The New York reserve bank made no change in its 3½ per cent rediscount rate. The member banks again reported a decrease in their loans to brokers. The total now is only $505,000,000, which is $8,000,000 less than a week ago, and $1,211,000,000 less than a year ago, when the total was $1,716,000,000. Incidentally, the current total marks another new low record. The New York banks reduced their own loans by $13,000,000, but interior banks increased their loans by $5,000,000.

Approves Move.

Approval of the move made by President Hoover to combat the hoarding of money throughout the country was expressed yesterday by Arthur Reynolds, chairman of the board of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company.

"The great need at the present time," Mr. Reynolds said, "is the stabilization of confidence. Any move which would tend to help restore confidence is aimed in the right direction. President Hoover's plan to call a conference of business leaders may prove beneficial."

Canadian Rail Workers Sign 10% Wage Cut Draft

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Montreal, Que., Feb. 4.—Weeks of negotiation between officials of the two Canadian railways and representatives of the operating trades ended today in the formal signing of an agreement, under which the ten per cent wage cut instituted by the companies as from Nov. 16, 1931, remains in force until Jan. 31, 1933, but is made to date only from Dec. 1, 1931, instead of from Nov. 16.

Gen. Motors Workers Cut Saving Melon

New York, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Employés of the General Motors corporation who began putting something by for a rainy day six years ago are now collecting more than $2 for each dollar put by. The corporation is now distributing $7,862,459 in cash and stock to 30,222 of its employés who invested in its savings and investment fund class of 1926.

Each employé who invested $800 in the fund is receiving $661.71 in cash and stock. The stock is valued as of Dec. 31 at $22.62 a share, which is only $1.37 above today's final price in the stock market.

Of the $661.71 received, $300 is the original investment, $114.35 an interest payment, and the remainder is in 10.93 shares of General Motors stock.

Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president, said that 50 per cent more employés are sharing in this year's distribution than shared in last year's. The savings and investment fund classes have been operating for the last 13 years, and eight classes have matured. Employés have received $56,189,195, including 1,597,844 shares of stock.

How Plan Works.

In the five unmatured classes, employés of the corporation have to their credit $79,210,096 representing cash, dividends and common stock, to be distributed over the next five years.

The savings plan functions in this way: Employés may pay in up to 20 per cent of their annual earnings, if the amount does not exceed $300. For each dollar put in the corporation contributes 50 cents, and the latter is used to purchase General Motors stock. With the dividends additional stock is purchased. The cash receives interest at 6 per cent.

Speaking of the corporation's aim in furthering a spirit of thrift among its employés, Mr. Sloan said:

"Industry today is recognizing in increasing measure its broader social responsibilities and is endeavoring to answer in a practical way the many problems involved in meeting them.

Responsibility of Industry.

"There is now a wider acceptance of the fact that the hazards of industry should be shared to a reasonable extent between industry and worker. General Motors, I believe, through its saving and investment plan has made an important contribution to the program of industrial cooperation for the stabilization and improvement of the economic position of the worker.

"The principle is simple; it is nothing more nor less than a plan of organized saving and the investment of the corporation's in its own common stock. The plan for many thousands has been of immeasurable assistance during this period of business disturbance, and for many other thousands it is helping to achieve economic security for the future."

The number of employés participating in the investment funds is 106,000, Mr. Sloan said, and approximately 24,000 are helping to pay for homes through the operation of the plan.

FEDERAL FRUIT SALES AGENCY TO OPEN OFFICE

The federally financed national sales agency for fruit and vegetable growers' regional coöperative marketing associations will maintain headquarters in the South Water market, Chicago, it was announced yesterday. A. B. Leeper, marketing specialist for the Illinois Agricultural association, resigned that position yesterday to become general manager of the National Fruit and Vegetable exchange, immediately.

N. L. Allen, former federal farm board coöperative expert, has been retained as field manager of the central sales agency, Mr. Leeper announced. John F. Deegan of New York will be sales supervisor for the exchange in eastern markets. Mr. Leeper has been active in coöperative fruit and vegetable marketing in Illinois since 1920, and for many years was manager of the Illinois Fruit Growers' exchange, whose headquarters are at Centralia.

PRICE OF RAW SUGAR TOUCHES ALL TIME LOW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 4.—Raw sugar sold at the equivalent of 1 cent a pound today, or the lowest price in the history of the trade, as the market continued in a highly nervous state over the difficulties between Cuba and Java and the possible collapse of the Chadbourne plan for international sugar stabilization.

The low price reached today was 3 cents a pound duty free, or the equivalent of 1 cent a pound without the 2 cent duty. This staple has never sold below this price. Indications several days ago that an accord between the two important producing countries was imminent appear to have been misleading.

Sugar futures on the New York coffee and sugar exchange went to within one one-hundredths of 1 cent of the all time low, when the March position sold at 0.95 cent. The low is 0.94 cent a pound. This position closed at 0.97 cent.

Cotton Insurance Rates Said to Be Restricted

New York, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Following the withdrawal of war rates of marine insurance on cotton, effective Thursday midnight, insurance circles heard today that insurance companies were quoting for specific shipments and sailing dates only on application. These rates are subject to immediate change, it was said. For February shipment of cotton a rate of $1.50 per 100 pounds was quoted to Shanghai and Tientsin, and a rate of 25 cents per 100 pounds was quoted for February shipment to Kobe.

DOWNS REPORTS TO PRESIDENTS ON WAGE PARLEY

Unemployment Relief Urged in East.

L. A. Downs, president of the Illinois Central railroad, outlined to western railroad presidents at a luncheon at the Union League club yesterday the results of his committee's work at the recent conference at the Palmer house with the labor executives. Mr. Downs said he explained in detail the terms of the provisions of the agreement entered into with the labor leaders whereby the unionized rail workers accepted a 10 per cent reduction.

L. A. DOWNS.

Asked whether he had urged the executives to take steps to relieve unemployment, as Daniel Willard did at a meeting of eastern executives in New York yesterday, Mr. Downs asserted that he had not specifically requested action along these lines.

Will Coöperate, He Says.

"It goes without saying that the western presidents will coöperate in complying with the spirit of the agreement entered into with the unions," Mr. Downs explained.

Mr. Willard in his talk in New York urged the eastern presidents to make determined efforts to relieve unemployment, suggesting that additions be made to maintenance of way forces.

Some thirty executives attended the meeting here yesterday, among them being William B. Storey of the Santa Fé, Fred Sargent of the North Western, J. E. Gorman of the Rock Island, and Patrick H. Joyce of the Great Western.

Palmer Expresses Doubt.

Henry A. Palmer, editor of the Traffic World, in a talk before the Kiwanis club at the Sherman hotel yesterday expressed doubt that proposals to amend the railway act of 1920 to permit greater flexibility in rate making, so that the roads might earn enough in good times to tide them over periods of depression without increasing rates, would do much for the roads even if accomplished.

Mr. Palmer said that broadening the act would not enable the interstate commerce commission to do anything that cannot be done now and would simply give the stamp of congressional approval to the commission's policy toward the railroads.

Favors Equal Regulation.

Regarding control of truck transportation he urged that either some of the restrictions be removed from the railroads or control be assumed over the trucks. He advised equalized regulation, holding that transportation could not be properly coördinated and perform efficiently part regulated and part unregulated.

HEAR JEWEL TEA CO. PLANS TO ENTER CHAIN STORE FIELD IN CITY

Entrance of the Jewel Tea company into the chain store field in Chicago loomed yesterday as a possibility when it was reported that the company was negotiating for the acquisition of the seventy-five Chicago stores and warehouses of Loblaw Groceterias, Inc. Officials of the company could not be reached last night to check the reports.

According to one report the deal has already been completed with Lehman Brothers acting as agents. Dispatches from the east said that stockholders of Loblaw Groceterias, Inc., which is a subsidiary of Loblaw Groceteria company of Canada, will meet today in Buffalo to approve the sale. The firm also operates forty-five stores in Buffalo and New York state but these are not included in the deal, it was reported.

According to the report of the parent Canadian concern for the year ended April 30, 1931, advances of $1,875,000 had been made to the American subsidiary. This was used largely in connection with the opening of the Chicago stores. The subsidiary firm in the same year fell around $30,000 short of meeting interest charges of $150,348. The Buffalo group of stores showed an operating profit of $204,461, while the Chicago group showed an operating loss of $75,027.

PENNSY WILL ASK LOAN TO BE USED IN GIVING WORK

In response to inquiries Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, stated yesterday that the company would apply to the Reconstruction Finance corporation for a loan.

The time of making the application or the extent of the loan has not yet been definitely determined, but it will be made for a reasonable sum considering the large program of electrification and terminal improvements which the company has under way. Every penny requested from the finance corporation will be utilized for the purpose of giving employment and ordering materials from the various industries. The company will make its own arrangements to meet maturities and any other obligations which may arise during the year.

President Atterbury stated a rough guess as to the amount needed would be about $5,000,000 a month, but he declined to commit himself to any final figure. He stated that the Pennsylvania railroad system represents about one-eighth of the entire railroad investment of the country and was greatly impressed with the necessity of continuing a reasonable program of construction work not only to provide employment but to secure the great advantages of lower priced material and other costs.

Bank Clearings Rise for Week; Below Year Ago

New York, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Total bank clearings for all leading cities for the last week is estimated by R. G. Dun & Co. at $5,822,763,000, a decrease of 33 per cent from the corresponding week of 1931. Heavy losses appear at almost every leading center, but the clearings exceeded last week's by $838,103,000.

Transamerica Corp. Profits Drop in 1931

New York, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The Transamerica corporation, holding company for the group of properties assembled by A. P. Giannini, today reported consolidated net profit for itself and subsidiaries for 1931 of $6,245,837, as against net income for 1930 of $18,966,422.

The corporation submitted its first annual report since the Giannini interests were dropped from the board of directors last summer and replaced by prominent banking interests, including representatives of Lee, Higginson & Co.

The report reiterated the conviction of the present management that the concern should dispose of its majority holdings in banks, although it added that no disposition would be made of its control of the bank of American N. T. & S. A. [California] without approval of stockholders. Mr. Giannini has sharply opposed the policies of the new management, and has sought proxies in an effort to regain control.

Expect Gradual Recovery.

The management said the directors look forward to gradual recovery in trade and industry, but pointed out what they considered the necessity of radical changes as a result of the developments of the last two years.

The net profit for 1931 was equivalent to 26 cents per share of common stock on 24,075,962 shares, against 78 cents per share on a slightly smaller number of shares for 1930. The earnings for 1931 did not reflect losses on securities, which were charged to surplus.

The company reported net asset value as of Dec. 31 of $131,121,778, reflecting primarily the drastic deflation of book values effected by the new management last summer. As of June 30, the net asset value was placed at $173,091,000, a sweeping reduction from the $1,117,191,645 in assets reported as of Dec. 31, 1930. The net asset value as of Dec. 31, last, amounted to approximately $5.44 a share on 24,075,962 shares. The stock closed in the stock exchange today at $2.87.

Am. Steel Foundries Reports.

American Steel Foundries had a net loss of $791,374 after all charges, including depreciation, for the year ended Dec. 31, 1931, according to the preliminary statement. In the preceding year the company earned $2,801,442, equal after dividends on the preferred stock to 37 cents a share on the 993,020 shares of common. The preliminary figures indicate a net loss of $635,667 for the final quarter of the year, as against a profit of $81,073 in the corresponding period of 1930.

Net profit of American Brake Shoe and Foundry company and subsidiaries for the year ended Dec. 31, 1931, was $1,386,138, after depreciation, federal taxes, etc., against $2,906,335 net in 1930. The net for 1931 is equal, after preferred dividends, to $1.14 a share on 627,776 common shares, against $3.24 a share earned on 690,991 common shares in 1930.

J. Stewart Baker Succeeds Warburg as Bank Chairman

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 4.—J. Stewart Baker, former president of the Bank of Manhattan Trust company and since December 10 last vice chairman of the board of the Manhattan company, today was elected chairman of the Manhattan company to succeed the late Paul M. Warburg. At the same meeting James P. Warburg, president of the International Acceptance Bank, Inc., and only son of Paul M. Warburg, was elected to Mr. Baker's place as vice chairman of the Manhattan company, which dates back to 1799.

STANDARD OIL OF KANSAS MAY BRANCH OUT

Stockholders of the Standard Oil Company of Kansas have been informed in a letter by President A. S. Hopkins that the management has not been asleep to the possibilities of branching out into the producing and retailing marketing phases of the industry.

The letter was in reply to attacks on the management by a stockholders' committee headed by C. B. Wrightsman of Tulsa, which is seeking proxies for the annual stockholders' meeting March 9. As the result of the clearing away of legal barriers, Hopkins said, the company has purchased and is operating the Tulsa Oil company, a producing concern.

Plans also have been paid to enter the retailing field, he said, "when marketing conditions improve sufficiently." In line with this, a charter has been obtained for Sokan Oil company. Formation of the latter company was necessary due to legal restrictions concerning unfair competition which prevent the sale of products under the name of Standard in any state where other Standard companies already are established.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 4.—Everybody drew a goose egg on the Stock exchange today. There weren't enough profits to pay for the ticker tape used. Sales fell off to about 700,000 shares, making it the dullest February day in eight years and the poorest in point of turnover since Sept. 1, last.

Price movements were too small to attract much attention in any department. Swings of more than a small fraction either way were the exception. Virtually every issue on the list spent the entire five hours backing and filling with no definite trend whatever. There were a few more losses than gains in the final tables, but this didn't spell anything to anybody looking for a cue to the market's future course.

Stagnates Two Weeks.

The market has been in its present state of utter stagnation for about two weeks now. Indeed a comparison of the averages shows that some ninety or a hundred of the more active stocks have been swaying indecisively back and forth within a range of some three or four points since about the middle of January. Individual issues here and there, of course, have made more of a show of activity and the rails as a group have had their ups and downs due to the ebb and flow of hopes of better things in a wage war from the Chicago conference, but the list as a whole has been virtually at a standstill.

Nor is there anything within the immediate line of vision to indicate a radical change for the better—or worse. Some of the dividend meetings which the street has been looking forward to with more or less uncertainty are out of the way, the railway wage hurdle has been successfully taken and the war situation in the far east does not look so bad from the Wall street viewpoint as it did a few days ago. But all these factors have been in a way to contribute their bits for several sessions now without making their supposed potency felt in the slightest.

Hope for Pickup.

Constructive forces are hoping that the market, after it has had a little more time to consider all these "benefits received," may duplicate last spring's performance by trying to anticipate a possible business revival, but the more sanguine of them admit on the showdown that they have little beyond ardent wishes on which to base their anticipations.

The dividend meeting of the General Motors corporation, the latest of the series which has been "hanging over" the market, failed to create a ripple on the trading surface today. The common stock of the company swung throughout within a groove of half a point and closed unchanged from yesterday. United States Steel, which got its dividend action out of the way some time back, also held to a narrow course and likewise finished where it had begun.

Among other so-called pivotals, American Can, American Telephone, Public Service of New Jersey, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Radio, and others did little more than mark time, none of them getting more than half a point away from their closing levels of the previous session.

New York traction stocks showed faint traces of life, being helped by the growing belief in the financial district that the official powers that be are going to be good to them with a little fare boost following the kindness of some of the district in helping the city out of its financial hole recently.

Swift & Co.

I would like a little information on Swift & Co.—its capitalization, earnings, dividend record and an opinion on its bonds.—R. H. B.

Swift & Co., one of the two leading meat packers, was incorporated in 1885. It has a large export business which is handled through its South American subsidiary, Swift International. The company also handles dairy products. It is one of the largest distributors of butter.

Earnings in 1931 were adversely affected by continuous price declines which resulted in inventory losses, reduced export trade and a curtailed by-products business. Inventory losses were offset by sale of capital assets and reduction of operating expenses.

Net profit for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1931, was $677,000, or 11 cents per share, against $12,491,000, or $2.08 per share for the preceding fiscal year. Including sale of capital assets, net profit for the 1931 year was, $8,235,000, or $1.37 per share. Net for 1929 was $13,077,000, against $14,813,000 for 1928 and $12,202,000 for 1927.

The company finished the 1931 fiscal year with a strong current position. Current assets were $167,867,000, and current liabilities were $25,841,000. Cash was $28,469,000. Working capital was $142,026,000, against $149,577,000 the year before. Funded debt was $55,180,000. Capitalization consisted of 6,000,000 shares of capital stock [par $25].

The stock is on an annual dividend basis of $2 per share.

The first 5s, due 1944, are considered sound. The 5 per cent notes, due 1940, are classed as a business man's investment.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 1,500; hogs, 26,000; sheep, 12,000.

The lamb market featured the live stock trade again in a wild advance to the highest levels since the middle of last October. Top grades were quoted upwards to $7.50 at the finish and were comparable to the kinds selling at $5.35 at the low time in December. All houses were on the market for "numbers" as well as quality, and with supplies short 25 per cent this week in face of expanding outlet for dressed lamb at advancing prices buyers were unable to satisfy the demand.

Chicago continued to hold its position as the highest lamb market in the country. Other points were crowding closer and $7.00 was popular at most markets at the close, according to late advices. In the scramble to fill orders buyers turned to matured stock, which is selling at the highest prices since last May and fully $1.00 above a week ago.

Hog Prices Gain.

Disappointingly small receipts reversed the trend of hog prices yesterday. The market had good support on the 10@20c rise, recovering practically all of what it lost in the last three days. Both the top and general average for the whole day advanced 15c at $4.25 and $3.95 respectively, and show 10c gain, compared with the closing quotations of last week's market. Aggressive buying by retailers on the fresh pork trade affected a good clearance on the wholesale market in face of abnormally light receipts of hogs for the remainder of the week.

Five markets have only 57,000 in sight for today, against 88,200 last Friday. The eleven markets show a decrease of 150,000 head in four days and are below any corresponding period in recent years. Only 3,000 were estimated left at the close of yesterday's session and none were offered for sale.

Hog Futures Steady.

Bids and offers were unchanged in the hog futures market yesterday. May contracts were offered at $5.50 and bid $4.75. March hogs carried bids of $4.25 and offers were made at $5.00. February hogs were offered at $4.50 and bid $4.00.

Yesterday's mild improvement in the cattle market was due entirely to starvation receipts. Fluctuations were slight, and only the better grades scored any noticeable gain, some going up as much as 25c, while poorer grades of butcher stock showed little action and in spots finished a shade lower. Only 3,000 cattle arrived at Chicago, against 7,365 last Thursday. It was the smallest Thursday total since May 28.

Show a Loss.

Until yesterday the cattle market had been sliding and prevailing quotations show 50@75c loss compared with a week ago. No outstanding quality steers were on the market and $8.00 bought the best here. The bulk sold at $5.00@7.00 and several full car loads of plain kinds ranged downward to $4.50@4.75. Butcher stock shows mostly 50c loss compared with a week ago. Calves advanced 25c yesterday, but are 50c lower than a week ago. Stockers and feeders lost 25c in four days.

Appoint Receiver for Clay Products Company

Brazil, Ind., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Judge P. W. Hutchison of the Clay county Circuit court ruled for the plaintiffs in the suit for a receiver for the Clay Products company of Brazil and the Ar-Ke-Tex corporation of Indianapolis, a sales organization for the products company, with Bert McBride as president, and ordered the impounding of all the stock to enjoin against further operation without consulting the court.

Judge Hutchison ordered the Ar-Ke-Tex corporation dissolved and the books of the company turned over to the Clay Products company. George W. Shoemaker, formerly vice president and general manager of the company, was appointed temporary receiver, under a $300,000 bond. The receivership suit was filed by several stockholders in the company in various parts of the state.

SELLING OF MAY WHEAT CREDITED TO GOV'T AGENCIES

Prices Close Lower on Board of Trade.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Speculative interest in the wheat market appears to be too light to absorb all of the May delivery offered above 60c. Advances of late above that figure have run into heavy selling, part of which the trade has attributed to government agencies. The general impression has been an effort was being made to liquidate some of the 27,000,000 bu futures which the Stabilization corporation admitted it owned on Oct. 31, 1931.

An early advance of ⅛c over the Wednesday finish to 60⅛c for the May was smothered by commission house selling yesterday, and the market turned heavy in the face of encouraging news from abroad and higher cables from Liverpool. Local sentiment changed to the bear side in view of the refusal of wheat to advance and, with some stop loss orders uncovered, prices dropped 1@1⅛c from the early high and the close was at net losses of ⅝@⅞c. May touching 58⅜c on the break. The finish was at 56⅜@56½c on the March, while May was 59c and July 59⅜c@59½c.

Wheat Supported on Breaks.

Whether the selling of May wheat of late has been for government agencies or not is regarded as guesswork on the part of the trade. Houses that were recently good sellers at 60c and above were good buyers yesterday on the break to 59c and under and helped to check the decline with the assistance of holders of bids.

A general broadening in the demand for cash wheat was reported in cables from abroad and Liverpool closed ⅝@⅝c per bu higher with the May at 56½, or 3¼c under the same future in Chicago and about the narrowest difference which has prevailed in several weeks. Winnipeg received fair support and was only ⅛c lower at the last with May at 63⅛c, while Canadian exchange was quoted around 12⅜ per cent discount. Buenos Aires closed ⅛c lower, with March at 43c.

There was much less activity in export circles yesterday with sales of 300,000 to 400,000 bu Manitobas estimated in all positions. Wednesday's business was finally placed at around 2,000,000 bu. According to cables from Liverpool, Argentine wheat was offered at 52⅛c per bu, c. i. f., compared with 60¼c for American No. 2 hard winter.

Cash Corn Weakens.

A weaker undertone developed in the corn market with the May selling off ¾c from Wednesday's finish to a low of 39⅜c, the inside figure since Jan. 16, and there was little rallying power disclosed. Final trades were at net losses of ½@⅝c, with March 36⅝c, May 39½@39⅝c, and July 41½c.

Reports from the east and southeast indicate that there is little prospect at the present time of any material demand for cash corn from Chicago in view of the cheapness of the offerings from Ohio and Indiana. The corn situation this season is abnormal inasmuch as prices in the west and northwest are above a Chicago parity and turned the Iowa movement in that direction. Owing to the large crop in the area east of Chicago the latter is in a position to undersell the local market to a considerable extent, which has caused an accumulation of stocks here. The country sold 35,000 bu corn to local handlers yesterday while shipping sales were 11,000 bu.

Heavier Oats Movement.

Oats traders paid more attention to the increased movement of cash grain from the country which has developed in the past few days. Arrivals were 43 cars with the spot basis steady to ¾c lower. Trade in futures was slow with the market easing toward the last in sympathy with corn and the close was ¼@½c lower with May 25½@25⅝c and July 24⅞c.

Trade in rye was light and the market affected mainly by the action of wheat, closing ⅝@½c lower, with May at 46⅛c and July 47⅛c.

BUTTER AND EGGS HIGHER

Improved support carried butter and egg futures higher on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, butter closing with net gains of ⅝@¾c and eggs ½c. March Idaho potatoes reacted 5c, while Maine Green Mountains dropped 7c. Opening strength in butter resulted from a slightly improved production news and the stormy weather conditions. Buying carried prices forward hurriedly, but selling developed at mid-session and prices fell off. However, support came in again at the close. The production news showed the market lower than the previous week and another improved storage report was received from the four markets. The continued light receipts and the colder weather encouraged more support. Eggs, prices moving forward fairly we... d the light trading. Sales: Butter, 72 cars; eggs, 11 cars; potatoes, 15 cars. Deliveries: Butter, 6 cars. Prices follow:
